Agricultural public expenditures, sector performance, and welfare in Nigeria: A state-level analysis Mavrotas, George, Mogues, Tewodaj, Oyeyemi, Motunrayo, Smart, Jenny, Xiong, Zhe, 2018-12-10 Building on the work of earlier studies that looked at trends in and returns to federal public expenditures on agriculture in Nigeria this paper explores spending patterns at the sub national state level over a nine year period as well as trends in agricultural and economic performance and indicators of household welfare Our examination focuses on two groupings of states the full 37 state units of Nigeria the 36 states plus the Federal Capital Territory Abuja and the seven states that are the focus in Nigeria of the Global Food Security Strategy GFSS of the United States Agency for International Development Sub national agricultural spending as a share of aggregate agricultural spending in Nigeria is large given the stronger role for sub national governments in agriculture than is the case in other sectors However we find that the share of state level expenditures on agriculture as a share of aggregate state level expenditures is still relatively low an average of 3.86 percent over the period 2007 to 2015 While the prioritization of agriculture spending varies greatly year by year the variation over time does not have a discernible long run upwards or downwards trend We also find that agricultural expenditures are more capital intensive than are overall public expenditures at state level but that capital expenditures as a share of total agriculture spending has decline over the last decade as is the case overall in Nigeria s industrial sectors We conclude that efforts to strengthen state level agricultural spending in Nigeria merits greater attention while putting in place measures to ensure improved effectiveness in any such spending

Public Finance and Economic Growth in Developing Countries Stephen Peterson,2015-04-24 Public finance is crucial to a country s economic growth yet successful reform of public finances has been rare Ethiopia is an example of a country that undertook comprehensive reform of its core financial systems independent of the IMF and the World Bank and successfully transformed itself into one of the fastest growing economies in Africa With Ethiopia s twelve year reform as its guiding case study this book presents new analytical frameworks to help governments develop better financial reforms It shows in detail how four core financial systems budgeting accounting planning and financial information systems can be reformed One of the principal findings presented is that governments must establish basic public financial administration before moving to more sophisticated public financial management Other key findings include the identification of four strategies of reform recognize improve change and sustain the centrality of ongoing learning to the process of reform and the importance of government ownership of reform This book will be of interest to researchers and policymakers concerned with public finance developmental economics and African studies Capacity Building in Africa World Bank,2005-01-01 African countries need to improve the performance of their public sectors if they are going to achieve their goals of growth poverty reduction and the provision of better services for their citizens Between 1995 and 2004 the Bank provided some 9 billion in lending and close to 900 million in grants and administrative budget to support public sector capacity building in Africa This evaluation assesses Bank support for public sector capacity building in Africa over these past 10 years It is based on six country studies assessments of country strategies and operations across the Region and review of the work of the World Bank Institute the Institutional Development Fund and the Bank supported African Capacity Building Foundation Realizing the Full Potential of Social Safety Nets in Africa Kathleen Beegle,Aline Coudouel,Emma Monsalve,2018-07-02 Poverty remains a pervasive and complex phenomenon in Sub Saharan Africa Part of the agenda in recent years to tackle poverty in Africa has been the launching of social safety nets programs All countries have now deployed safety net interventions as part of their core development programs The number of programs has skyrocketed since the mid 2000s though many programs remain limited in size This shift in social policy reflects the progressive evolution in the understanding of the role that social safety nets can play in the fight against poverty and vulnerability and more generally in the human capital and growth agenda Evidence on their impacts on equity resilience and opportunity is growing and makes a foundational case for investments in safety nets as a major component of national development plans For this potential to be realized however safety net programs need to be significantly scaled up Such scaling up will involve a series of technical considerations to identify the parameters tools and processes that can deliver maximum benefits to the poor and vulnerable However in addition to technical considerations and at least as importantly this report argues that a series of decisive shifts need to occur in three other critical spheres political institutional and fiscal First the political processes that shape the extent and nature of social policy need to be recognized by stimulating political appetite for safety nets choosing politically smart parameters and harnessing the political impacts of safety nets to promote their sustainability Second the anchoring of safety net programs in institutional arrangements related to the overarching policy framework for safety nets the functions of policy and coordination as well as program management and implementation is particularly important as programs expand and are increasingly implemented through national channels And third in most countries the level and predictability of resources devoted to the sector needs to increase for safety nets to reach the desired scale through increased efficiency increased volumes and new sources of financing and greater ability to effectively respond to shocks This report highlights the implications which political institutional and fiscal aspects have for the choice and design of programs Fundamentally it argues that these considerations are critical to ensure the successful scaling up of social safety nets in Africa and that ignoring them could lead to technically sound but practically impossible choices and designs Public Expenditure Management in Francophone Africa Mr.Yaya Moussa,2004-03-01 There are strong similarities between the French and French inspired African PEM systems in terms of the legal setting rules and procedures However there are differences in practice particularly in accounting and reporting audit and external control Among the African countries themselves there are many common features but also marked differences in audit and external control Rent-Seeking, Institutions and Reforms in Africa Pius Fischer,2007-12-03 This book identifies rent seeking behaviour as one of the main causes of poor economic performance observed among other places in many countries of Africa Rent seeking describes the ability to capture incomes without producing output or making a productive contribution Since rent seekers are often an integral part of an ailing economy and resist the adoption of reforms understanding and anticipating rent seeking behaviour is crucial for designing more adequate and effective policy reforms Following a comprehensive theoretical elaboration of the causes properties and consequences of rents and rent seeking strategies in the context of economic reforms and development cooperation this book presents a detailed case study on rent seeking within the civil service parastatal sector and business community It demonstrates how rent seekers in Tanzania have systematically delayed or undermined reforms such as tax reforms trade liberalisation privatisation or any reforms that aim to restrain corruption and embezzlement The case study quantifies and evaluates the rent seeking behaviour of more than 300 parastatal companies considering their profits and losses the quality and timeliness of their accounting and the magnitude of support they obtained from 16 different sources
