Going Coed:

Going Coed Leslie Miller-Bernal, Susan L. Poulson, 2004 More than a quarter century ago the last great wave of coeducation in the United States resulted in the admission of women to almost all of the remaining men's colleges and universities In thirteen original essays Going Coed investigates the reasons behind this important phenomenon describes how institutions have dealt with the changes and captures the experiences of women who attended these schools History of Universities Oxford, 2005-10-20 Volume XX 2 of History of Universities contains the customary mix of learned articles book reviews conference reports and bibliographical information which makes this publication such an indispensable tool for the historian of higher education Its contributions range widely geographically chronologically and in subject matter The volume is as always a lively combination of original research and invaluable reference material Challenged by Coeducation Leslie Miller-Bernal, Susan L. Poulson, 2007-01-22 Challenged by Coeducation details the responses of women's colleges to the most recent wave of Women's colleges originated in the mid nineteenth century as a response to women's exclusion from higher education Women's academic successes and their persistent struggles to enter men's colleges resulted in coeducation rapidly becoming the norm however Still many prestigious institutions remained single sex notably most of the Ivy League and all of the Seven Sisters colleges In the mid twentieth century colleges concerns about finances and enrollments as well as ideological pressures to integrate formerly separate social groups led men's colleges and some women's colleges to become coeducational The admission of women to practically all men's colleges created a serious challenge for women's colleges Most people no longer believed women's colleges were necessary since women had virtually unlimited access to higher education Even though research spawned by the women's movement indicated the benefits to women of a room of their own few young women remained interested in applying to women's colleges Challenged by Coeducation details the responses of women's colleges to this latest wave of coeducation Case studies written expressly for this volume include many types of women's colleges Catholic and secular Seven Sisters and less prestigious private and state liberal arts and more applied northern southern and western urban and rural independent and coordinated with a coeducational institution They demonstrate the principal ways women's colleges have adapted to the new coeducational era some have been taken over or closed but most have changed by admitting men and thereby becoming coeducational or by offering new programs to different populations Some women's colleges mostly those that are in cities connected to other colleges and prestigious with a high endowment still enjoy success Despite their dramatic drop in numbers from 250 to fewer than 60 today women's colleges are still important editors Miller Bernal and Poulson argue With their commitment to enhancing women's lives women's colleges and formerly women's colleges can serve as models of egalitarian coeducation History of Universities Mordechai Feingold, 2005-10-20 Annotation Volume XX 2 of History of Universities contains the customary mix of learned articles book reviews conference reports and bibliographical information which makes this publication such an indispensable

Elizabeth A. Duffy,Idana Goldberg,2014-07-14 Admissions and financial aid policies at liberal arts colleges have changed dramatically since 1955 Through the 1950s most colleges in the United States enrolled fewer than 1000 students nearly all of whom were white Few colleges were truly selective in their admissions they accepted most students who applied In the 1960s as the children of the baby boom reached college age and both federal and institutional financial aid programs expanded many more students began to apply to college For the first time liberal arts colleges were faced with an abundance of applicants which raised new questions What criteria would they use to select students How would they award financial aid The answers to these questions were shaped by financial and educational considerations as well as by the struggles for civil rights and gender equality that swept across the nation The colleges answers also proved crucial to their futures as the years since the mid 1970s have shown When the influx of baby boom students slowed colleges began to recruit aggressively in order to maintain their class sizes In the past decade financial aid has become another tool that colleges use to compete for the best students By tracing the development of competitive admission and financial aid policies at a selected group of liberal arts colleges Crafting a Class explores how institutional decisions reflect and respond to broad demographic economic political and social forces Elizabeth Duffy and Idana Goldberg closely studied sixteen liberal arts colleges in Massachusetts and Ohio At each college they not only collected empirical data on admissions enrollment and financial aid trends but they also examined archival materials and interviewed current and former administrators Duffy and Goldberg have produced an authoritative and highly readable account of some of the most important changes that have taken place in American higher education during the tumultuous decades since the mid 1950s Crafting a Class will interest all readers who are concerned with the past and future directions of higher education in the United States Originally published in 1997 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

