Richard W. Hostrop, James A. Mecklenburger, John Alfred Wilson, 1973 The Myth of Accountability Eric S. Glover, 2012-10-23 School improvement that is reliant on accountability is a myth based upon falsehoods and wrong assumptions. Public education's increased dependence on this foundation for school reform and change has failed both students and teachers. The fact remains that people who create education policy do not understand what is best for individual students and classrooms. Their devised curriculum standards are in actuality curriculum limits that prevent students from creating successful personal and academic futures because they thwart any natural learning exploration. As such, these market-inspired externally motivated standards limit higher level learning. Instead of treating students and teachers as subjects to be actively engaged in learning, accountability systems treat students and teachers like objects to be manipulated by training. By presenting the lead-teach-learn triad, Eric Glover's The Myth of Accountability discusses the pitfalls of accountability systems in schools while also investigating how schools have somehow managed to improve in spite of their negative influences. In order to evolve school reform, Glover introduces the concept of developmental empowerment in order to frame how school participants must view themselves as perpetually changing learners and systematically update school reform. Through open inquiry, Glover encourages educators to challenge the standardization and accountability practices that limit children's futures.

Educational Accountability Arthur W. Comes, 1975 Educational Accountability Arthur W. Comes, 1975 Educational Accountability Association for Supervision & Curriculum Development, 1972

Educational Accountability, 2009-01-01 In an age when responses to accountability regimes in education range from hysteria to cynicism, this volume reframes accountability in narratives of collective participatory responsibility that leave one feeling inspired and ready to act. The authors, all scholar-practitioners speaking from contexts spanning leadership, policy, literacy, indigenous education, and diversity, explore ways to navigate accountability discourses with wisdom, courage, and hope. Tara Fenwick, PhD, Head, Dept of Educational Studies, University of British Columbia. In this collection, the preoccupation of educational institutions with accountability is critically examined by writers who work in the field. They consider the impact of accountability regimes on professional practice and the learning agenda, challenge current policies, and call for a rethinking of accountability. The skills and knowledge associated with this work is what we should hold schools accountable to. It is as you see from reading these contributions, time for change. Stephen Murgatroyd, PhD, Chief Scout, The Innovation Expedition Inc. About the Book: From their diverse perspectives, nine educational practitioners discuss current educational accountability policies and how these affect students, educators' learning and teaching in a variety of settings from K-12 schools to post-secondary institutions and government agencies. The authors combine theory, research, and their day-to-day experiences to reflect on the challenges posed by realities such as outcomes-based curricula, high-stakes testing, standardized reporting, and management by objectives. By examining current accountability initiatives and their effects in relation to core values of public education such as equity, diversity, democracy, and opportunity, this book offers educators a range of insights.
