Education Reforms In Sub Saharan Africa Paradigm Lost:

Education Reforms in Sub-Saharan Africa, 2002 Although many countries in sub Saharan Africa have proclaimed it their goal to achieve free universal primary schooling to all children few have come close to achieving it The authors of this study describe the implementation of a major primary school reform in five countries Benin Ethiopia Guinea Malawi and Uganda The authors of this volume describe the efforts made in the last decade of the 20th century to reform African education the goal of which was to achieve education for all In a series of five case studies the politics surrounding the planning and implementation of these Education Reforms in Sub-Saharan Africa J. Paradigm Lost? Jeanne Moulton, United States. Agency for International Development. Bureau for Africa. Office of Sustainable Development. Human Resources and Democracy Division, 1999 Education Quality and Social Justice in the Global South Leon Tikly, Angeline M. Barrett, 2013-06-07 How we understand education quality is inextricably linked with perspectives on social justice Questions of inclusion relevance and democracy in education are increasingly contested most especially in the global South and improving the quality of education particularly for the most disadvantaged has become a topic of fundamental concern for education policy makers practitioners and the international development community The reality experienced by many learners continues to be of inadequately prepared and poorly motivated teachers struggling to deliver a rapidly changing curriculum without sufficient support and often using outmoded teaching methods in over crowded or dilapidated classrooms Education Quality and Social Justice in the South includes contributions from leading scholars in the field of education and development The text draws upon state of the art evidence from the five year EdQual research programme which focuses upon raising achievement in low income countries and demonstrates how systems of high quality universal education can be sustained By exploring recent research initiatives to improve education quality the importance of supporting local policy makers educators and parents as agents of change and students as active inquirers is highlighted and the challenge of taking successful initiatives to scale is explained The book is divided into three main parts Framing Education Quality Planning and Policies for Quality Implementing Quality in Schools Education Quality and Social Justice in the South argues that implementing a high quality of education using theories of social justice can inform the understanding of inclusion relevance and democracy in education The book should be essential reading for both students and researchers within the fields of international and comparative education along with educational policy poverty and development studies Education Reforms in Sub-Saharan Africa Jeanne Moulton, Karen Mundy, Michel Welmond, James Williams, 2002-12-30 Although many countries in sub Saharan Africa have proclaimed it their goal to achieve free universal primary schooling to all children few have come close to achieving it The authors of this study describe the implementation of a major primary school reform in five countries Benin Ethiopia Guinea Malawi and Uganda The authors of this volume describe the efforts made in the last decade of the 20th century to reform African education the goal of which was to achieve education for all In a series of five case studies the politics surrounding the planning and implementation of these reforms are considered and their outcomes analyzed The countries considered are Benin Ethiopia Guinea Malawi and Uganda Although the reforms are still underway the book covers at least their first five years bringing together facts and judgments into coherent stories The authors present some conclusions about the implementation of basic education reforms that deserve serious consideration by policymakers planners and program managers Have our assumptions about the process of reform been correct Have we selected the policy instruments most suitable for use in implementing various policies and programs What should we do to change the course of reform as we continue

The Political Economy of Educational Reforms and Capacity Development in Southeast Asia Yasushi Hirosato, Yuto Kitamura, 2009-02-07 Yasushi Hirosato and Yuto Kitamura Developing countries including Southeast Asian countries face an enormous challenge in ensuring equitable access to quality education in the context of deepening globalization and increasing international competition They must simultaneously meet the goals of Education for All EFA at the basic education level and of developing a more sophisticated workforce required by the knowledge based economy at the post basic especially tertiary education level To meet this challenge developing countries need to reform renovate their education systems and service deliveries as an integral part of national development However most of them have not yet fully developed the individual institutional and system capacities in undertaking necessary education reforms especially under decentralization and privatization requiring new roles at various central and local or public and private levels of administration and stakeholders Provided that an ultimate vision of educational development and cooperation in the twenty first century would be to develop indigenous capacity in engineering education reforms this book analyzes the overall education reform context and capacity including the status of sector program support using the sector wide approach SWAp program based approach PBA in developing countries We also address how different stakeholders have been interacting in order to promote equitable access to quality education particularly from the perspectives of capacity development under the system of decentralization

The Changing Face of Colonial Education in Africa Peter Kallaway, 2021-07-29 The Changing Face of Colonial Education in Africa offers a detailed and nuanced perspective of colonial history based on 15 years of research that throws fresh light on the complexities of African history and the colonial world of the first half of the twentieth century It provides an analytical background to the history of education in the colonial context by balancing contributions by missionary agencies colonial government humanitarian agencies scientific experts and African agents It offers a foundation for the analysis of modern educational policy for the postcolonial state It attempts to move beyond clichés about colonial education to an understanding of the complexities of how educational policy was developed in different places at different times while giving credence to arguments that see schooling as a form of social control in the colonial environment It is essential reading for academics researchers and policymakers looking to better understand colonial education and contextualize modern developments related to the decolonizing African education It is intended to provide an essential background for policy makers by demonstrating the significance of a historical perspective for an understanding of contemporary educational challenges in Africa and elsewhere

The Legacies of Transition Governments in Africa J. Seely, 2009-08-31 The revolutionary political upheavals in Africa in the early 1990s continue to have an impact almost two decades later This book argues we must look to the defining period of transition to understand how politics in these countries changed since the fall of dictatorial one party states

Policy-making for Education Reform in Developing Countries James H. Williams, William K. Cummings, 2005-03-31 The first book in a two volume series designed to help those working or preparing to work as education change agents in developing countries this volume will help change agents acquire a deeper more comprehensive understanding of the policy process and how it can be influenced

The Changing Transitions to Adulthood in Developing Countries National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, Panel on Transitions to Adulthood in Developing Countries, 2006-01-08 Serving as a companion to Growing Up Global this book from the National Research Council explores how the transition to adulthood is changing in developing countries in light of globalization and what the implications of these changes might be for those responsible for designing youth policies and programs Presenting a detailed series of studies this volume both complements its precursor and makes for a useful contribution in its own right It should be of significant interest to scholars leaders of civil society and those charged with designing youth policies and programs

The Oxford Handbook of the History of Education John L. Rury, Eileen Tamura, 2019 This handbook offers a global perspective on the historical development of educational institutions systems of schooling educational ideas and educational experiences Its 36 chapters consider the field's changing scholarship while examining particular national and regional themes and offering a comparative perspective Each also provides suggestions for further research and analysis

Issues in African Education A. Abdi, A. Cleghorn, 2005-11-04 This book addresses major sociological issues in sub Saharan African education today Its fourteen contributors present a thoroughly African world view within a sociology of education theoretical framework allowing the reader to see where that theory is relevant to the African context and where it is not Several of the chapters bring a much needed cultural nuance and critical theoretical perspective to the issues at hand The sixteen chapters thus aim to be of interest internationally to those who work in such fields as social and political foundations of comparative and international education and development studies including university professors teacher educators researchers school teachers tertiary education students consultants and policy makers

Overview of USAID Basic Education Programs in Sub-Saharan Africa III. , 2001

Gender, Equality and Education from International and Comparative Perspectives David Baker, Alexander W. Wiseman, 2009-04-03 Investigates the often controversial relationship between gender equality and education from international and comparative perspectives This volume also investigates whether gender equality in education is really being achieved in schools around the world or not