A Hoosier's Journey Donald J. Almquist, 2024-04-09 At age 17 I went home from work and told my mother that I had received an appointment to study engineering at GMI She said I didn't know you wanted to be an engineer I said I do today I didn't even know where GMI was located On October 1 1951 I entered Flint Michigan to start my education with General Motors Institute When Dad died Mother was not employed She said we were all going to stay together The state would separate us if we couldn't survive without Dad I can still see her taking a knife and putting a slit in the top of that baking powder can and we all contributed to it We all put whatever we could earn in that can During Mother's last year I would go over to see her and she always wanted me to take something home When I was checking her food supply I found the baking powder can I told her I would like to have it She said there were a number of times she would look into it and see a dime which meant she would have to be creative for supper We never went hungry She was one of my two most admired ladies I married the other one In March 1990 I flew into Moscow All of the flights from out of the country came into Moscow in those days After we landed the intercom came on and asked for me I remember this scared me I wondered what was wrong When I arrived in Tolyatti two of my engineers met me and said Lets take a walk I thought this was strange since it was raining They said you couldn't talk in the rooms they were bugged They told about a session where they were planning the next phase of their work The next morning the Russian engineers acted as if they had been in the meeting Don Almquist has traveled the world doing business for GM In this memoir starts with life on a small farm in Indiana continues through his education and career at both Delco Remy and Delco Electronics Corporation He talks of his personal life and career with stories from all over the world He shares his beliefs on management and leadership and reflects on the last 90 years Assessment of Coeducational Corrections ,1978 A Will and a Way Lynn Hardy Yeakel,2010-09-03

The American Private School Lawrence R. Samuel,2025-03-04 The American Private School A Cultural History is a history of private or independent schools in the United States over the past century Told chronologically the book sheds light on the important role that the K 12 private school has played in this country filling a niche in the history of education sociology and the United States as a whole Women Scientists in America Margaret W. Rossiter,2012-04-02 With the thoroughness and resourcefulness that characterize the earlier volumes she recounts the rich history of the courageous and resolute women determined to realize their scientific ambitions Worklife ,1977 The Chosen Jerome Karabel,2005 Drawing on decades of research Karabel shines a light on the ever changing definition of merit in college admissions showing how it shaped and was shaped by the country at large The Making of Princeton University James Axtell,2021-03-09 In 1902 Professor Woodrow Wilson took the helm of Princeton University then a small denominational college with few academic pretensions But Wilson had a blueprint for remaking the too cozy college into an intellectual powerhouse The Making of Princeton University tells for the first time the story of how the University adapted and updated Wilson's vision to transform itself into the prestigious institution it is today James Axtell brings the methods and insights from his extensive work in ethnohistory to the collegiate realm focusing especially on one of Princeton's most distinguished features its unrivaled reputation for undergraduate education Addressing admissions the curriculum extracurricular activities and the changing landscape of student culture the book devotes four full chapters to undergraduate life inside and outside the classroom The book is a livelywarts and all rendering of Princeton s rise addressing such themes as discriminatory admission policies the academic underperformance of many varsity athletes and the controversial bicker system through which students have been selected for the University s private eating clubs Written in a delightful and elegant style The Making of Princeton University offers a detailed picture of how the University has dealt with these issues to secure a distinguished position in both higher education and American society For anyone interested in or associated with Princeton past or present this is a book to savor

Woman of the House Vincent Bzdek,2025-09-23 While the Democratic nominee for President will likely emerge from the 2008 primaries bloody and bruised the always smiling confoundingly popular Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi will be front and center as the party heads to its National Convention in August Not only has she somehow won the confidence of the boys club of the House and returned her party to majority status after twelve years of Republican rule but she has managed in her first 100 hours on the job to pass much of the legislation she promised Pelosi is also leading the vocal in your face opposition to the Iraq War this generation s defining event and is likely one of the most important political figures of the last few decades In this balanced thoroughly researched biography Bzdek chronicles the career of the country s most powerful woman shining a light on the woman who is two heartbeats away from the presidency and whose incredible example is already inspiring a new generation of American women

Student Diversity at the Big Three Marcia Synnott,2017-09-08 Strengthening affirmative action programs and fighting discrimination present challenges to America s best private and public universities US college enrollments swelled from 2.6 million students in 1955 to 17.5 million by 2005 Ivy League universities specifically Harvard Yale and Princeton face significant challenges in maintaining their professed goal to educate a reasonable number of students from all ethnic racial religious and socioeconomic groups while maintaining the loyalty of their alumni College admissions officers in these elite universities have the daunting task of selecting a balanced student body Added to their challenges the economic recession of 2008-2009 negatively impacted potential applicants from lower income families Evidence suggests that high Standard Aptitude Test SAT scores are correlated with a family s socioeconomic status Thus the problem of selecting the best students from an ever increasing pool of applicants may render standardized admissions tests a less desirable selection mechanism The next admissions battle may be whether well endowed universities should commit themselves to a form of class based affirmative action in order to balance the socioeconomic advantages of well to do families Such a policy would improve prospects for students who may have ambitions for an education that is beyond their reach without preferential treatment As in past decades admissions policies may remain a question of balances and preferences Nevertheless the elite universities are handling admission decisions with determination and far less prejudice than in earlier eras
