Great Speckled Bird Multicultural Politics And Education Policymaking:

The Great Speckled Bird Catherine Cornbleth, Dexter Waugh, 1995 This unique volume takes readers behind the scenes for an insider outsider view of education policymaking in action Two state level case studies of social studies curriculum reform and textbook policy California and New York illustrate how curriculum decision making becomes an arena in which battles are fought over national values and priorities Written by a New York education professor and a California journalist the text offers a rare blend of academic and journalistic voices The great speckled bird is the authors counter symbol to the bald eagle a metaphor representing the racial ethnic cultural diversity that has characterized the U S since its beginnings and the multicultural reality of American society today The text breaks new ground by focusing on the intersections of national debates and education policymaking It situates the case studies within historical and contemporary cultural contexts with particular attention to questions of power and knowledge control and how influence is exercised By juxtaposing the contrasting cases of California and New York the authors illustrate commonalities and differences in education policymaking goals and processes By sharing stories of participants at and behind the scenes policymaking comes alive rather than appearing to result from impersonal forces or factors

A Place Called Home Jack Leonard, R. Martin Reardon, 2021-05-01 Describing global trends in forced displacement in 2019 Filippo Grandi United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees declared that we are witnessing a changed reality in that forced displacement nowadays is not only vastly more widespread but is simply no longer a short term and temporary phenomenon

At the end of 2019 almost 80 million people had been forced to leave the place they called home as a result of persecution conflict violence human rights violations or events seriously disturbing public order according to the United Nations High Commission for Refugees This volume presents the concerted efforts of chapter contributors to alleviate the alienation of those who have been displaced and help them to feel at home in the country in which they have sought refuge Chapter contributors highlight their endeavors specifically with Latino Hmong and African immigrants in the United States and Canada as well as with a veritable united nations of immigrant identities in general Endeavors oriented to making immigrants feel at home inevitably raise the vexed question of what it means to be a good member of a society regardless of whether one is a citizen

But I Don't See Color Terry Husband, 2016-07-25 Racism is still very prevalent and pervasive in all aspects of the P 12 educational experience in the United States Far too many teachers and administrators continue to respond to this challenge by applying colorblind perspectives and approaches This edited volume provides a broad and comprehensive critique of colorblindness in various educational contexts In an attempt to advocate for a more color conscious approach to education this book deals with a wide range of issues related to teaching learning curriculum creativity assessment discipline implicit bias and teacher education There are three distinct features that make this book so important and relevant given the current social and racial climate in U S schools today First each chapter in this book draws from a plethora of different theoretical perspectives related to race and racism In this sense readers are equipped with variety of robust theoretical perspectives to better understand this complicated issue of racism in schools Second this book communicates issues of race and racism through multiple voices Unlike other books on race and racism where the central voice is that of a researcher or scholar this book centralizes the voices and perspectives of researchers teachers and teacher educators alike As a result readers are better able to understand issues of race and racism in schools from a more nuanced perspective Finally unlike other books related to race and racism in schools this book provides readers with practical strategies for combating racism in their respective educational contexts

Critical Qualitative Research in Social Education Cameron White,2015-03-01 Critical qualitative research informs social education through a lens that ensures the investigation of issues in education tied to power and privilege ultimately leading to advocacy and activism The concept of critical is increasingly challenged in this age of neoliberal reform nevertheless critical implies questioning investigating and challenging in terms of equity and social justice leading to critical consciousness Freire 1970 While we resist defining social education as hopefully these ideas concepts are fluid the idea stems from a continual analysis and synthesis of critical theory critical pedagogy media and cultural studies social reconstruction social justice and social studies education framed by culturally responsive pedagogy A social education take on critical qualitative research thus suggests multiple truths and perspectives and focuses on questions rather than answers While many have written on qualitative educational research and some have attempted to integrate critical pedagogy and qualitative research few have explored the specific idea of social education and critical qualitative research A major issue is that social education claims that there are no set procedures scripted approaches or narrow definitions as to the possibilities of research endeavors Social education researchers make the process and investigation their own and adapt questions procedures methods and strategies throughout the experience This reflects an ever changing criticality in the bricolage of the research Steinberg 2011 Critical qualitative research and social education are vital for the world of the 21st century The onslaught of neoliberalism corporatization standardization testing and the continuing attack on public schools and educators necessitate critical approaches to teaching and learning along with critical qualitative research in social education Ongoing issues with equity and social justice tied to race ethnicity class orientation age and ability linking to schooling education teaching and learning must be addressed The struggle between unbridled capitalism and democracy warrant these investigations in the 21st century hopefully leading to advocacy and activism

