Economic growth is simply the rise in workers and their productivity.

We need more workers, but 10,000 Americans are retiring every day.²

Corporations need to reinvest in productivity and the government should look at worthwhile infrastructure projects.

Growth from productivity leads to a higher standard of living. It is a goal everyone should strive to achieve. Unfortunately, growth in productivity has been slowing for decades.

U.S. corporations are holding around $3 trillion overseas to avoid taxes. We need policy to encourage that money to be brought home.

The average age of retirement in the United States.³ Many older Americans just don't have the health to productively work full-time.

Smits, 2011 One of the most discussed questions in social science of the last decade is to what extent differences in economic development among countries can be explained by differing law and institutions According to the legal origins thesis the answer is clear it claims that differences in economic performance are to a large extent dependent on whether a country belongs to the civil law or common law family Others have severely criticised this thesis This volume takes stock of the debate and offers an integrated approach that not only takes into account the insights of economics but also of comparative law and empirics Page 4 of cover
