Horace Elisha Scudder

Great Harry Henry VIII:

Great Harry's Navy Geoffrey Moorhouse, 2007-01 Ground breaking history of how King Henry VIII created England's navy. It was Henry VIII who began the process of making England a first rate sea power. He inherited no more than seven warships from Henry VII yet at his own death the King's Navy had 53 seaworthy ships afloat much the same size as the Royal Navy today manned by almost 8 000 sailors. Henry VIII originally needed a navy to hold the English Channel and blockade the enemy while he invaded France. Later when invasion from the continent grew serious Henry's navy fought in many actions. Moorhouse doesn't only deal with seagoing exploits. Thanks to Henry VIII dockyards were built. Greenwich and Deptford timber had to be felled in quantities previously unknown from land seized during the dissolution of the monasteries and hemp for rope was harvested. New skills were developed not least the gun founders and the master shipwrights. Some of the ships were celebrated. Henry Grace a Dieu aka Great Harry was the biggest ship in the world 1 000 tons 122 guns crew of 700 and the Mary Rose 500 tons 80 guns 40 crew became one of the most famous after she heeled over too far took water and sank with the loss of almost all hands off Portsmouth.

Henry VIII and the Court Suzannah Lipscomb, 2016-12-05 After 500 years Henry VIII still retains a public fascination unmatched by any monarch before or since. Whilst his popular image is firmly associated with his appetites sexual and gastronomic scholars have long recognized that his reign also ushered in profound changes to English society and culture the legacy of which endure to this day. To help take stock of such a multifaceted and contested history this volume presents a collection of 17 essays that showcase the very latest thinking and research on Henry and his court. Divided into seven parts the book highlights how the political religious and cultural aspects of Henry's reign came together to create one of the most significant and transformative periods of English history. The volume is genuinely interdisciplinary drawing on literature art history architecture and drama to enrich our knowledge. The first part is a powerful and personal account by Professor George W Bernard of his experience of writing about Henry and his reign. The next parts Material Culture and Images reflect a historical concern with non documentary evidence exploring how objects collections paintings and buildings can provide unrivalled insight into the world of the Tudor court. The parts on Court Culture and Performance explore the literary and theatrical world and the performative aspects of court life looking at how the Tudor court attempted to present itself to the world as well as how it was represented by others. The part on Reactions focuses upon the political and religious currents stirred up by Henry's policies and how they in turn came to influence his actions. Through this wide ranging yet thematically coherent approach a fascinating window is opened into the world of Henry VIII and his court. In particular building on research undertaken over the last ten years a number of contributors focus on topics that have been neglected by traditional historical writing for example gender graffiti and clothing. With contributions from many of the leading scholars of Tudor England the collection offers not only a snapshot of the latest historical thinking but also provides a starting point for future research into the world of this colourful but often
