Marine Fisheries Review ,1990

The Closing of the Frontier John G. Butcher, 2022-07-18 This book is the first on the history of the marine fisheries of Southeast Asia It takes as its central theme the movement of fisheries into new fishing grounds particularly the diverse ecosystems that make up the seas of Southeast Asia This process accelerated between the 1950s and 1970s in what the author calls the great fish race Catches soared as the population of the region grew demand from Japan and North America for shrimps and tuna increased and fishers adopted more efficient ways of locating catching and preserving fish But the great fish race soon brought about the severe depletion of one fish population after another while pollution and the destruction of mangroves and coral reefs degraded fish habitats Today the relentless movement into new fishing grounds has come to an end for there are no new fishing grounds to exploit The frontier of fisheries has closed The challenge now is to exploit the seas in ways that preserve the diversity of marine life while providing the people of the region with a source of food long into the future

The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Economics in Asia Shunsuke Managi,2015-02-11 Problems of climate change biodiversity and air pollution are clearly growing globally but more particularly in Asia because of its economic importance and richness in nature The increasing interest in environmental and resource economics applied in regions of Asia will make this book an outstanding resource to the existing literature particularly in the fields of environmental and resource economics and the integration of applied content in traditional and agricultural development At present there is no single handbook or text on the state of current knowledge in environmental economics in Asia or one which offers a comprehensive guide to students and academics on the subjects of environmental economics research This book will help to fill the gap in the existing literature Collected Reprints ,1993 Shrimp Farming and Mangrove Loss in Thailand Edward Barbier,Suthawan Sathirathai,2004-01-01 Through in depth case studies of local communities in four distinct coastal areas in Southern Thailand the authors are able to assess objectively the underlying economic causes and consequences of

Holding the Line Ian Townsend Gault, Heather Nora Nicol, 2005 This volume contains contributions from twenty four scholars concerning the significance and implications of the world's borderlands in economic political and socio cultural contexts Together these essays explore the changing role of borders in a global world Are borders increasingly irrelevant under conditions of globalization or can a case be made to demonstrate their continuing importance at various levels of spatial activity Situating itself within a growing border literature Holding the Line argues that contemporary borders facilitate parallel processes of globalization and localization of political activity As such the essays adopt a holistic approach to understanding the impact of boundaries on both society and space They demonstrate that any attempt to create a methodological and conceptual framework for the understanding of boundaries must be concerned with the process of bounding rather than simply the means through which the physical lines of separation are delimited and demarcated This approach renders the notion of a borderless world highly problematic because the latter ignores the important and ongoing relationship between the functional role of borders in the bounding process and the symbolic role of borders as imagined social political and economic constructions embedded within a geographical text The changing characteristics of political boundaries during an era of globalization has become a great focus of interdisciplinary study and this book will appeal to scholars of political geography border studies and international relations

Guidelines for the Routine Collection of Capture Fishery Data Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1999-01-01 These guidelines aim to help those who design routine data collection programmes focusing on the relationship between typical questions asked by policy makers and managers and the data required for providing reliable answers Fisheries policy and management objectives particularly under the precautionary approach need to be based upon analyses of reliable data Data are needed to make rational decisions evaluate the fisheries performance in relation to management activities and fulfil regional requirements These objectives are achieved using fishery performance indicators Indicators are used to measure the state of the resource the performance of fishing controls economic efficiency socio economic performance and social continuity The primary factor in choosing what data to collect is the link between the necessary operational biological economic and socio cultural indicators and their associated variables The way in which different data variables are collected needs to be tailored to the structure of the fishery The strategy will be strongly influenced by the budget and personnel available and the degree to which fishers and others co operate The programme must identify which variables should be collected through complete enumeration and which can be sampled Collection methods are influenced by the variable itself the strategy collection point and the skill of the enumerator Once collected fishery data must be stored securely but made easily available for analysis which is achieved through a computer based data management system following the basic data processing principles The implementation of a data collection programme should follow a normal project cycle developing a new legal and institutional framework as appropriate Abstract

The Environment in Asia Pacific Harbours Eric Wolanski, 2006-07-30 In the USA Asia and Europe as well as worldwide trade is growing rapidly and much of it depends on shipping This is leading to the development of mega cities and mega harbours The marine environment is degrading Is increasing trade ecologically sustainable This book addresses this question through harbours in the Asia Pacific region including Tokyo Bay the Pearl Estuary Hong Kong Shanghai Ho Chi Minh City Manila Bay Jakarta Bay Bangkok Singapore Klang Pearl Harbour and Darwin Much of the world trade goes through these harbours This book demonstrates through the writing of eminent scientists in each of these countries the oceanography and ecosystem science necessary to understand how these urbanised marine ecosystems function It offers science based solutions to achieve ecologically sustainable development These lessons are important not only for the Asia Pacific Region including Australia but also worldwide The book is a wake up call that all the countries in the Asia Pacific are facing the same serious socio economic and environmental problems with varying scales Each of these countries addresses these issues differently This book shows that we have much to learn from each other to ensure that development does not need to be at the cost of the environment I commend this book for its comprehensive coverage of the links between oceanography ecosystem processes and socio economic issues
