Creating Socially Responsible

Citizens David L. Grossman,John J. Cogan,2012-09-01 This book originates from a collaborative research initiative to examine how various societies in the Asia Pacific Region construct moral and civic education and to what extent these systems achieve the democratic objective of creating socially responsible citizens In many western societies there is at least a rhetorical tendency to separate the moral and civic dimensions of citizenship education and in some cases to exclude the moral dimension from the discourse of preparing citizens. However, as cross societal dialogues and research about citizenship education have increased in the past two decades, scholars have identified differences in the emphasis put on the moral dimension of citizenship education across the Asia Pacific region. In many predominantly Confucian, Islamic, and Buddhist societies, for example, the emphasis on the moral dimension of citizenship education is explicit and in some cases central. While awareness of a divide or perhaps more appropriately a continuum in the role of moral versus civic education in democratic societies has been recognized for some time, to our knowledge, this book marks the first effort of this scope to address the issue of the moral-civic divide in citizenship education. Thus, through a cross-cultural dialogue across societies in the Asia Pacific Region, this book addresses the issue of whether elements of both civic and moral education can be effectively joined to create a socially responsible citizen.

Global Tourism and Informal Labour Relations Godfrey Baladacchino, 2013-08-21. The worldwide expansion of the tourism industry creates many encounters between global agents and local forces, yet the host-guest interaction is rarely considered from the point of view of the experience of work. This study documents and discusses such a global-local encounter based on fieldwork carried out in hotels in Barbados and Malta. Insight is drawn from a review of such issues as recruitment, promotion, redundancy, discipline, security, communication, expertise, total quality management, initiatives, trade unionism, and industrial action.

Education in Bhutan Matthew J. Schuelka, T.W. Maxwell, 2016-09-16. Bhutan is a country in the Himalayas with a relatively new education system and a unique governmental philosophy known as Gross National Happiness. This book explores the history, culture, challenges, and opportunities of schooling in Bhutan. It discusses topics including historical perspectives on Buddhist monastic education, the regional and international influence on educational development, traditional medical education, higher education, and the evolution of Bhutanese educational policy, to name but a few. It also investigates contemporary challenges to schooling in Bhutan, such as adult education, inclusive education, early childhood education, rurality, and gender. Throughout the book, the developmental philosophy of Gross National Happiness is explored as a novel and culturally vital approach to education in Bhutan. The majority of the authors are prominent Bhutanese scholars and educational leaders, with select non-Bhutanese international scholars with strong links to Bhutan also contributing. This book is a valuable resource not only for those specifically interested in education in Bhutan, but for anyone with an interest in South Asian studies, general Asian studies, educational development, comparative education, Buddhist education, and the Gross National Happiness development philosophy.

Educational Strategies for Small Island States David Atchoarena, 1993. The recent emergence of small states on the international scene has generated renewed interest among researchers and practitioners. This booklet describes the significance, relevance, and practical implications for educational planning of insularity and small size. The empirical basis for this publication is drawn primarily from the Caribbean and South Pacific regions. Following the foreword and preface part

1 relocates the theme of small states in a theoretical and historical perspective It describes the characteristics common to small states that constitute both constraints to and advantages for educational planning Part 2 analyzes the implications of small size for educational planning It provides a statistical overview of education in small states that illustrates problems they face and the significance of context dependent factors for these countries educational behaviors and circumstances The third part proposes a strategic reflection encompassing the key aspects of planning and management of education Small size and insularity represent a double challenge to educational change Strategic reflection is organized around several major functions forecasting pedagogy administration and cooperation Particular attention is paid to archipelago states because of their extreme specificity Five tables are included LMI

The Hybridization of Vocational Training and Higher Education in Austria, Germany, and Switzerland Lukas Graf,2013-10-23 Austria Germany and Switzerland are increasingly relying on hybridization at the nexus of vocational training and higher education to increase permeability and reform their highly praised systems of collective skill formation This historical and organizational institutionalist study compares these countries to trace the evolution of their skill regimes from the 1960s to today s era of Europeanization focusing especially on the impact of the Bologna and Copenhagen processes

Institution and Human Resource Capacity Building in ASEAN United Nations. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,1999 Most southeast Asian countries have until recently had a long period of rapid and reasonably equitable growth This remarkable performance was achieved largely because sound policies were implemented effectively by capable institutions with competent staff This is especially true in key policy areas such as macroeconomic management product transformations trade and investment promotion and infrastructure development Many developing economies in Asia and the Pacific including the new and potentially new members of ASEAN namely Camodia Lao People s Democratic Republic Myanmar and Viet Nam which are facing enormous challenges resulting from domestic economic reforms and exposure to the international economy could benefit from the experiences of institution and human resource capacity building in older

ASEAN countries This publication contains an overview and four country studies of Indonesia Malaysia the Philippines and Thailand
