Helix John Steffler, 2002 For the last twenty years John Steffler has written poems of profound philosophical curiosity grounded in the landscapes of Newfoundland Southern Ontario Greece and New Zealand In Helix Steffler's fifth book of poetry we see the full result of those travels a lyricism distinguished by its scrupulous phrasing thrilling evocativeness and deep timbred music Helix presents arresting new work together with a selection from Steffler's three previous much praised volumes The Grey Islands The Wreckage of Play and That Night We Were Ravenous This collection is maybe the most persuasive argument yet for considering Steffler in Don McKay's words Canada's most sensuously passionate writer The Cambridge Guide to Women's Writing in English Lorna Sage, 1999-09-30 This Guide aims to consolidate and epitomise the re-reading of women's writing that has gone on in the last twenty five years This is an opportunity for stock taking a timely project when so much writing has been rediscovered reclaimed and republished There are entries on writers on individual texts and on general terms genres and movements all printed in a single alphabetical sequence The earliest written documents in medieval English the visionary writings of Julian of Norwich and Margery Kempe are covered in an historical and geographical sweep that takes us up to the present day The book reflects the spread of literacy the history of colonisation and the development of post colonial cultures using and changing the English language The entries are written by contributors from all the countries covered The result is a work of reference with a unique feeling for the vitality wealth and diversity of women's writing The Griffin Poetry Prize 2011 Anthology Tim Lilburn, 2012-10-02 The best books of poetry published in English internationally and in Canada are honoured annually with the Griffin Poetry Prize one of the world's richest and most prestigious literary awards This edition of the anthology includes poems from each of the books shortlisted in both the Canadian and international categories for 2011 and are selected and introduced by judges Tim Lilburn Colm Toibin and Chase Twichell Royalties from the sales of the anthologies are donated to UNESCO's World Poetry Day created to support linguistic diversity through poetic expression and to offer endangered languages the opportunity to be heard in their communities And Yet John Steffler, 2020-09-01 A former Poet Laureate of Canada and finalist for the Griffin Poetry Prize returns with a wide ranging new collection of poems CBC Best Canadian Poetry of 2020 In John Steffler's luminous collection And Yet dreams memory and desire are forms of wilderness that burst into our daily lives inspiring us to see ourselves and the world anew Exuberant powerful even prescient the poems confront the unknown and unexpected around and within us and call up our impulse to resist certainty and finality The flimsiest shelter might seem best a trail guide's house is revealed as a forest beyond names What is outside might be most desired a suit of clothes gazing into a mirror longs to become an iguana In the title poem a road weary traveller comes in sight of the longed for home yet at the last minute turns away Restless in their own language the poems muster the impact of direct sensory experience and remind us what it means to live closer to the physical world At times their attenuated forms acquire the anxious beauty of Giacometti

sculptures Our capacity for surprising change these poems suggest is both a cause for caution and a reason to hope that we can reinvent ourselves and transform our destructive technological culture

That Night We Were Ravenous John Steffler, 2009-02-24 A beautiful new edition of the award winning collection from Canada's new Poet Laureate Newfoundland born poet John Steffler is one of this country's most accomplished writers Recently named Canada's national poet he is the author of The Grey Islands poems and the award winning novel The Afterlife of George Cartwright both of which have become classics in our time That Night We Were Ravenous is Steffler's most recent book of new poetry In this extraordinary gathering of poems he follows the trajectory of some of his earlier work with poems situated in Newfoundland's coves on trails and in communities that testify to the pure bite and edge of this terrain Other poems in the later sections of the book more intimate are set in Southern Ontario and Greece This is poetry that captures the imagination and activates the heart Simply by looking through Steffler's eyes we come away with an enlarged sense of the natural world on the one hand and of our own humanity on the other

