European Neogene Mammal Chronology:

European Neogene Mammal Chronology Everett H. Lindsay, Volker Fahlbusch, Pierre Mein, 2013-06-29 During the last 20 years great progress has been achieved in our understanding of both earth history and vertebrate evolution The result is that climatic tectonic events in earth history can now be placed in a more precise and global time frame that permit their evaluation as abiotic causal factors which might trigger extinction and dispersal events in vertebrate history Great strides have also been made in genetics and cell biology providing new insight into phylogenetic relationships among many vertebrates These new data along with data on chronologic resolution of earth history provide tests of previous interpretations regarding ancestral descendant relationships based solely on the fossil record It is fitting and proper that a volume on European Neogene mammal chronology is produced at this time to ensure that new interpretations of vertebrate evolution and chronology are based on the most accurate and current data Vertebrate paleontologists believe that the fossil record is the only secure data for measuring the actual course and tempo of vertebrate evolution Knowledge of the fossil record must keep pace with advances in other areas of science so that inferences on vertebrate evolution are accurate and meaningful

Evolution of Tertiary Mammals of North America: Volume 1, Terrestrial Carnivores, Ungulates, and Ungulate Like Mammals Christine M. Janis, Kathleen M. Scott, Louis L. Jacobs, 1998-05-28 This book is designed as a source and reference for people interested in the history and fossil record of North American tertiary mammals Each chapter covers a different family or order and includes information on anatomical features systematics the distribution of the genera and species at different fossil localities and a discussion of their paleobiology Many of these groups have never been covered in this fashion before

Evolution of Cenozoic Land Mammal Faunas and Ecosystems Isaac Casanovas-Vilar, Lars W. van den Hoek Ostende, Christine M. Janis, Juha Saarinen, 2023-08-08 This volume presents an array of different case studies which take as primary material data sourced from the NOW New and Old Worlds database of fossil mammals The NOW database was one of the very first large paleobiological databases and since 1996 it has been expanded from including mainly Neogene European land mammals to cover the entire Cenozoic at a global scale In the last two decades the number of works that are based in the use of huge databases to explore ecological and evolutionary questions has increased exponentially and even though the importance of big data in paleobiological research has been outlined in selected chapters of general works no volume has appeared before this one which solely focuses on the databases as a primary source in reconstructing the past The purpose of this book is to provide an illustrative volume showing the importance of big data in paleobiological research and presenting a broad array of unpublished examples and case studies The book is mainly aimed to professional palaeobiologists working with Cenozoic land mammals but the scope of the book is broad enough to fit the interest for evolutionary biologists paleoclimatologists and paleoecologists The volume is divided in four parts The first part includes two chapters on the development of large paleobiological databases providing a first hand account on the logic and the functioning of these databases This is a much needed perspective which is ignored by most researchers and users of such databases and even if centered in the NOW database the lessons that can be learned from this part can be extended to other examples After this introductory part the body of the book follows and is divided into three parts patterns in regional faunas large scale patterns and processes and ecological biogeographical and evolutionary patterns of key taxa Each chapter is written by well known specialists in the field with some participation of members of the NOW advisory board The array of selected mammal taxa ranges from carnivores equids ruminants and rodents to the genus Homo The topics studied also include the diversification and radiation of major clades large scale paleobiogeographical patterns the evolution of ecomorphological patterns and paleobiological problems such as evolution of body size or species longevity In most cases the results are discussed in relation to protracted environmental or paleogeographic changes

Late Cretaceous and Cenozoic Mammals of North America Michael O. Woodburne, 2004 This book places into modern context the information by which North American mammalian paleontologists recognize divide calibrate and discuss intervals of mammalian evolution known as North American Land Mammal Ages It incorporates new information on the systematic biology of the fossil record and utilizes the many recent advances in geochronologic methods and their results The book describes the increasingly highly resolved stratigraphy into which all available temporally significant data and applications are integrated Extensive temporal coverage includes the Lancia part of the Late Cretaceous and geographical coverage includes information from Mexico an integral part of the North American fauna past and present

Wiley-Blackwell Encyclopedia of Human Evolution Bernard Wood, 2011-03-31 This comprehensive A to Z encyclopedia provides extensive coverage of important scientific terms related to improving our understanding of how we evolved Specifically the 5 000 entries in this two volume set cover evidence and methods used to investigate the relationships among the living great apes evidence about what makes the behavior of modern humans distinctive and evidence about the evolutionary history of that distinctiveness as well as information about modern methods used to trace the recent evolutionary history of modern human populations This text provides a resource for everyone studying the emergence of Homo sapiens Visit the companion site <http://www.woodhumanevolution.com> target _blank to browse additional references and updates from this comprehensive encyclopedia

