Despite the widespread trends of secularization in the 20th century religion has played an important role in several outbreaks of genocide since the First World War And yet not many scholars have looked either at the religious aspects of modern genocide or at the manner in which religion has taken a position on mass killing This collection of essays addresses this hiatus by examining the intersection between religion and state organized murder in the cases of the Armenian Jewish Rwandan and Bosnian genocides Rather than a comprehensive overview it offers a series of discrete yet closely related case studies that shed light on three fundamental aspects of this issue the use of religion to legitimize and motivate genocide the potential of religious faith to encourage physical and spiritual resistance to mass murder and finally the role of religion in coming to terms with the legacy of atrocity

Dionne, Jean Bethke Elshtain, Kayla Meltzer Drogosz, 2004-06-14 The United States has been described as a nation with the soul of a church Religion is discussed more explicitly and more urgently in American politics than in the public debates of any other wealthy democracy It is certain to play an important role in the elections of 2004 Yet debates over religion and politics are often narrow and highly partisan although the questions at hand demand a broader and more civil discussion One Electorate under God widens the dialogue by bringing together in one volume some of the most influential voices in American intellectual and political life This book draws on a public debate between former New York governor Mario Cuomo and Indiana congressman Mark Souder who discuss how their respective faith convictions have been both shaped by and reflected in their careers as public servants This discussion in turn prompted commentary by a diverse group of scholars politicians journalists and religious leaders who are engaged simultaneously in the religious and policy realms Each contributor offers insights on how political leaders and religious convictions shape our politics One Electorate under God arises from the idea that public deliberation is more honest and more democratic when officials are open and reflective about the interactions between their religious convictions and their commitments in the secular realm This volume the first of its kind seeks to promote a greater understanding of American thinking about faith and public office in a pluralistic society Contributors include Joanna Adams Azizah Al Hibri Doug Bandow Michael Barone Gary Bauer Robert Bellah David Brooks Harvey Cox Michael Cromartie John DiIulio Jr Terry Eastland Robert Edgar Jean Bethke Elshtain Richard Wightman Fox William Galston Robert George Andrew Greeley John Green Anna Greenberg Susannah Heschel Representative Amo Houghton R New York Michael Kazin Martha Minow Stephen Monsma Mark Noll Rabbi Dav God's Paintbrush
