

Chapter 6

Educational Research and Policy¹

Abstract This chapter touches on some of the issues discussed in Chap. XX in the context of educational research and practice, but here it is concerned with the relationship between educational research and policy and, more specifically, with the sort of knowledge which can and should inform educational policy. The chapter treats this as an epistemological question and distinguishes it from the more extensively explored question of what sort of knowledge in what form policymakers do in fact commonly take into account.

The chapter examines the logical and rhetorical character of policy and the components of policy decisions, and argues that policy demands a much wider range of information than research typically provides. Either the research task or commission has to be substantially extended or the gap will be filled by information or thinking which is not derived from research.

One of the gaps between research of an empirical kind and policy is the normative gap. The final section of this chapter points to the inescapably normative character of educational policy. Of course the values which inform policy can be investigated empirically or deconstructed through discourse analysis, but this kind of inquiry cannot tell us what we should do. There is, however, a role for research/scholarship and more, rather than less, intelligent and critical argumentation in addressing these normative questions, as well as the empirical questions which underpin policy.

This chapter might be read alongside Chap. XX on the role of the philosopher in policymaking.

¹ This chapter is mainly derived from a paper that I originally wrote with Michael Watts in the context of an Economics and Social Research Council Teaching and Learning Research Programme (ESRC TLRP). It was published first in a supplementary issue of the Journal of Philosophy of Education (2008) edited by Bridges, D., Smeyers, P., and Smith, R., and subsequently (2009) by Wiley Blackwell as Evidence-based education policy: What evidence? What basis? Whose policy? I am grateful to Michael Watts and to Wiley Blackwell for allowing me to draw substantially on this paper.

Education Research and the Media

Aspa Baroutsis, Stewart Riddle, Pat Thomson, 2018-12-07 Universities around the world now actively encourage academics to engage in public scholarship publishing in traditional and new media newspapers television radio blogs and social media Education Research and the Media addresses this situation using empirical and reflexive accounts to interrogate and advance the ways in which this shift is usually discussed Drawing on Australian and international scholars and contexts this edited collection probes the effects of these engagements Taken together the book offers new conceptualisations of the junctures and disjunctures of local national and transnational mediascapes in education research working across both traditional media and social media platforms The book takes as its starting point that traditional national media while still significant are now embedded in practices and discourses that transcend geographic and spatial boundaries Global media logics challenge the profitability and operations of media corporations as the production of news and information is paradoxically both democratised and fragmented There is a limited body of research about how this mediatised landscape impacts on public scholarship This is the first book in the field of education to systematically investigate this landscape using empirical examples and analysis as well as a range of theoretical and conceptual approaches

News Media and the Neoliberal Privatization of Education Zane C. Wubbena, Derek R. Ford, Brad J. Porfilio, 2016-03-01 This edited volume contributes to a burgeoning field of critical scholarship on the news media and education This scholarship is based on an understanding that the news media has increasingly applied a neoliberal template that mediates knowledge and action about education This book calls into question what the public knows about education how the public is informed and whose interests are represented and ultimately served through the production and distribution of information by the news media about education The chapters comprising this volume serve to enlighten and call to action parents students educators academics and scholars activists and policymakers for social political and economic transformation Moreover as the neoliberal agenda in North America intensifies the chapters in this book help to deepen our understanding of the logics and processes of the neoliberal privatization of education and the accompanying social discourses that facilitate the reduction of social relations to a transaction in the marketplace The chapters examine the news media and the reproduction of neoliberal educational reforms A Nation at Risk Teach For America charter schools think tanks and PISA and resistance to neoliberal educational reforms online activism and radical Black press while also broadening our conceptual understanding of the marketization and mediatization of educational discourses Overall the book provides an in depth understanding of the neoliberal privatization of education by extending critical examinations to this underrepresented field of cultural production the news media coverage of education The contribution of this edited volume therefore helps to build an understanding of the contemporary dynamics of capital accumulation to inform public resistance for social transformation

Media Literacy and

Media Education Research Methods Pierre Fastrez, Normand Landry, 2023-11-27 This handbook interrogates the foundations of media literacy and media education research from a methodological standpoint It provides a detailed illustrated overview of key methods used in the study of media literacy and media education Further it reveals the diversity of this research field and organizes this diversity by using three categories of investigation media practices educational initiatives and prescriptive discourses The book offers valuable reference points and tools for exploring the range of research methods used to study media literacy and media education and how these methods connect to epistemological stances theoretical frameworks and research questions It serves as a guide for researchers who wish to position themselves reflect on the methods they use or are considering using and compare and contrast them against alternative or complementary approaches After reading this book readers will be better able to identify and define the objects of study in media literacy and media education research the preferred ways of conducting investigations the phenomena issues and dimensions that these are likely to bring to light and the knowledge that they generate This comprehensive and up to date overview of the field of media literacy education research methods will be of great interest to scholars and students of education studies media studies media literacy cognitive science and communication studies Chapter 2 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 International license