Geology and Paleontology of the Miocene Sinap Formation, Turkey Mikael Fortelius, 2003 The Sinap Formation in central Turkey near the city of Ankara preserves a rich record of mammalian evolution from about 15 to 5 million years ago and is one of the few sites in this region that also has fossil apes It is unique among other fossil localities from Europe to Western Asia in that it has a thick stratigraphic section and preserves a long record of geological time The authors have been able to piece together a detailed record of faunal change and by adding paleomagnetic and radiometric dating techniques have produced a chronostratigraphy for the Formation Because of the dual importance of the rich record of the fossils and the dating of the sediments the editors have been able to attract some of the leading authorities on Eurasian Neogene paleontology and geology to contribute to this reference work The results from the Sinap Formation will be the template against which other sites from Europe to Asia are compared

Colobine Monkeys Glyn Davies, John Oates, 1994-11-24 Colobine monkeys have a unique digestive system analagous to that of ruminants which allows them to exploit foliage as a food source This gives them a niche in Old World forests where they are often the only abundant medium sized arboreal folivorous mammal From a possible Miocene origin Colobine monkeys have radiated into a wide variety of forms inhabiting a range of tropical woodlands in Africa and Asia Most of the extant species have been subject to long term field studies but until this book no synthesis of work on this group has been available The central theme of is that of adaptive radiation showing how the special features of colobine anatomy interacted with a range of ecosystems to produce the distinctive species of today The book discusses parallels with other mammalian groups and will be of relevance to workers in evolutionary ecology primatology and tropical ecology

Senèze: Life in Central France Around Two Million Years Ago Eric Delson, Martine Faure, Claude Guérin, 2025-04-09 The paleontological site of Sen ze Haute Loire central France was discovered in 1892 inside a volcanic crater For over 40 years local peasant Pierre Philis collected fossils and sold them to French and Swiss museums The site became world famous for its well preserved skeletons of ungulates and carnivores as well as rare but well preserved remains of primates and other mammals It is considered the reference fauna for the late Villafranchian and MNQ 18 biochronological units of European mammalian evolution but the lack of provenance data made modern research difficult From 2000 2006 the multidisciplinary Franco American Sen ze Research Project undertook five seasons of major fieldwork with the goals of clarifying the age stratigraphy and taphonomy of Sen ze as well as finding additional remains especially of the less well known taxa In this volume following a history of study and summary of the new fieldwork four geological chapters consider field methods stratigraphy volcanology and dating Combining argon argon ages and paleomagnetic calibration the newly recovered fossils are shown to date between 2 20 and 2 08 Ma with concentrations ca 2 20 2 18 and 2 10 2 08 Ma significantly older than previously thought Chapters on palynology ichthyology and ornithology are followed by eight chapters on the fossil mammals The chapter on biochronology places Sen ze among other sites at the start of MNQ 18 which is estimated to end ca 1 7 Ma Of some 2200 specimens known from the site over half are cervids with bovids rhinocerotids and equids far behind According to data from palynology and the habitat preferences of the more common mammals the paleoenvironment around the Sen ze maar would have included forest woodland and grassland perhaps in a warmer and moister climate than today Taphonomic studies revealed that bones often rested a long time under water lacked any indication of carnivore attack and often displayed pathologies in their joints It is likely that most of the associated skeletons were preserved undisturbed after large mammals fell into the paleolake and drowned without being able to climb out This book responds to the long held desire of later Cenozoic paleontologists to see a modern study of a site recognized worldwide as a biochronologic reference for the Plio Pleistocene Our study required renewed fieldwork using up to date

techniques of topography sedimentology stratigraphy geochronology and taphonomy The systematic paleontology chapters are based on re study of the entire body of Sen ze fossils collected during more than a century of research The volume will be of interest to paleontologists especially those concerned with the evolution of the European fauna and with the taxa studied as well as with paleoenvironmental reconstruction and biogeography It will also be of value to mammalogists interested in analyses of near modern taxa and to paleoanthropologists archaeologists and taphonomists interested in the methods utilized and the role of Sen ze as a comparative standard for a site of this age without human intervention It will surely be an essential reference for all those who want to know more about Life in Central France Around Two Million Years Ago
