

The background image is a close-up, slightly blurred photograph of marine engine components. It features several circular gauges with white faces and black or red markings. One gauge on the right has a red needle and markings up to 1200. Another gauge in the center has a black needle and markings up to 100. The gauges are connected to various metal pipes, hoses, and fittings, some of which are painted blue. The overall scene suggests a technical or industrial environment related to marine engineering.