The Future of Civic Education Elizabeth Yeager Washington,Keith C. Barton,2024-10-01 Speaking to the need to move beyond traditional formulations this textbook presents radical visions for transforming civic education in the United States Drawing on the experience of educators and scholars including those rooted in feminist queer abolitionist global and race conscious perspectives this work offers new practical ideas for civic education reform Responding to recent political crises many scholars educators and public commentators have called for a rebirth of civic education but these all are grounded in the premise that the goal of civic education should be to teach students about the U S Constitutional system and how to operate within it This book argues that the U S governmental system including the Constitution is infused with racist and anti democratic premises and procedures It asks How can we seek a new path one that is more democratic more equitable and more humane A diverse range of leading civic educators who are willing not just to push the boundaries of civic education but to operate outside its assumptions altogether explore what future possibilities for civic education might look like and how these innovative ideas could be implemented in the classroom Combining theory with practice The Future of Civic Education will be important reading for those studying or researching in social studies methods social studies issues citizenship and civic education It will also be beneficial to social studies teachers at elementary and secondary levels as well as policymakers and non governmental organizations NGOs

Oliver,1999-03-01 This text is designed to help preservice and in service teachers identify pathways to productive teaching and learning for students from culturally and experientially diverse backgrounds To better serve an increasingly diverse population teachers need to be competent in selecting and developing culturally responsive curricula and instructional approaches that better facilitate learning for all students They must be able to attend to diversity within and across cultural groups and validate students cultural knowledge acquired outside the classroom To provide equitable access to learning they must be able to strategically select or develop instructional approaches that build upon their students learning propensities cognitive schemata experiential backgrounds and perceptions The chapter authors in this text present ways of understanding ones own thinking metacognition and ways of thinking about teaching and learning situations and constructing productive strategies The reader is engaged in Learning about the context in which he or she will practice Understanding key aspects of student s cultural and experiential background and learning preferences Exploring ways to bring these factors together in framing and selecting meaningful curriculum content and learning experiences The volume is organized into three interrelated sections Part I presents two approaches to becoming a competent practitioner Part II offers approaches to developing and using culturally relevant pedagogy Part III addresses curriculum content and design Helpful pedagogical features are included to facilitate its use as a textbook Each of the three main parts begins with an overview that provides an introduction and summary of the main ideas addressed and the relationship among ideas presented by different authors each chapter opens with focus questions and concludes with suggested learning experiences chapter end references may be used to expand the reader s knowledge in specific areas

Corporatism, Social Control, and Cultural Domination in Education: From the Radical Right to Globalization Joel Spring,2012-11-27 Starting with the 1972 publication of his seminal work Education and the Rise of the Corporate State Joel Spring has been documenting and analyzing the politics of knowledge and education

Throughout his work he has explored the attempts to use education to advance the economic and political interests of dominant groups. The general term he uses for the relationship between schools and power is ideological management. His scholarly work first looked at the influence on American schooling of business and economic doctrines embodied in human capital theories and consumerism. The next step in his exploration of the politics of knowledge was to examine these issues in the context of globalization leading to a proposed educational rights amendment to national constitutions and a new paradigm for education both of which might ensure that schools are protected from ideological management by economic and political elites. Spring's indigenous background has strongly shaped his interest in the political and economic goals of schooling, particularly the attempts of those in power to use schools to destroy indigenous languages and cultures. In this collection Spring brings together 10 of his key writings providing an overview not just of his own career but the larger contexts in which it is situated. In the Introduction he reviews the evolution and scope of his work and his earlier arguments and reflects on its central themes which are reflected in the writings selected for this volume. In the World Library of Educationalists international scholars themselves compile career long collections of what they judge to be their finest pieces, extracts from books, key articles, salient research findings, major theoretical and practical contributions so the world can read them in a single manageable volume. Readers will be able to follow the themes and strands of their work and see their contribution to the development of a field as well as the development of the field itself. Contributors to the series include Michael Apple, James A. Banks, Stephen J. Ball, Elliot Eisner, Howard Gardner, John Gilbert, Ivor F. Goodson, Peter Jarvis. We are All Multiculturalists Now Nathan Glazer, 1998. The melting pot is no more. Where not very long ago we sought assimilation we now pursue multiculturalism. Nowhere has this transformation been more evident than in the public schools where a traditional Eurocentric curriculum has yielded to diversity and often to confrontation and confusion. In a book that brings clarity and reason to this highly charged issue, Nathan Glazer explores these sweeping changes. He offers an incisive account of why we all, advocates and skeptics alike, have become multiculturalists and what this means for national unity, civil society, and the education of our youth. Focusing particularly on the impact in public schools, Glazer dissects the four issues uppermost in the minds of people on both sides of the multicultural fence: Whose truth do we recognize in the curriculum? Will an emphasis on ethnic roots undermine or strengthen our national unity in the face of international disorder? Will attention to social injustice past and present increase or decrease civil disharmony and strife? Does a multicultural curriculum enhance learning by engaging students' interest and by raising students' self-esteem, or does it teach irrelevance at best and fantasy at worst? Glazer argues cogently that multiculturalism arose from the failure of mainstream society to assimilate African Americans; anger and frustration at their continuing separation gave black Americans the impetus for rejecting traditions that excluded them. But willingly or not, we are all multiculturalists now. Glazer asserts, and his book gives us the clearest picture yet of what there is to know, to fear, and to ask of ourselves in this new identity. The Wiley International Handbook of
