Bose,2010-10-01 As multilateral agencies social movements and state authorities worldwide struggle to cope with the effects of large scale development projects such as dam building mining oil extraction forest plantations and nature conservation the problem of displacement remains unresolved The crisis of development refugees those forced to relocate not by wars or political conflicts but rather because of development policies programs and projects is becoming increasingly prevalent across the globe While existing studies on development induced displacement have focused on issues such as resettlement and compensation for those displaced this volume seeks to address displacement as a broad and multilayered phenomenon A series of illustrative case studies drawn from around the globe provide causal accounts of why and how displacement occurs what its effects on communities ecosystems and economies look like and the normative or ethical positions held by key actors involved Contributors offer economic political and cultural analyses as well as extensive ethnographic field research to present a picture of displacement that illustrates the depth and the breadth of the issue Development, Environment and Migration S. Irudaya Rajan,Debabrata Baral,2020-05-17 This book brings the discourses around social justice and sustainable development back into focus by looking at India s mining sector and the state s frameworks for economic development The chapters in this volume analyse mining practices in the mineral rich areas of eastern India through various case studies and highlight their immense human and environmental costs This volume critically analyses selected mining projects in India that have resulted in large scale displacements impoverishment and environmental degradation It identifies the gaps in policy its implementation and the lack of safeguards which threaten the socio economic and ecological ways of life and the livelihoods of the local communities Based on documents reports interviews and field observations this book engages with the issues surrounding the mining sector e g land acquisition land use and degradation the politics of compensation policies agitation and social mobilisation health and agriculture livelihood and gender It further provides an assessment of local political economies and offers suggestive frameworks for inclusive growth in this sector This book will be of interest to students and researchers exploring the disciplines of development studies sociology law and governance human ecology and economics Development-induced Displacement Chris de Wet,2005-11-01 Some ten million people worldwide are displaced or resettled every year due to development projects such as the construction of dams irrigation schemes urban development

transport conservation or mining projects The results have usually been very negative for most of those people who have to move as well as for other people in the area such as host populations People are often left socially and institutionally disrupted and economically worse off with the environment also suffering as a result of the introduction of infrastructure and increased crowding in the areas to which people had to move The contributors to this volume argue that there is a complexity and a tension inherent in trying to reconcile enforced displacement of people with the subsequent creation of a socio economically viable and sustainable environment Only when these are squarely confronted will it be possible to adequately deal with the problems and to improve resettlement policies

Nuclear Power, Economic Development Discourse and the Environment Manu V. Mathai, 2013 Nuclear power is often characterized as a green technology Technologies are rarely if ever socially isolated artefacts Instead they materially represent an embodiment of values and priorities Nuclear power is no different It is a product of a particular political economy and the question is whether that political economy can helpfully engage with the challenge of addressing the environmental crisis on a finite inequitable and shared planet For developing countries like India who are presently making infrastructure investments which will have long legacies it is imperative that these investments wrestle with such questions and prove themselves capable of sufficiency greater equality and inclusiveness This book offers a critique of civilian nuclear power as a green energy strategy for India and develops and proposes an alternative synergy for sustainability It situates nuclear power as a socio technical infrastructure embodying a particular development discourse and practice of energy and economic development The book reveals the political economy of this arrangement and examines the latter's ability to respond to the environmental crisis Manu V Mathai argues that the existing overwhelmingly growth focused highly technology centric approach for organizing economic activity is unsustainable and needs to be reformed Within this imperative for change nuclear power in India is found to be and is characterized as an authoritarian technology Based on this political economy critique the book proposes an alternative a synergy of ideas from the fields of development economics energy planning and science technology and society studies

Drug Abuse: Prevention and Treatment Mangai Natarajan,2017-05-15 Ever since the Shanghai convention in 1909 the threat posed to human well being by drug abuse has led countries around the world to take action to deal with their drug problems There are wide variations in the policies pursued but most countries try to reduce both the supply of and the demand for drugs Unfortunately there is little research consensus on the respective merits of these two approaches or about the best ways to pursue them Consequently control and prevention policies are mostly driven by political considerations economic realities and cultural expectations though research has played an important part in formulating and evaluating treatments for drug addiction This volume reviews studies on drug abuse prevention and treatment strategies under five main areas 1 Reducing supply strategies to control the flow of drugs from production to retail distribution 2 Reducing demand prevention of drug use at all stages of involvement and consumption levels 3 Reducing harm promoting situational risk reduction practices for regular users addicts and recreational users 4 Reducing addiction drug treatment options for various groups in various settings and 5 Drug policies and prescriptions focused on debates about prohibition and legalization

The Routledge Companion to Migration, Communication, and Politics Stephen Croucher, Joao Caetano, Elsa Campbell, 2018-12-07 The Routledge Companion to Migration Communication and Politics brings together academics from numerous disciplines to show the legal political communicative theoretical methodological and media implications of migration The collection makes the compelling case that migration does not occur in a vacuum rather it is driven by and reacts to various factors including the political economic and cultural worlds in which individuals live The 25 chapters reveal the complex nature of migration from various angles not only looking at how policy affects migrants but also how individuals and marginalized groups are impacted by such acts In Part I contributors examine migration law debating the role of the state in managing migration flows and investigating existing migration policy Part II offers theories and methods that integrate communication studies political science and law into the study of migration including cultural fusion theory and Gebserian theory Part III looks at how contemporary perceptions of migration and migrants intersect with media representations across media outlets worldwide Finally Part IV offers case studies that present the intricacies of migration within different cultural national and political groups Migration is the key political economic and cultural issue of our time and this companion takes the next step in the debate namely the effects of the how in addition to the how and why Researchers and students of communication politics media and law will find this an invaluable intervention Report Great Britain. East Africa Royal Commission, 1955 Human Rights Year Parekh P.H., 2007 Green Gentrification and Environmental Injustice Heather E. Campbell, Adam Eckerd, Yushim Kim, 2024-09-13 This book argues that given the complex nature of the urban environment we cannot find one optimal solution to reducing environmental injustice in part because there is no singular cause Environmental injustice emerges in particular settings because of the combined and interdependent effects of a variety of different policy and community characteristics The authors argue that addressing these interlinked problems requires an understanding of the clusters of community and contextual factors that combine in a variety of ways to both create problems and imply policy approaches to managing them They argue for the use of complexity informed methods to assist in making public policy choices such as Qualitative Comparative Analysis QCA and Agent based Modeling ABM to enable us to better identify plausible solutions for specific contexts This volume offers a new perspective for strategically managing urban policy that considers the risk of gentrification and gentrification related displacement with the ultimate goal of improving social justice Environmental injustice pollution remediation gentrification and displacement are interlinked problems all of which impinge on social justice in US cities However public policy research and often practice as well has tended to separately consider urban policy issues such as environmental injustice brownfields and other pollution remediation how to redevelop neighborhoods and how to contend with gentrification and displacement In this book the authors take a new perspective to such intertwined urban policy issues using complexity thinking and more importantly complex adaptive systems approaches in order to develop context sensitive policy approaches to managing these ongoing
