Technology Entrepreneurship Natasha Evers, James Cunningham, Thomas Hoholm, 2020-12-12 This second edition of the critically acclaimed core textbook provides students from technology and science based backgrounds with the theoretical knowledge and practical skills required to transform innovative ideas into commercially viable businesses for profit or social ends. Blending theory, policy and practice in a manner that is accessible to readers with little prior knowledge of business commercialisation, it offers a framework for understanding the entrepreneurial process for technological ideas. The book provides students with comprehensive guidance on the specialized field of technopreneurship. It provides the tools and frameworks required for managing commercialising and marketing technological innovation. With real life examples and case studies from a range of countries and industries, it will equip students with the understanding required to successfully launch their product. This text caters for undergraduate and postgraduate students studying technology entrepreneurship modules on engineering science and computing technology programmes. New to this edition: All chapters updated to reflect the evolution of theory and practice in the field. New cases on digital entrepreneurship, growth and scaling. Extended geographical coverage of case studies. Entrepreneurial practices updated to include recent research. Strategic context of business models, business growth and scaling. Digital entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial marketing, organization design and crowdfunding developed and updated.

Transgenics and the Poor Ronald J. Herring, 2013-09-13. Genetic engineering is changing the terrain of development studies. Technologies with unprecedented potential, the capacity to move genes across species, have created widely politicized phenomena: Frankenfoods, GMOs, and The Terminator. En masse, the public has reacted with equanimity or appreciation to genetically engineered pharmaceuticals, beginning with insulin, but transgenics in food and agriculture have raised a globally contentious politics. This book begins with the needs of the poor for income, nutrition, environmental integrity, and evaluates the theory and evidence for contributions from transgenic crops. Social scientists with expertise in regional studies, economics, sociology, agriculture, and political science join biologists to bring specialized knowledge on genuinely new questions created by the genomics revolution: questions of ecological integrity, biodiversity, international trade, the costs and effectiveness of biosafety protocols. The authors collectively conclude that predictions of disaster for the poor from transgenic technology are uninformed by empirical results, rest on misunderstandings of biotechnology, or the poor, or both, or get the science wrong. Yet the triumphalism of pro transgenic forces, however, must be tempered by serious, unanswered questions: much is unknown, but the transgenic genie is out of the bottle. In this much needed book, an emergent empirical literature allows scholars in disciplines ranging from micro biology to economics and political science to assess the potential effects of transgenic organisms on poverty through multiple dynamics of property, yields, prices, biodiversity, environmental integrity, and nutrition.

The Asymmetries of Globalization Pan Yotopoulos, Donato Romano, 2007-01-24. The discourse on globalization has become polarized. Proponents consider globalization as the silver bullet for targeting growth in the world economy and for poor countries specifically, while opponents see it as the poisoned arrow of exploitation and impoverishment of the Third World. Splendidly edited, The Asymmetries of Globalization deals with the what and how, but primarily with why.

globalization has most often negative outcomes for developing countries It breaks new ground in approaching globalization not only as trade commodities but also as trade in positional goods decommodified trade The two novel and munificent forms of post Ricardian decommodified trade trade in services and trade in hard currency in the form of currency substitution are sculpted in the introductory chapter as the foundation of the systematic asymmetries of globalization The analytical approach of introducing positional goods in the form of decommodified trade in the discourse on globalization is original It is also timely in a situation where the tail of trade in services has grown enough to wag the traditional trade in commodities dog of globalization The balance of the chapters in this volume constitute a tapestry of case studies that elaborate and empirically investigate the causes of systematic asymmetries of globalization The book's appeal transcends economics to make it also highly useful to students across the disciplines of sociology and political science especially in the fields of international political economy and the politics of international trade It will certainly enlighten all those working in the general areas of globalization poverty and economic development

Genetically Engineered Crops Iain Taylor, 2007-03-08 Take a closer look at the questions surrounding the long term impact of GE crops Genetically Engineered Crops examines current controversies surrounding the potential health environmental and social impacts of plants produced using molecular biology techniques Educators professionals and practitioners representing a wide range of disciplines

Battling Resistance to Antibiotics and Pesticides Ramanan Laxminarayan, 2010-09-30 The increasing resistance of bacteria to antibiotics and pests to pesticides threatens to undo some of the most remarkable advances made in public health and agriculture during the past century Though the potential consequences of increased antibiotic and pesticide resistance are far reaching regulatory efforts to address the problem are at a very early stage Battling Resistance to Antibiotics and Pesticides moves such discussions forward by presenting cutting edge research and the first comprehensive application of economic tools to analyze how antibiotics and pesticides should be used to maximize their value to society Laxminarayan and his contributors explore lessons from past experiences with resistance especially in agriculture They consider what incentives would be ideal for the individuals who prescribe or apply antibiotics and pesticides and what would be ideal for the firms engaged in developing and producing these products The chapters in this groundbreaking book reflect the fact that efforts to combat resistance will require contributions from a broad range of scholars and professionals representing a broad range of expertise The analysis demonstrates that for all these participants an understanding of economic issues is an essential complement to knowledge of medical or biological factors The book provides economists with an overview of relevant scientific issues as well as a variety of analytical approaches to studying the economics of resistance It offers policymakers detailed analyses of the multiple dimensions of resistance and discusses the future strategies to combat and manage resistance For professionals in medicine public health and agriculture the book translates the economic approaches into usable guidance for daily practice and decisionmaking

Environmental Impact of Genetically Modified Crops Natalie Ferry, A. M. R. Gatehouse, 2009 The genetic modification of crops continues to be the subject of intense debate and opinions are often strongly polarised Environmental Impact of Genetically Modified Crops addresses the major concerns of scientists policy makers environmental lobby groups and the general public regarding this controversial issue from an editorially neutral standpoint Included is a chapter by Bruce Tabashnik on the recent discovery of the first documented case of field evolved resistance to a crop genetically modified to carry the gene for the Bacillus thuringiensis toxin While the main focus is on environmental impact food safety issues for both humans and animals are also considered The book concludes with a discussion on the future of agricultural biotechnology in the context of sustainability natural resource management and future global population and food supply
