Designing Mental Health Services for Children and Adolescents J. Gerald Young,Pierre Ferrari,2013-03-07 An exceptional opportunity is being missed A chance to alleviate suffering and to achieve health care cost reductions for society is available but is being ignored There is an explosion of new knowledge about the emotional and intellectual development of children and the causes and treatment of psychiatric disorders of children and adolescents Research from diverse disciplines such as the developmental neurosciences psychoanalysis psychopharmacology developmental psychology and genetics propels us forward However the effects of this new knowledge reach children and adolescents slowly or not at all The long history of neglect of the mental health of children and adolescents is now exaggerated by sudden disruptive economic and political influences on mental health services for children and adolescents in most countries Prevention and treatment of emotional and intellectual problems in childhood and adolescence have vastly improved but utilization of these advantages lags behind This disappointing incongruity stimulates a need to document our knowledge about these services and systems and to make it more broadly available This is the primary aim of this new volume by a team of distinguished contributors It reviews the causes and prevalences of psychiatric disorders in children and adolescents the problem of health care financing for these services the underutilization of these services our current understanding of the outcomes of treatment and the new models for both treatment and prevention The book also provides a survey of current mental health services and systems for children and adolescents in countries across the world Information drawn from these multiple perspectives has been used by a group of international experts to develop the Venice Declaration providing specific guidelines for families clinicians administrators and policy makers who are concerned with the development of children and adolescents and are committed to a more efficient economic approach to mental health services

Assessing Outcomes in Child and Family Services Anthony N. Maluccio, 2017-11-30 In this collective portrait editors and authors do not attempt to draw systematic country by country comparisons Given the magnitude of the issues they believed that it would be inappropriate to paint with too broad a stroke What they have accomplished however is to codify and identify what the participants repeatedly noted in regard to issues and difficulties inherent in conducting outcome evaluation These include varying definitions of outcome complexities in measuring outcomes of particular interventions with different groups of consumers and documenting the effectiveness of the intervention the tendency to focus on evaluation of process more than outcome the challenge of involving practitioners in the evaluation task in part because its value is unclear to them or perceived as distant or untrustworthy the typical inadequacy of resources available for systematic evaluation and the need to inject rigor into the design and execution of evaluation projects The authors demonstrate strong conviction about sharing research expertise across national boundaries learning through each other how to cope with organizational impediments to cross national collaboration and strengthening the interaction between practice and research Their contributions suggest that there is wide interest in pursuing cross national collaboration In recent years largely in response to demands by their funding sources for accountability assessment of performance and cost effectiveness researchers in human services have been devoting increased attention to outcome evaluation Limited attention however has been given to the findings of evaluation studies conducted in different countries The present volume has been organized and edited to address the task of learning from outcome research across the world Its goal an extension of a major goal of the human services in any one country is to improve life chances of vulnerable children and youth The Practice of Clinical Neuropsychology Greg J. Mental Health: A Report of the Surgeon General, 1999, 2000 Handbook of Community Psychology Julian Rappaport, Edward Seidman, 2012-12-06 As a field progresses people write about their own work in journals chapters and books but periodically the work needs to be collected and organized It needs to be brought together in a format that can both introduce new members to the field and reacquaint continuing members with the work of their colleagues Such a collection also affords an opportunity for the growing number of people with particular expertise to provide a reference for others whose work is related but differs in focus This is the first Handbook of Community Psychology It contains contributions from 106 different authors in addition to our editorial introductions Its thirty eight chapters including two that are divided into multiple individually authored parts are concerned with conceptual frameworks empirically grounded constructs intervention strategies and tactics social systems design assessment and analysis cross cutting professional issues and contemporary intersections with community psychology Although interrelated each chapter stands on its own as a statement about a
