Animals in Peril John Arthur Hoyt, 1994 Argues that the theory that endangered species must pay their own way to survive is a political expediency used to justify legalized killing in the name of conservation Science and Stewardship to Protect and Sustain Wilderness Values, 2003 The Seventh World Wilderness Congress met in Port Elizabeth South Africa in 2001 The symposium on science and stewardship to protect and sustain wilderness values was one of several symposia held in conjunction with the Congress The papers contained in this proceedings were presented at this symposium and cover seven topics state of knowledge on protected areas issues in South Africa traditional and ecological values of nature wilderness systems and approaches to protection protection of coastal marine and river lake wilderness spiritual benefits religious beliefs and new stories personal and societal values of wilderness and the role of science education and collaborative planning in wilderness protection and restoration , Science and Stewardship to Protect and Sustain Wilderness Values Alan E. Watson, Janet Sproull, 2003 Environment and Tourism Andrew Holden, 2016-04-25 The global demand for tourism continues to increase as economic growth creates opportunities for its consumption as a lifestyle option across cultures The spatial reach of recreational tourism into remoter environments reflects a desire to reconnect to nature that is partially created by the global trend toward urbanisation At the same time anthropogenic created environmental problems have led us to re evaluate our relationship to nature and the values that are held by the environment This third edition of Environment and Tourism incorporates additional material on environmental philosophies and ontologies of nature and how these influence our understanding of tourism s relationship with the natural environment In an epoch representing a critical juncture for the future well being of the planet based on our relationship to nature the text has been updated to reflect the growth in significance of the interaction between tourism and the natural environment as a part of this discourse It communicates a range of key conceptual debates on the ethics and economics of the consuming nature for tourism and relates these to real world examples whilst evaluating environmental planning and management responses The book seeks to highlight the relevance of the significance of tourism for nature within the framework of society as a system of inter connected places across space and time exploring the relationship of the environments of where tourists come from

with the ones that they travel to The updated features include new chapters on philosophies and constructs of the environment environmental ethics and tourist consumption an extensive range of international case studies used to illustrate the theoretical ideas presented boxes offering bite sized insights and think points designed to encourage students to further engage with the topics discussed Environment and Tourism emphasises a holistic view of the tourism system and how it interacts with nature illustrating the positive and negative effects of this relationship It emphasises how ontologies of the environment influence the planning and management of tourism for natural resource conservation and human development It is an invaluable tool for anyone studying Human Geography Tourism and Environmental Studies as well as for policy makers and consultants working in the field of tourism development

The Exploitation of Mammal Populations V.J. Taylor, N. Dunstone, 2012-12-06 Human exploitation of other mammals has passed through three historical phases distinct in their ecological significance though overlapping in time Initially Homo sapiens was a predator particularly of herbivores but also of fur bearing predators From about 11 000 years ago goats and sheep were domesticated in the Middle East rapidly replacing gazelles and other game as the principal source of meat The principal crops including wheat and barley were taken into agriculture at about the same time and the resulting Neolithic farming culture spread slowly from there over the subsequent 10 500 years In a few places such as Mexico Peru and China this Middle Eastern culture met and merged with agricultural traditions that had made a similar but independent transition These agricultural traditions provided the essential support for the industrial revolution and for a third phase of industrial exploitation of mammals In this chapter these themes are drawn out and their ecological significance is investigated Some of the impacts of humans on other mammals require consideration on a world wide basis but the chapter concentrates parochially on Great Britain What have been the ecological consequences of our exploitation of other mammals

2.2 HISTORICAL PHASES OF EXPLOITATION

2.2.1 Predatory man Our nearest relatives chimpanzees orang utans and gorillas are essentially forest species deriving most of their diet from the fruits of forest trees and the shoots and leaves of plants

Innovation and Tourism Destination Development Henrik Halkier, Marek Kozak, Bo

Svensson, 2017-10-02 Tourism is a central part of regional development strategies in many localities around Europe not just in traditional coastal or mountain resorts but also in areas without a strong track record with regard to visitor economy In a globalising world destinations can no longer take their traditional visitors for granted and escape growing competitive pressures because increasingly experienced specialised and demanding travellers now have a vastly greater number of potential destinations to choose from Both well established and emerging tourist destinations are therefore under pressure to be innovative to increase their attractiveness in the globalising visitor economy This book focuses on the role played by tourist destinations conceived as multi layered and functional governance structures in stimulating or complicating the development of new tourist experiences The complex relationship between firm level and territorial development dynamics is of course by no means confined to tourism development and the book will therefore be of a more general relevance for research into innovation and spatial development dynamics This book was published as a special issue of European Planning Studies

Tourism: New directions and alternative tourism Stephen Williams, 2004 This collection of key articles from the most influential journals and books in the field examines what social scientists mean by the term tourism and what it means to be a tourist Carefully selected and introduced by the editor this material charts the sociological changes that have occurred in tourism and the change from the upper class grand tours of the late nineteenth century to the mass tourism of the present day The collection also assesses the economic impacts of tourism on local economies environmental considerations and whether the growth of tourism is sustainable in a post September 11th world Tourism Critical Concepts in the Social Sciences is an accessible and comprehensive resource designed for academics and scholars researching in tourism globalization and human geography
