Tracking Down the Holy Ghost Frank T. Griswold, 2017-11-01 Frank Griswold writes out of his understanding that all things have the potential to reveal the Divine and the mystery of love that lies at the heart of the universe Though a teacher preacher recognized ecumenical and interfaith leader and former head of the Episcopal Church he describes himself as a seeker still a person under construction Griswold's opening words set the tone These pages are the fruit of my effort to gather up fragments from what I have learned along the way about myself about love and longing about God and God's ways with us If you are drawn as I have been to follow lines of spiritual motion perhaps the stories and reflections in these pages will be an encouragement along the way You may discover revelatory moments in your own life you have overlooked because they seem so ordinary and mundane Though not a memoir the book includes autobiographical material to give readers a sense of the writer as a friend and companion who shares their journey It also illustrates and brings to life various teachings drawn from the Great Tradition as well as contemporary authors and spiritual guides

Through a Child's Eyes: Christian Parenting from Infancy to Five Year Pam Carson, 2022-05-17 A child's early years lay the foundation for nurturing a child's faith and planting the seeds of how they are valued in God's eyes The insights of how children think and how they process the world around them help us to meet their needs while building trust The first five years form the basis for this trust They are learning everything from walking talking understanding feeling learning right from wrong and mastering the English language They live in a world of fantasy where anything is possible Children tend to believe anything we tell them without question That is why we must be especially careful what we say to them Self evaluation of our personalities our journey through life and how all this has molded our faith and affected our communication can help us raise our children We can learn to be more sensitive to the little soul God has given us These little ones are like a new journal and as parents we get the blessing to write on the first pages of a child's life These are the tender years These years are the foundation of a child's view of themselves their faith and the world around them
