The End of Straight Supremacy Shannon Gilreath,2011-09-19 Rooted in the politics and theories of early gay liberation and radical feminism Shannon Gilreath s The End of Straight Supremacy presents a cohesive theory of gay life under straight domination Beginning with a critique of formal equality law centering on the like straight demands of liberal equality theory as highlighted in Lawrence v Texas Gilreath moves to criticize the gay movement itself challenging the assimilation politics behind the movement s blithe acceptance of discrimination in the guise of free speech and pornography in the name of sexual liberation as well as same sex marriage and transsexuality as tools of straight hegemony Ultimately Gilreath rejects both the liberal demand for gay erasure in exchange for meager legal progress and the gay establishment agenda In The End of Straight Supremacy Gilreath calls gays and their allies to the difficult task of rethinking what liberation and equality really mean Aimer et mourir Eilene Hoft-March,Judith Holland Sarnecki,2009-01-23 Aimer et Mourir offers a wide ranging selection of essays that collectively address how from the Middle Ages to the present the notions of love and death get inextricably associated with the narratives that are women's lives. Some of the essays tackle male writers' representations that link women and in particular women's sexuality with death, resulting in the figures of the femme fatale, the woman in parturition and the desiring vampire. A number of essays reiterate that women's hypersexualized bodies have been used as a social construct and a psychological screen upon which to project a fear of death. The challenges to this pat reduction of woman's domain come from the mostly women writers represented here and they span from Marguerite de Navarre to Amalie Notomb. These women writers rework the old formulae, giving us instead death-defying memories of love, love regenerative of language as of bodies, love forcing the frontiers of death or love creatively redefined within the parameters of death. Nor are these new narratives imagined as belonging to women alone but rather as attesting to a richer, more varied and greatly sensitized human experience. Global Feminist Ethics Peggy DesAutels, Rebecca Whisnant, 2010

This volume is fourth in the series of annuals created under the auspices of The Association for Feminist Ethics and Social Theory (FEAST). The topics covered herein, from peacekeeping and terrorism to sex trafficking and women's paid labor to poverty and religious fundamentalism, are vital to women and to feminist movements throughout the world. Animal

Horror cinema, historical trauma and national identity explores the ways in which the unashamedly disturbing conventions of international horror cinema allow audiences to engage with the traumatic legacy of the recent past in a manner that has serious implications for the ways in which we conceive of ourselves both as gendered individuals and as members of a particular nation-state. Exploring a wide range of stylistically distinctive and generically diverse film texts, its analysis ranges from the body horror of the American 1970s to the avant-garde proclivities of German Reunification horror, from the vengeful supernaturalism of recent Japanese chillers and their American remakes to the post-Thatcherite masculinity horror of the UK and the resurgence of hillbilly horror in the period following September 11th 2001. In each case it is argued that horror cinema forces us to look again at the wounds inflicted on individuals, families, communities and nations by traumatic events such as genocide and war, terrorist outrage and seismic political change, wounds that are all too often concealed beneath ideologically expedient discourses of national cohesion. By proffering a radical critique of the nation-state and the ideologies of identity, it promulgates that horror cinema is seen to offer us a disturbing yet perversely life-affirming means of working through the traumatic legacy of recent times. Bearing the weight of the world: Exploring Maternal Embodiment Alys Einion, 2018-10-01

The maternal body is a site of contested dynamics of power, identity, experience, autonomy, occupation and control.

Representations of the maternal body can misrepresent the childbearing and mothering form, variously often as monstrous.

idealized limited scrutinized or occupied whilst dominant discourses limit motherhood through social devaluation The maternal body has long been a hypervisible artifact at once bracketed out in the interest of elevating the contributions of sperm carriers or fetal status and regarded with hostility and suspicion as out of control Such arguments are deployed to justify surveillance mechanisms medical scrutiny and expectation of self discipline
