The Experience of Beauty in the Middle Ages Mary Carruthers,2013-04-25 Uses lexical analyses of key terms employed by medieval people to valuate their own aesthetic feelings to show how flux and change and the creative tension of antithetical physical qualities from which all things were thought to be made cold hot dry wet govern the pleasures medieval artists sought to produce

A Connected Metropolis Maxwell Johnson,2023-07 In A Connected Metropolis Maxwell Johnson describes Los Angeles s rise in the early twentieth century as catalyzed by a series of upper class debates about the city s connections to the outside world By focusing on specific moments in the city s development when tensions over Los Angeles s connections or lack thereof emerged Johnson ties each movement to two or three contemporary figures who influenced the debates at hand The elites previous efforts to secure nationwide and global connections for Los Angeles were wildly successful following World War II As a result the city became a landing spot for African American migrants Cambodian and Laotian refugees and Mexican and Central American immigrants Johnson argues that the city s history is more defined by external relationships than previously understood and those relationships have given the history of the city more continuity than originally recognized At the turn of the twentieth century the politics of connection revolved around initiatives to tie Los Angeles to other places both tangibly and metaphorically Elites built tangible connections to secure among other things the water that irrigated the citrus farms of Los Angeles the capital that propelled its businesses and the people who migrated from the Midwest to buy its houses To build metaphorical connections that located the city amid transcontinental and trans Pacific movements elites themselves often transcended nearby borders and pursued connections at will Los Angeles stood as a focal point for elite ambitions a place with a more ambivalent relationship to external connections The true story of Los Angeles s rise lies in the spectacular visions and rambunctious activism of a group of elite men dedicated to transforming a remote frontier town into a global metropolis      Iron Horses Walter R. Borneman, 2014-11-18 A masterly account of the origins of the transcontinental railroad Douglas Brinkley by the author of the bestselling The Admirals After the completion of the first transcontinental railroad in 1869 the rest of the United States was up for grabs and the race was on The prize a better shorter less snowy route through the American Southwest linking Los Angeles to Chicago In Iron Horses Borneman recounts the rivalries contested routes political posturing and business dealings that unfolded as an increasing number of lines pushed their way across the country Borneman brings to life the legendary robber barons behind it all and also captures the herculean efforts required to construct these roads the laborers who did the back breaking work the brakemen who ran atop moving cars the tracklayers crushed and killed by runaway trains From backroom deals in Washington DC to armed robberies of trains in the wild deserts from cattle cars to streamliners and Super Chiefs all the great incidents and innovations of a mighty American era are made vivid in Iron Horses      The American West Robert V. Hine, John Mack Faragher, 2000-01-01 Two historians Robert V Hine and John Mack Faragher present the American West as both frontier and region real and imagined old and new and they show how men and women of all ethnic groups were affected when different cultures met and clashed Their concise and engaging survey of frontier history traces the story from the first Columbian contacts between Indians and Europeans to the multicultural encounters of the modern Southwest Profusely illustrated with contemporary drawings posters and photographs and written in lively and accessible prose the book not only presents a panoramic view of historical events and characters but also provides fascinating details about such topics as western landscapes environmental movements literature visual arts and film      A Country Strange and Far Michael C.
