Economic Barbarism And Managerialism:

Economic Barbarism and Managerialism David S. Pena, 2001 Challenging the view that managerialism is a form of capitalism and that capitalism has eclipsed socialism Pena shows that the managerial or new class is an exploiting class The work of Thorstein Veblen James Burnham John Kenneth Galbraith and Kevin Phillips he suggests forms a little known century long tradition of reflection on the managerial revolution as well as on the conflux of values and socioeconomic practices that Pena dubs economic barbarism Building on the work of these thinkers he argues that industrial barbarism and the managerial revolution led to the decline of U S capitalism and its replacement by managerialism a form of nationalistic socialism in which educated white collar personnel employed by the state and corporate bureaucracies have become a new exploiting class that receives the bulk of the national wealth Thus managerialism replaced industrial barbarism with a new form of economic barbarism This managerial barbarism has fostered an unequal distribution of wealth that has penalized the middle and lower classes with stagnant or declining incomes growing job insecurity unemployment and underemployment Unless managerialism can find a way out of persistent poverty and declining living wage job opportunities these problems are likely to continue afflicting a sizable portion of the population If managers put an end to economic barbarism they have a chance to create a society characterized by generalized prosperity leisure and opportunity It is more likely however that economic barbarism will continue to be an integral part of managerialism and consequently managerialism will face a sudden social upheaval or a gradual decline based on global military preponderance and financial statecraft and remains reluctant to recognize the realities global economic convergence the age of imperial state hegemony is giving way to a new international order characterized by capitalist sovereignty and competition between regional and transnational concentrations of economic power This title seeks to interrogate the structure of world order by examining leading approaches to globalization and political economy in international relations and international political economy Breaking with the classical school Woodley argues that geopolitics should be understood as a transnational strategic practice employed by powerful state actors which mirrors predatory corporate rivalry for control over global resources and markets reproducing the structural conditions for corporate power through the transnational state form of capital In a period of increasing geopolitical insecurity and economic instability this title provides an authoritative yet accessible commentary on debates on capitalism and globalization in the wake of the financial crisis It is valuable resource for students and scholars seeking to develop a deeper understanding of the historical determinants of the changing dynamics of neoliberal capitalism and their implications for world order
