

Multistakeholder platforms

- Stakeholders with interests in water decisions need to work together to understand their differences and search for solutions that each can accept
- Different stakeholders are identified and, usually through representatives, invited and assisted to interact in a deliberative forum that focuses on:
 - sharing knowledge and perspectives
 - generating and examining options
 - informing and shaping negotiations and decisions
- The purpose and scope of an MSP must be clear, with appropriate scales and levels for deliberation and analysis (for example watershed versus river basin, or local district versus national).
- MSPs expand representation and participation of stakeholders in governance. They encourage learning and greater understanding of interdependencies among stakeholders and ways of resolving contested issues
- By providing a pathway for deliberation, MSPs can lead to better decisions and water agreements that can be more successfully implemented.

Public Works, Public Wealth Everett Ehrlich,2005-11-21 America s infrastructure policy is at a crossroads caught between rising demands and outdated programs to address them Airports highways ports and harbors are severely congested Drinking water and wastewater facilities bridges dams and school buildings are in poor condition The cost of these failures is great time is lost to delay commerce is impeded business productivity is compromised and lives are threatened Yet federal investment in public infrastructure has decreased steadily as a share of both the economy and federal spending over the past two decades The risk of under investment is only part of the equation Of equal or greater concern is the prospect that the investments we make are not the right ones Our nation s infrastructure policy favors new construction even when maintenance renovation and improved management offer better responses to the problem Infrastructure policy favors politics over sound investment principles And as our programs fail to change in response to new realities additional spending will be progressively less able to solve our infrastructure problems This report outlines the considerations involved in rethinking infrastructure policy the types of infrastructure needed the technology for providing it and the sophistication of the various actors involved It makes a case for folding public school buildings into the national infrastructure policy framework Finally the report presents a plan to restructure the federal role in infrastructure provision that would improve returns on public investment and strengthen America s economic foundations for the twenty first century