The Art of Translating Poetry Burton Raffel,1988-01-01 This book by a well known translator and critic is divided into two parts the first dealing with the linguistic and other more technical aspects of translating poetry the second involved with more practice oriented matters The chapters in Part One examine the specific constraints of language and the unavoidable linguistic bases of translation the constraints of specific languages forms and genres and prosody and comparative prosody Part Two looks at the subjective element in translation collaborative translation the translation of oral poetry and the translator s responsibility Languages discussed include Indonesian Japanese Chinese Old and Middle English French German Spanish Italian Persian Russian Latin and Greek The book argues inter alia that literal translation is impossible that no translation can fully create the original but that good literary translation can create a usable approximation that translation is secondary not only to the original work being translated but also to the linguistic and literary nature of the language being translated into that the literary translator s primary responsibility is to the work he is translating that there is nothing ever definitive about any translation that the poetry translator must be a poet and poems should not be translated into prose and that there must be a subjective identification between translator and translated work This is the first attempt to systematize linguistic information about the translation of poetry It is also the first book to range widely over the languages and literatures of the past and the present and European and Asian languages and literatures as well Raffel is the first author to combine in one study linguistic and scholarly knowledge and extensive experience of translation

Letters from Wales Sam Adams,2023-04-07 Letters from Wales stands alone as an invaluable guide to Welsh writing Sam Young Wales Arts Review In these columns as impressive for their depth as they are for their intellectual breadth Adams analyses the work of acclaimed Welsh writers with scholarly panache Joshua Rees Buzz Magazine illuminating and entertaining Jon Gower Nation Cymru Since 1996 Sam Adams's Letter from Wales column has been appearing in PN Review one of the most highly regarded UK poetry magazines offering insight and appreciation of Welsh writing culture and history This landmark volume collects these letters a quarter century of work and offers one of the most unique independent and passionate critical voices on the writing and cultural output of Wales during this period Here you will find erudite appreciations of the work of a wide range of recent and contemporary Welsh writers from Gillian Clarke to Roland Mathias RS Thomas to Rhian Edwards Alongside this Adams offers us lyric essays to Welsh history and clear-eyed examinations of the institutions of Welsh culture Collected for the first time in this volume the letters are among the most significant and sustained attempts during this period to present Welsh writing to an audience throughout the UK and beyond

Ezra Pound J. J. Wilhelm, 2010-11-01 This third and final volume of Wilhelm's life of Ezra Pound commences with Pound's departure from Paris at the height of his writing career for Italy where he hoped to find a quieter life and it takes him to his death in 1972 It tells how he settled in Rapallo and soon found Mussolini's fascism to be amenable to his own political and economic ideas especially during the dark days of the Great Depression As Italy girded itself for World War II Pound was almost haphazardly drawn into the web and he foolishly agreed to broadcast on Radio Rome for the Duce even after the bombing of Pearl Harbor When Italy fell to the Allies Pound was put first into a dreadful American detention camp at Pisa and then was flown to Washington to be tried for treason He escaped conviction on grounds of insanity but he was then remanded to St Elizabeths Hospital where he languished for twelve years Despite the incarcerations Pound produced during this time some of his most magnificent poetry including The Pisan Cantos and numerous excellent translations from the Chinese and Greek He also heavily influenced an entire generation of poets ranging from Robert Lowell to Allen Ginsberg With the help of Archibald MacLeish and Robert Frost Pound was eventually freed in 1958 He returned to Italy where he lived for a time with his wife and daughter During the final years of his life he eventually returned to live with his aged lover Olga Rudge in Venice and Rapallo He died in Venice in 1972 and is buried next to Igor Stravinsky whose work his own strongly resembles since they both fought for liberation from traditional forms

By the Light of a Neon Moon Janet Lowery, 2019-03-28 This collection offers memories of love found and of love lost There are verses about line dancing and mechanical bulls crusty bartenders and jukeboxes whining out two stepping songs full of pedal steel guitar And of course the collection won't be complete without a few crying in your beer poems too
