Helen Williams And The French Revolution:

Helen Williams and the French Revolution Helen Maria Williams, 1996 Helen Williams and the French Revolution Helen Maria Williams, 1996 Provides a first person account of the author's experiences in Paris during the Reign of Terror from May 1793 to July 1794 when the government led by Robespierre terrorized the populace with summary arrests and executions An Eye-witness Account of the French Revolution by Helen Maria Williams Helen Maria Williams, 1997 Helen Maria Williams 1761-1827 English poet, novelist and chronicler of the French Revolution here vividly recounts her experiences in France during the Terror. Arrested in the fall of 1793, Williams records with passion and sorrow the degeneration of the Revolution into chaos and murder. She sketches the colorful personalities of her friends and acquaintances: Madame Roland, Charlotte Corday, Georges Jacques Danton, and enemies Maximilien Robespierre, Louis Antoine de St Just, Jean Paul Marat, while all the time displaying her enduring optimism that Revolution would eventually succeed in liberty and justice for people everywhere Helen Maria Williams and the Age of Revolution Deborah Kennedy, 2002 Eventually settling in Paris with her mother and two sisters, Williams hosted a Parisian salon that was frequented by many of Europe's most important politicians, artists, writers, and thinkers including J. P. Brissot, Madame Roland, Mary Wollstonecraft, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, and Alexander von Humboldt British Women Writers and the French Revolution A. Craciun, 2005-08-01 British Women Writers and the French Revolution provides an overview of a wide range of British women's writings on the French Revolution from writers sympathetic to the Revolution like Mary Robinson, Helen Maria Williams, and Charlotte Smith to anti-revolutionary writers like Hannah More and Jane West. Based on new research in French and British archives and libraries, the book uncovers little-known writings by British women and argues that these writers developed a distinct antinationalism in some cases, even a feminist cosmopolitanism in their responses to the European revolutionary crisis Refugee Nuns, the French Revolution, and British Literature and Culture Tonya J. Moutray, 2016-03-22 In eighteenth-century literature, negative representations of Catholic nuns and convents were pervasive. Yet during the politico-religious crises initiated by the French Revolution, a striking literary shift took place as British writers championed the cause of nuns, lauded their socially relevant work, and addressed the attraction of the convent for British women. Interactions with Catholic religious, including priests and nuns, Tonya J. Moutray argues, motivated writers including Hester Thrale Piozzi, Helen Maria Williams, and Charlotte Smith to reevaluate the historical and contemporary utility of religious refugees. Beyond an analysis of literary texts, Moutray's study also examines nuns' personal and collective narratives as well as news coverage of their arrival to England, enabling a nuanced investigation of a range of issues including nuns' displacement and imprisonment in France, their rhetorical and practical strategies to resist authorities' representations of refugee migration to and resettlement in England, relationships with benefactors and locals, and the legal status of English nuns and convents in England, including their work in recruitment and education. Moutray shows how writers and the media negotiated the multivalent figure of the nun during the 1790s shaping British perceptions of nuns and convents during a time critical to their survival

Culley, 2014-07-22 British Women's Life Writing 1760 1840 brings together for the first time a wide range of print and manuscript sources to demonstrate women's innovative approach to self representation It examines canonical writers such as Mary Wollstonecraft Mary Robinson and Helen Maria Williams amongst others

Objects of Liberty Pamela Buck, 2024-03-15 Objects of Liberty explores the prevalence of souvenirs in British women's writing during the French Revolution and Napoleonic era It argues that women writers employed the material and memorial object of the souvenir to circulate revolutionary ideas and engage in the masculine realm of political debate While souvenir collecting was a standard practice of privileged men on the eighteenth century Grand Tour women began to partake in this endeavor as political events in France heightened interest in travel to the Continent Looking at travel accounts by Helen Maria Williams Mary Wollstonecraft Catherine and Martha Wilmot Charlotte Eaton and Mary Shelley this study reveals how they used souvenirs to affect political thought in Britain and contribute to conversations about individual and national identity At a time when gendered beliefs precluded women from full citizenship they used souvenirs to redefine themselves as legitimate political actors Objects of Liberty is a story about the ways that women established political power and agency through material culture

same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature

Literature as Translation Translation as Literature explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding The metaphor or motif of translation is the touchstone of this volume which looks at how an expanded idea of translation sheds light not just on features of literary composition and reception but also on modes of intercultural communication at a time when the pressures of globalization threaten local cultures with extinction The theory of ethical translation that has emerged in this context which fosters the practice of preserving the foreignness of the text at the risk of its misunderstanding bears relevance beyond current debates about world literature to the framing of contemporary social issues by dominant discourses like medicine as one contributor's study of the growing autism rights movement reveals The systematizing imperatives of translation that forcibly assimilate the foreign to the familiar like the systematizing imperatives of globalization are resisted in acts of creative understanding in which the particular or different finds sanctuary The overlooked role that the foreign word plays in the discourses that constitute subjectivity and national culture comes to light across the variegated concerns of this volume Contributions range from case studies of the emancipatory role translation has played in various historical and cultural contexts to the study of specific literary works that understand their own aesthetic processes and the interpretive and communicative processes of meaning more generally as forms of translation Several contributors including the English translators of Roberto Bolaño and Hans Blumenberg were prompted in their reflections on the creative and interpretive process of translation by their own accomplished work as translators All are animated by the conviction that translation whether regarded as the creative act of understanding of one culture by another as the agent of political and social transformation as the source of new truths in foreign linguistic environments and not just the bearer of established ones or as the limit of conceptuality outlined in the silhouette of the untranslatable is a creative cultural force of the first importance
