

whose builders happen to be largely on the Christian theological side, people such as Ian Barbour, Arthur Peacocke, or Ted Peters who is a co-editor of, and contributor to, this book. We decided that while issues arising from and within cosmology and biology would be our specific focus, the very question of methodology and the fundamental task of defining the very terms of discourse, these would themselves be a central concern for reflection, investigation, and articulation – and this burden, let us note, is the burden of the pioneer.

Mustansir Mir takes up this question directly in his chapter. His position is that there exists, indeed, a community of concerns between the Christian and Islamic perspectives on religion and science. But more, Mustansir Mir feels that even contemporary Christian theological methods can appropriately serve today's Muslim thought; he singles out with approval Ted Peter's notion of "hypothetical consonance" between theology and science, a consonance considered to hold the promise of benefitting both. "In its essential form", he says, "this method seems to be correct, though it remains for Muslim scholars to work out its details ...". Evidently, Mustansir Mir is seeking to set the very terms of the Islamic discourse on religion and science, and this is precisely what Ted Peters undertook for a theistic discourse in his chapter, "Science and Faith: From Warfare to Consonance", cited by the former. Both of these chapters prepare new ground for a new synthesis, and both appear in the first and the largest part of this volume dealing with philosophical, historical, and methodological issues.

Muzaffar Iqbal's chapter, with which the first section appropriately begins, also speaks in the tone of a discoverer. On a wide canvass, the chapter carries out an extensive historical excursus into the whole question of the relationship between the Islamic scientific tradition and the post-Renaissance science of Latin Christendom. In the opinion of this co-editor of this volume, though these are not his words, there was a metaphysical rupture between science as it was created and pursued in the medieval Islamic world, and as it developed in a secularized mode in the modern West. This thesis brings to bear

Aristotle on God's Life-Generating Power and on Pneuma as Its Vehicle Abraham P. Bos, 2018-02-01 Proposes an innovative rethinking of Aristotle's work as a system that integrates his theology with his doctrine of reproduction and life In this deep rethinking of Aristotle's work Abraham P Bos argues that scholarship on Aristotle's philosophy has erred since antiquity in denying the connection between his theology and his doctrine of reproduction and life in the earthly sphere Beginning with an analysis of God's role in the Aristotelian system Bos explores how this relates to other elements of his philosophy especially to his theory of reproduction The argument he develops is that in talking about the cosmos Aristotle rejected Plato's metaphor of artisanal production by a divine Demiurge in favor of a biotic metaphor based on the transmission of life in reproduction in which pneuma not breath as it is often interpreted but the life bearing spirit in animals and plants plays a key and sustaining role as the vital principle in all that lives In making this case he defends the authenticity of the treatises De Mundo and De Spiritu as Aristotle's and demonstrates Aristotle's works as a unified system that sharply and comprehensively refutes Plato's and in particular replaces Plato's doctrine of the soul with a theory in which the soul is clearly distinguished from the intellect Bos offers a fresh interesting and important perspective His interpretation will be very controversial but if he is right the standard Anglo American interpretation of Aristotle will have to change radically

A Primer for Christian Doctrine Jonathan R. Wilson,2005-05-02 Penned by a Christian teacher who has led thousands of students through the unfamiliar terrain of systematic theology A Primer for Christian Doctrine serves as a friendly guide to theology s topics debates and terminology Telling you what you need to know as you begin your study of theology or doctrine the book is an ideal companion to more comprehensive texts After a brief introduction defending the continued need for doctrine Jonathan Wilson clearly and concisely maps out each of the main topics of Christian belief in separate chapters He also traces the differing emphases of theologians while suggesting reasons for their differences Whether as a first taste of theology or as a readable summary of its present state Wilson's Primer for Christian Doctrine will be an invaluable resource for students and small groups pursuing a deeper knowledge of what Christians believe The Hermetic Art Albert Sidney Raleigh, 1919 Christian Theology and the Status of Animals R.

Watkins, 2015 Revision of the author's PhD thesis at the University of St Andrews Acknowledgements The Flaming Sword, 1909 Holiness and the Missio Dei Andy Johnson, 2016-09-29 In Holiness and the Missio Dei Andy Johnson takes the reader on a biblical journey that explores the question of what holiness or sanctification has to do with God's mission in the world He refuses to relegate the idea of humans becoming holy to the realm of individual inward piety or legalism on the one hand or to the realm of the impossible prior to Christ's return on the other Using a missional lens to guide the reader into a theological engagement with Scripture Johnson argues that God's primary means of making us holy is through our participation in his saving reconciling mission to bring creation to its intended destiny As we become and remain part of an ecclesia we are corporately and personally shaped by the Spirit into the image of the cruciform Son through participation in the missio Dei and thereby are being restored into the image of the holy God the imago Dei This book is written primarily for church leaders for students and for academics who are interested in missional readings of Scripture It will challenge those who read it to re-articulate the church's becoming holy as being inseparably connected to its active participation in God's mission Hope for the Earth Ernst M. Conradie, 2005-05-18 Hope for the Earth explores the viability of an eschatological approach to an ecological theology spirituality and praxis in the South African context The basic intuition of such an eschatological approach is that an environmental praxis can only be empowered on the basis of an adequate understanding of Christian hope Despair in the face of environmental destruction will inevitably lead to a spirit of resignation Where then can a vision of hope that includes hope for the earth be found The author proposes a road map for eschatology based on the observation that eschatology has traditionally responded to three aspects of the human predicament namely 1 the evil effects of sin 2 the problem of finitude and transience and 3 the limitations of human power and knowledge in space Part A This analysis is used to fathom the depths of despair as a result of environmental destruction Part B The Biblical roots and subsequent history of Christian eschatology are discussed briefly Part C Recent contributions in Christian eschatology ecological theology cosmology and South African expressions of hope are explored in depth in search of a vision of hope that includes hope for the earth itself Part D The eschatological road map is used to develop a vision of hope for the earth on the basis of a theology of life life amidst death and destruction life beyond death and eternal life in the presence of God Part E Finally the implications of this vision for an ecological ethos spirituality and praxis in the South African context are indicated
