textbook offering an innovative account of people's lives in the early modern period      Early Visions and Representations of America M. Carmen Gomez-Galisteo, 2012-11-22 When the Europeans first arrived in America they had a number of preconceptions prejudices expectations and hopes about what life in the New World would be like This book examines the different visions and representations of America conveyed in the writings of Spanish conquistador Ivar N ez Cabeza de Vaca and the Pilgrim leader William Bradford taking both writers within their respective literary and historical contexts Anthologies of American literature have consistently ignored Spanish language achievements on the grounds of a restrictive interpretation of American literature based on linguistic boundaries Consequently Spanish language texts such as Cabeza de Vaca's or the account by the Hidalgo de Elvas to name but two examples have been marginalized in the narrative of American literary history In seeking to redress this neglect Galisteo contributes to scholarship which seeks to analyze Early America as a whole including not only Anglo American perspectives but also the Spanish American aspect of the colonization process      The Ashgate Research Companion to Monsters and the Monstrous Asa Simon Mittman, Peter J.

Dendle, 2017-02-24 The field of monster studies has grown significantly over the past few years and this companion provides a comprehensive guide to the study of monsters and the monstrous from historical regional and thematic perspectives The collection reflects the truly multi disciplinary nature of monster studies bringing in scholars from literature art history religious studies history classics and cultural and media studies The companion will offer scholars and graduate students the first comprehensive and authoritative review of this emergent field Far From the Truth Michiel van Groesen, Johannes Müller, 2023-12-28 Information and knowledge were essential tools of early modern Europe's global ambitions This volume addresses a key concern that emerged as the competition for geopolitical influence increased how could information from afar be trusted when there was no obvious strategy for verification How did notions of doubt develop in relation to intercultural encounters Who were those in the position to use misinformation in their favour and how did this affect trust How in other words did distance affect credibility and which intellectual and epistemological strategies did early modern Europe devise to cope with this problem The movement of information and its transformations in the process of gathering ordering and disseminating makes it necessary to employ both a global and a local perspective in order to understand its significance The rise of print leading to various new forms of mediation played a crucial role everywhere inspiring theories of modernization in which media served as agents of new connections and eventually of globalization Paradoxically during the entire period between 1500 and 1800 the demise of distance through various strategies of verification coincided with constructions of otherness that emphasized the cultural and geographical difference between Europe and the worlds it encountered Ten leading scholars of the early modern world address the relationship between distance information and credibility from a variety of perspectives This volume will be an essential companion to those interested in the history of knowledge and early modern encounters as well as specialists in the history of empire and print culture The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Forensics of Capital Michael Ralph, 2015-07-08 As one of Africa's few democracies Senegal has long been thought of as a leader of moral political and economic development on the continent We tend to assume that any such nation has achieved favorable international standing due to its own merits In Forensics of Capital Michael Ralph upends this kind of conventional thinking showing how Senegal's diplomatic standing was strategically forged in the colonial and postcolonial eras at key periods of its history and is today entirely contingent on the consensus of wealthy and influential nations and international lending agencies Ralph examines Senegal's crucial and pragmatic decisions related to its development and how they garnered international favor decisions such as its opposition to Soviet involvement in African liberation despite itself being a socialist state or its support for the US led war on terror despite its population being predominately Muslim He shows how such actions have given Senegal an inflated political and economic position and status as a highly credit worthy nation even as its domestic economy has faltered Exploring these and many other aspects of Senegal's political economy and its interface with the international community Ralph demonstrates that the international reputation of any nation not just Senegal is based on deep structural biases

Sex and Sexuality in Europe, 1100-1750

Andrew Mansfield,2023-10-02 Transcending the traditional categories of medieval and early modern to analyse pan European attitudes and behaviours Sex and Sexuality in Europe 1100 1750 provides students with a grounding in the history of sexuality by supplying both a detailed analysis of the existing historiographical debates but also analysis of the primary sources such as autobiographies and contemporary literature Offering an accessible overview that places sex and sexuality within the historical context of the time period it creates a deeper understanding of connections and differences across Europe An interdisciplinary work it draws on cultural social religious philosophical literary economic and scientific ideas while incorporating theory from within the field to broaden perspective of the history of sexuality Challenging the separation of the medieval and early modern periods this volume highlights a great deal of continuity between 1100 and 1750 across Europe with change occurring more notably towards the eighteenth century Key interventions on the role of the passions the imagination the two worlds motif and subordination are made across the work Moreover it questions the belief that the Middle Ages was one of sexual repression and highlights a second world in which sex was a natural even celebrated part of life and engages with the belief that the eighteenth century saw a sexual revolution This book is essential reading for students scholars and the general public interested in the history of sexuality Statelessness Tony C. Brown, 2022-11-15 A pathbreaking new genealogy of statelessness Just as the modern state and the citizenship associated with it are commonly thought of as a European invention so too is citizenship's negation in the form of twentieth century diaspora and statelessness Statelessness sets forth a new genealogy suggesting that Europe first encountered mass statelessness neither inside its own borders nor during the twentieth century as Hannah Arendt so influentially claimed but outside of itself in the New World several hundred years earlier Through close readings of political philosophers from Hobbes to Rousseau to Kant Tony C Brown argues that statelessness became a central problem for political thought early on with far reaching implications for thinking both on the state and on being human What Europeans thought they saw among the savages of the Americas was life without political order life less than human Lacking almost everything those deemed clearly human had achieved the stateless existed in a radically precarious almost inhuman privation And yet this existence also raised the unsettling possibility that state based existence may not be inevitable necessary or even ideal This possibility as Brown shows prompts the response as defensive as it was aggressive that we call Enlightenment political philosophy which arguably still orders much thinking on being stateless today including our discourses concerning migrants and Indigenous peoples
