The Monthly Army List Great Britain. Army, 1922-10      The Army List , 1927      Part of the Climate Jacqueline Vaught Brogan, 2023-12-22 Part of the Climate convincingly redefines American modernist poetry in light of developments in modern painting particularly cubism The traditional separation of the verbal and visual arts is cast aside here as Brogan encourages a re evaluation of modernism itself Moreover readers of modern poetry and literature will find this critical work doubly useful since the author places the poetry of well known modernists such as Pound Eliot and Williams alongside the harder to find work of important experimentalists such as Mina Loy Louis Zukofsky Gertrude Stein and George Oppen Jacqueline Vaught Brogan has assembled this much needed collection of experimental verse from the interwar years by going to the small magazines through which the poems reached their public She not only shows how significantly many of these American poets of the early twentieth century were influenced by the aesthetic development of cubism in the visual arts but also argues that the cubist aesthetic at least as it translated into the verbal domain invariably involved political and ethical issues The most important of these concerns was to extend the aesthetic revolution of cubism into a genuine revolution of the word Brogan maintains in fact that the multiplicity inherent in cubism anticipates the deconstructive enterprise now seen in criticism itself With this history of the cubist movement in American verse she raises serious questions about the politics of canonization and asks us to consider the ethical responsibility of interpretation both in the creative arts and in critical texts Part of the Climate convincingly redefines American modernist poetry in light of developments in modern painting particularly cubism The traditional separation of the verbal and visual arts is cast aside here as Brogan encourages a re evaluation

Canada's first casualties of the Great War men who tried to enlist but were deemed unfit for service by medical examiners. Condemned as shirkers for not being in uniform, rejected volunteers faced severe ostracism. Nagging guilt coupled with self-doubt about their social and physical worth led many of these men to divorce themselves from society or worse. Nic Clarke draws on the service files of 3,400 rejected volunteers to examine the deleterious effects that socially constructed norms of health and fitness had on individual men and Canadian society. He considers the mechanics of the military medical examination, the psychical and psychological characteristics that the authorities believed made a fighting man, and how evaluations changed as the war dragged on. He also brings to light the experiences of those who deliberately claimed disability to avoid service, a minority within the large population of rejected volunteers who felt denigrated if not emasculated by their exclusion from duty.

The 37th North Carolina made up of men from the western part of the state served in famous battles like Chancellorsville and Gettysburg as well as in lesser known engagements like Hanover Courthouse and New Bern. This is the account of the unit's four years service told largely in the soldiers' own words. Drawn from letters, diaries, and postwar articles and interviews, this history of the 37th North Carolina follows the unit from its organization in November 1861 until its surrender at Appomattox. The book includes photographs of the key players in the 37th's story as well as maps illustrating the unit's position at several engagements. Appendices include a complete roster of the unit and a listing of individuals buried in large sites such as prison cemeteries. A bibliography and index are also included. The Examiner, 1854. New Theatre Quarterly 43: Volume 11, Part 3 Clive Barker, Simon Trussler, 1995-11-16.
