Evaluating art is more than just saying if we like or dislike it. The goal is to see if we can look closely at the elements of art and the principles of design that they have used to be able to comment on how effective the artist has used them to communicate the message. It's okay to not like the values of art but still appreciate the artist's use of creative and design.

The first thing that you would do when looking at a piece of art is to think what type of art it is.

For example, is it an example of

abstract, representational or naturalist style?
