reactions to problems as defined by rational federal health policy analysts and process but by situations and forces occurring outside the health policy arena Therefore health policy debates and outcomes are a function of the impact of various external factors as opposed to the specific health care needs of the population Factors that externally effect health policy formation are industrialization labor issues and the employee employer relationship Other factors include the introduction and subsequent increases in individual and corporate taxation and the ever expanding influence of the health care givers industry Thus national health policy outcomes are determined by what is done in other realms Using problem definition as an analytical tool key questions to be addressed include How were different policy proposals affected by other realms than public health policy By whom Through what means For what purposes With what effects on the policymaking process and outcome An inductive exploratory case study of the following specific legislative debates and their respective content using problem definition will be used to synthesize the role and impact of external forces on the formation of national health insurance policy in the United States The case study will analyze the preliminary legislative attempts of the American Association for Labor Legislation 1912 the Wagner Murray Dingell Bill 1943 and Truman s support of the W M D Bill 1945 Continuing legislative debates of the Kerr Mills Bill 1960 the Medicare Medicaid Legislation 1965 and Nixon s Comprehensive Health Insurance Program of 1974 will also be analyzed President Clinton s Health Security Act 1993 will be analyzed in detail Results Particular ideas about national health care problems and national health policies as they are defined and articulated through a rational public process have little substantial impact on how they are ultimately dealt with The episodic shifts and the ebbs and flows in direction of national health insurance policy are understandable when analyzed and viewed through lens that see the impact of other realms external to the formal health policy process Conclusions Problem definition analysis of the intricacies and impact of various forces external to the formal health policy process on specific historical legislative debates and policy decisions about national health insurance is critical to understanding national health policy outcomes and in anticipating future proposed health policies

Constructing a Policy-Making State? Jeremy Richardson, 2012-09-20 Constructing a Policy Making State sets out to examine the processes by which Europeanization takes place Europeanization is defined as the process by which the key decisions about public policies are gradually transferred to the European level or for new policy areas emerge at the European level This is in contrast to definitions of Europeanization which focus on the adaption of member states to European public policies Thus the main focus is whether a European Union policy making state is being created via changes in the distribution of power between member states and the European level institutions over time In addition to several overview chapters such as on agenda setting in the EU there are twelve sectoral studies which analyse the differing trajectories and outcomes of the Europeanization process and the extent to which the European Union can make authoritative allocations The case studies have been selected in order to illustrate the degree of cross sectoral variation in the process of Europeanization from sectors which have yet to see very much Europeanization such as health to sectors such as competition policy which are almost fully Europeanized The book is consciously multi theoretic in its approach drawing on a range of theories and concepts from theories of European integration to theories of public policy processes Epidemiology and the Delivery of Health Care Services Denise M. culminating with a survey of current policy related predicaments in various countries Dror proposes that the task for social science research is to uncover underlying causes of policymaking inadequacies Standard research methods Dror states have been unable to uncover the realities of important decisions made inside governments In order to gain an understanding of pressing predicaments he believes that policymakers need to examine the foundations of contemporary practices of present assumptions and that they need a multiplicity of approaches to policymaking After prescribing a set of requirements that policymaking must satisfy in order to adequately respond to challenges Dror posits several improvements needed in education and in policy decision making The book concludes with an extensive bibliography including numerous important German works not found in other English language studies This book supplements the earlier basic theory and models propounded in Dror s Public Policymaking Reexamined by dealing with current trends As a guide to public policy literature and related works it will be invaluable to students and practitioners
