Everest Expedition Zum Endpunkt:

Everest Reinhold Messner, 1978-01-01 Everest Reinhold Messner, 2014-11-15 Everest by fair means that is the human dimension and that is what interests me In reaching for the oxygen cylinder a climber degrades Everest a climber who doesn't rely on his own strength and skills but on apparatus and drugs deceives himself In May 1978 Reinhold Messner and Peter Habeler became the first climbers in history to reach the summit of Mount Everest without the use of supplementary oxygen an event which made international headlines and permanently altered the future of mountaineering Here Messner tells how he and Habeler accomplished the impossible and how it felt He describes the dangers of the Khumbu Icefield the daunting Lhotse flank two lonely storm filled nights at 26 247 feet and finally the last step to the summit Everest Expedition to the Ultimate is a riveting account of the exhaustion the exhilaration and the despair of climbing into the death zone The book also includes a history of the mountain successful ascents and Messner's reflections on recent tragedies on Mount Everest Reinhold Messner was the first to climb all fourteen peaks higher than 8 000 metres The author of more than a dozen books on his adventures he lives in a castle in northern Italy The Britannica Guide to Explorers and Explorations That Changed the Modern World Kenneth Pletcher Senior Editor, Geography and History, 2009-12-20 Chronicles the history of human exploration from the Silk Road travels and early exploration of the Atlantic Coastline to the age of discovery the colonial exploration eras and modern expeditions to the North and South Poles Adaptation to Altitude-Hypoxia in Vertebrates P. Bouverot, 2012-12-06 Adaptation to altitude hypoxia is characterized by a variety of functional changes which collectively facilitate oxygen transport from the ambient medium to the cells of the body All of these changes can be seen at one time or another in the course of hypoxic exposure Yet as already stressed Hannon and Vogel 1977 an examination of the literature gives only a sketchy and often conflicting picture of the exact nature of these changes and how they interact as a function of exposure duration This is partly because of the limited number of variables explored in a given study but it is also attributable to differences in experimental design differences among species in susceptibility to hypoxia nonstandardized experimental conditions lack of proper control of physical e.g. temperature and physiological variables e.g. body mass failure to take measurements at key periods of exposure and gaps in knowledge about some fundamental mechanisms Furthermore the available data on animals native to high altitude are meager and/or inconclusive Extensive further work under well controlled experimental conditions is required before a detailed picture can be made Nevertheless it has been a guiding principle in the preparation of this monograph rather to summarize the vastly dispersed material that constitutes the comparative physiology of adaptation to high altitude into a coherent picture than to provide a comprehensive survey of the field Explorers in the 20th and 21st Centuries Britannica Educational Publishing, 2013-06-01 Technological advances including pressurized cabins for hot air balloons rocketry that powers spacecraft and deep sea diving gear have changed the face of exploration What hasn't changed since ancient times however is the bravery and inquisitiveness of intrepid individuals at the forefront of modern day exploration and adventure Those who have challenged conventional thinking and sought to test physical limits of human endurance in the 20th and 21st centuries are the subjects of this exciting collection of biographies The Second Death of George Mallory Reinhold
