Instructional Design: International Perspectives II Sanne Dijkstra,Franz Schott,Norbert Seel,Robert D. Tennyson,Norbert M. Seel,2014-03-18 Instructional design theory and practice has evolved over the past 30 years from an initial narrow focus on programmed instruction to a multidimensional field of study integrating psychology technology evaluation measurement and management The growth of instructional design ID has occurred because of direct needs problems and goals from society Its application in planning instruction first developed in the United States with the Department of Defense during World War II with the purpose of meeting immediate concerns for effective training of larger numbers of military personnel From the beginning ID has rapidly expanded into applications in industrial and executive training vocational training classroom learning and professional education Although ID has its roots in the U S applications and theoretical growth is an international activity However literature at the international level is still limited to either individual author contributions or collections primarily represented by single countries As a result there is no standard reference source that contains the rich variety of theories and applications to form the international foundation for the field The goal of this two volume set is to establish international foundations for ID theory research and practice within the framework of the two following objectives to identify and define the theoretical research and model foundations for ID and to bridge the gap between ID foundations and application Volume I includes chapters on philosophical and theoretical issues on learning theory and ID models Volume II provides an overview of the state of the art of solving ID problems The contributors offer contrasting points of view which provide a rare opportunity to see the diversity and complexity in the field The editorial committee has selected a wide range of internationally known authors to make presentations in the topic areas of the field

Collaborative Learning Through Computer Conferencing Anthony R. Kaye,2012-12-06 The idea for the Workshop on which this book is based arose from discussions which we had when we both attended an earlier and more broadly based NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Computer Supported Collaborative Learning directed by Claire O Malley in Maratea Italy in 1989 We both felt that it would be interesting to organise a second Workshop in this area but specifically concerned with the use of computers and networking telematics as communication tools for collaborative learning outside the formal school setting We were particularly interested in examining the ways in which computer conferencing can be used for collaboration and group learning in the contexts of distance education adult learning professional training and organisational networking And we wanted to ensure that we included in the scope of the Workshop situations in which learning is a primary explicit goal e g an online training programme as well as situations where learning occurs as a secondary even incidental outcome of a collaborative activity whose explicit purpose might be different e g the activities of networked product teams or task groups Another goal was to try to bring together for a few days people with three different perspectives on the use of computer conferencing users researchers and software designers We hoped that if we could assemble a group of people from these three different constituencies we might collectively be able to make a small contribution to real progress in the field

Computer Mediated Communication A. J. Romiszowski,1992 Instructional Development Paradigms Charles R. Dills,A. J. King,2005-12-27 This book deals with the use of technology in science teaching The author is not nor has ever had an intention of being a techie Rather I spent the first decade of my professional life as a high school physics teacher making occasional uses of technology to further student understanding and to automate my own teaching practices During my graduate work my interest in the use of technology continued Catalyzed to some extent by the increasing availability of graphical interfaces for computers the realization struck that the computer was more and more becoming a tool that all teachers could use to support their teaching practice not simply those with a passion for the technology itself The rapid changes in the hardware and software available however frequently caused me to reflect on the usefulness of technology if it were to change at such a rapid pace would anyone save for those who diligently focused on the development of these tools be able to effectively use technology in science teaching Was change to rapid to yield a useful tool for teachers To address this interest I examined the nature of science teaching during this century using the equally fluid notion of scientific literacy which formed the organizing principle for this study The result is a examination of how technology was used to accomplishing this goal of producing scientifically literate citizens What was observed is that technology indeed consistently came to the service of teachers as they attempted to achieve this goal Looking Ahead Raymond S.

Nickerson,2021-12-17 This volume aims to review some of the recent developments and trends that seem especially relevant to any attempt to understand near term future possibilities to consider what a variety of knowledgeable people are saying about changes and developments that could occur and to relate the possibilities to needs and opportunities for human factors research Human factors in this case includes not only the implications of human capabilities and limitations for the design of equipment and machines intended for human use but also applied psychology in a more general sense In particular it is taken to involve social systems as well as physical ones the interaction of people with the environment as well as with machines the facilitation of communication between people as well as between people and computers and the design of policies and procedures as well as the design of equipment The author s intention is to focus on anticipated problems including opportunities as well as difficulties and ask how human factors research might contribute to solutions It is assumed that there are ways in which such research could be useful in addressing societal problems that the profession has not yet realized and that these are more likely to be recognized in the future if the community is actively seeking to identify them
