vegetation LULC is a core information layer for a variety of scientific and administrative tasks e.g. hydrological modelling, climate models, land use planning. In particular, in the context of climate change with its impacts on socio-economic, socio-ecological systems as well as ecosystem services, precise information on LULC and LUCC are mandatory baseline datasets required over large areas. Remote sensing can provide such information on different levels of detail and in a homogeneous and reliable way. Hence, LULC mapping can be regarded as a prototype for integrated approaches based on spaceborne and airborne remote sensing techniques combined with field observations. The book provides for the first time a comprehensive view of various LULC activities focusing on European initiatives such as the LUCAS surveys, the CORINE Land Cover, the ESA EU GMES program and its resulting Fast Track and Downstream Services, the EU JRC Global Land Cover, the ESA GlobCover project as well as the ESA initiative on Essential Climate Variables. All have and are producing highly appreciated land cover products. The book will cover the operational approaches but also review current state of the art scientific methodologies and recommendations for this field. It opens the view with best practice examples that lead to a view that exceeds pure mapping but to investigate into drivers and causes as well as future projections.

Geography and Religious Knowledge in the Medieval World Christoph Maunert, 2021-06-08. In the medieval world, geographical knowledge was influenced by religious ideas and beliefs. Whereas this point is well analysed for the Latin Christian world, the religious character of the Arabic-Islamic geographic tradition has not yet been scrutinised in detail. This volume addresses this desideratum and combines case studies from both traditions of geographic thinking. The contributions comprise in-depth analyses of individual geographical works, as for example those of al-Idrisi or Lambert of Saint Omer, different forms of presenting geographical knowledge such as TO diagrams or globes as well as performative aspects of studying and meditating geographical knowledge. Focussing on texts as well as on maps, the contributions open up a comparative perspective on how religious knowledge influenced the way the world and its geography were perceived and described in the medieval world.

A distinguished team of Western European scholars has written an advanced full-length physical geography designed to be a state-of-the-art evaluation of the physical environment of Western Europe, being both retrospective and prospective in its perception of environmental change. The unique natural and regional environments of Western Europe are discussed as well as the physical geographic framework of the region. Particular emphasis is placed on the impact and responses of human society on the physical environment of the region, which is characterized by a very high population density. As an enhanced reference work, it will be of enduring value.
