Melosi,2022-06-07 Water in North American Environmental History offers 25 case studies that explore the range of uses and perceptions of water throughout Canadian Mexican and United States history Water has served a myriad of purposes historically as human sustenance agricultural irrigation sanitation fire protection military defense power generation transportation and much more Water and its uses provide an excellent entrance into the study of humans and the environment not only because water is a vital resource for life but also because water as a medium is so intimately woven into the everyday experiences of humans and into society's economic political and social fabric A

North American perspective is not representative of the world's water use but it is an area with a linked history and many overlapping human and environmental features and concerns. With a continental perspective the book explores many disparate topics without being confined to the history and experiences of just one country. The chapters are short but descriptive and departure points for what they tell us about the human experience in dealing with water and the environmental implications of water use. The text leads students to consider water in relation to society and to the past. The book will be of interest to students of environmental history, geography, and the environmental sciences.

The Exchange
Artist: Jane Kamensky, 2008-01-24. The riveting story of the country's first banking scandal in the first decades of the American republic. This enthralling historical narrative of the birth of speculative capitalism in America opens in the 1790s when financial pioneer turned confidence man Andrew Dexter Jr. created a pyramid scheme founded on real estate speculation and the greed of banks who freely printed the paper money he needed to finance the then tallest building in the United States, the Exchange Coffee House, a 153-room seven-story colossus in downtown Boston. The story of Dexter's rise and eventual collapse offered an object lesson to the rising young nation and presents striking parallels to the subprime mortgage meltdown and looming economic collapse of today.

Bay Cities and Water Politics, Sarah S. Elkind, 1998. Combining insights from urban, western, and environmental history, Elkind examines the ways that people's reactions to their natural surroundings drive both demand for improved public services and political reform. She traces public works development in the Gilded Age and Progressive Era to explain how these programs united each city with its suburban neighbors, creating new political entities and allowing Boston and Oakland to appropriate rural resources and thus overcome the environmental limits to their continued growth and prosperity. She also shows how, when the power of regionalism is turned to urban development, environmental and social costs are sometimes overlooked.

Nature's Bounty, Anthony N. Penna, 2016-07-01. This thorough, clearly organized text focuses on four major environmental categories: forests and land, wildlife and wildlife habitat, water, and drinking water quality and air. Each category is treated historically from the time of exploration and discovery in the seventeenth century to the present. There are also discussions on environmental public policy issues currently in our national debate. The text is integrated throughout with fascinating primary source documents, eyewitness accounts, government reports, and documents, speeches, and congressional testimony which illuminate the material.

Lost Towns of the Swift River Valley: Drowned by the Quabbin, Elena Palladino, 2022-10. In April 1938, Swift River Valley residents held a farewell ball to mark the demise of the quintessential New England town of Enfield and its three smaller neighbors: Greenwich, Dana, and Prescott. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts sacrificed these three towns to build the Quabbin, a massive reservoir of drinking water for residents of Boston. Three prominent residents attended the somber occasion: Marion Andrews Smith was the last surviving member of an important manufacturing family; Willard Doc Segur was the valley's beloved country doctor and town leader; and Edwin Henry Howe was Enfield's postmaster and general store proprietor. They helped build their beloved community for decades only to watch grief stricken as it was destroyed by 400 billion gallons of water Author and historian Elena Palladino recounts the story of these communities as seen through eyes of those who lived there until the end
