Irudaya Rajan, Gayathri Balagopal, 2017-02-21 This volume highlights a range of issues underpinning elder care in India with particular focus on the challenges that India faces in caring for the elderly In addition to the very limited state support and near total dependence on the family for long term social care and economic support the changing dynamics between generations in the family structure and privatization of health care in general create new challenges that need to be addressed. Although care plays a significant role in the well being of the elderly there is not much research available from India. This volume draws on field based evidence and the legal framework in India to understand the ways in which care is organized for the elderly and to locate the main sources of care provision. The book addresses key themes such as shrinking of traditional support base of the elderly trajectory of old age homes in India and care arrangements for the elderly within the community. Written by academics and practitioners in the field of gerontology this book is an informative resource for demographers gerontologists social scientists studying aging and human rights and legal experts working with the aged.

Annotated Bibliography on Ageing and the Elderly in Singapore Grace Khei Mie Wong, Giok Ling Ooi, Kai Hong Phua, 1999

Ageing in Asia Roger Goodman, Sarah Harper, 2013-09-13 The volume takes four key themes related to ageing the experience of old age intergenerational relations economics of and social policy for ageing longevity and the culture of ageing and examines how these issues are emerging in different regions of Asia specifically the former Soviet Union South Asia China Japan and South East Asia. In placing these Asian cases studies in the broader context of debates about and policies on ageing more generally it brings them into the mainstream of comparative research on ageing from which they have been too often excluded. As the studies show the relationship between ageing and poverty is a complex one and often reflects policy towards the aged rather than that the aged themselves are unproductive and dependent. Ageing moreover can no longer be considered as simply a national question we also need to consider the implications of its global dimension in terms of issues such as human rights and quality of life.

Ageing K. Pappathi, 2007 Human life in all stages is blessed with growth and development. Ageing is one of the significant stages of this process. It is a universal phenomenon applicable to all living organisms. The United Nations declared the year 1999 as International Year of Older Persons. It focused on Towards a society for all ages where young and old get mutual help in bringing equal social order of the society. Hence India formulated the National Policy on Older Persons in 1999 aiming to provide a happy ageing atmosphere.

Older People in Natural Disasters Junko Ôtani, 2010 Japan's Great Hanshin Earthquake of 1995 destroyed the homes livelihoods and communities of many elderly people. Some of the most vulnerable survivors spent up to five years in temporary shelters before settling into publicly subsidized apartments or dispersing into the general population. Public scrutiny of the post earthquake recovery drew attention to the challenges of community generation and the loneliness isolation and death experienced by elderly earthquake victims. Bringing together quantitative and qualitative analysis of media discourse public policy and ethnographic fieldwork this book examines the earthquake's long term effects of temporary shelters and public reconstruction housing for elderly residents. The first study to utilize NVivo qualitative research software in a Japanese research context this is an original contribution to natural disaster literature as well as health and welfare policy in societies that like Japan are undergoing rapid urbanization and population aging.

Aging and Adult Development in the Developing World

Frank E. Eyetsemitan, James T. Gire, 2003-02-28 Most studies of human development in developing societies have focused on the childhood stage and in a few cases exploration has extended up to adolescence since this age group represents about half the population in developing societies The developed world however is experiencing a surge in the elderly population and this has spurred its study There is growing recognition that studies are needed in order to understand aging in all contexts and to discover how the experience may differ in developing and developed societies In this book the authors discuss the appropriateness or inappropriateness of applying Western theories and perspectives to studies of aging in the developing world The present study critically examines the major theories in the area of aging and adult development covering such domains as the physical psychological and social aspects of aging death and dying and social and public policies Applying the concepts of individualism and collectivism as well as the global and environmental dimensions of the developing world the authors have earmarked the theories that seem suitable only to the developed world and those that appear to be universally relevant
