Understanding Elder Abuse in Minority Populations Toshio Tatara, 2021-10-30 First published in 1999 Research on elder abuse in the United States has made great strides in recent years As a result we have been able to define and discover the causes of elder abuse design tools to assess the risk of abuse develop and implement treatment and prevention strategies and evaluate programs for victims and perpetrators However this research has been derived from studies whose subjects were primarily Caucasian This is not because elder abuse does not take place in minority communities but rather because researchers wanted first to study the issue in its broadest sense

Old Age Abuse Mervyn Eastman, Age Concern England (Organization), 2013-11-11 Age Concern always seeks to be at the forefront in raising issues of importance as part of our continuing fight to improve the quality of life of older people To this end we are privileged in being able to draw on the skills of people with the commitment expertise and enthusiasm to press for much needed change When some years ago we published a book by Mervyn Eastman on old age abuse the subject was largely unrecognized He played a pioneering role in drawing attention to this difficult and sensitive topic classifying the various types of abuse analysing their causes their tragic effects and the different contexts in which they were likely to occur Earlier when I joined Age Concern I had been struck by the paucity of knowledge of old age abuse My previous work with children and young people provided me with stark reminders of how much more developed both policy and practice were in dealing with the abuse of children Even in that field there was still much to learn and subsequent legislation policy guidelines and codes of practice have taken us further down the road by constructing clear lines of accountability and by protecting and representing children at risk by helping potential abusers and developing practice that avoids punishing victims through removing them from their homes

Professional Care for the Elderly Mentally Ill Liz Matthew, 2013-11-11 Services to older people with mental health problems have gone through radical change in recent years Legislation has had a profound effect by dictating how care to older people is delivered both within hospital and within the community The recent government agenda emphasizes cost effectiveness value for money and accountability This too is an important driving force in re evaluating the service although not everyone would agree with many of the proposed strategies and there are clearly different views as to the appropriateness of many of the services One thing is certain however the move towards interdisciplinary working is here to stay Not all change has been led by legislation and many innovations have been founded in the day to day practices in the care of older people with mental health problems A service of course does not become integrated merely by imposing joint working on a number of professionally based disciplines and in many ways this may not be desirable At its worst it produces duplication where people from different background are all doing the same job This is not the intention of joint working instead it should attempt to improve the quality of service by a rich mix of skills and experience from a number of related disciplines International Perspectives on Elder Abuse Amanda Phelan,2013-03-12

Bellack,Michel Hersen,R.L. Morrison,Vincent B. Van Hasselt,2013-06-29 In the last decade there has been heightened clinical and investigative activity in the area of family violence This of course is partly attributable to recent surveys showing a high incidence of family violence in the United States For example there are indications that nearly 30% of married women in this country are victims of physical abuse by spouses at some point in their marriage Further FBI statistics show that approximately 13% of all homicides are husband wife killings Moreover it has been projected that such figures are likely to increase over the next several years Consistent with these trends funding of family violence research by both federal and private agencies has increased Indeed federal agencies such as the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice have provided considerable support for work in this area In addition family violence particularly wifebattering child abuse and sexual abuse of children has been the focus of media attention at the national level and has generated intensive interest in both lay and professional publications Moreover there have been several recent governmental hearings and investigations regarding the prevalence of these problems
