

Global decoupling of agricultural land and food production

Agricultural land is the sum of cropland and pasture for grazing livestock.
Production is measured in constant 2015 international-dollars, which adjusts for inflation. Includes all crops and livestock.

Global agricultural land use

5 billion hectares

Global agricultural production

$4 trillion

*A peak in global pasture land does not mean that it has peaked everywhere. In tropical regions, it continues to increase, often at the expense of carbon-rich habitats.

Kopp,2016-09-06 Hoptopia argues that the current revolution in craft beer is the product of a complex global history that converged in the hop fields of Oregon s Willamette Valley What spawned from an ideal environment and the ability of regional farmers to grow the crop rapidly transformed into something far greater because Oregon farmers depended on the importation of rootstock knowledge technology and goods not only from Europe and the Eastern United States but also from Asia Latin America and Australasia They also relied upon a seasonal labor supply of people from all of these areas as a supplement to local Euroamerican and indigenous communities to harvest their crops In turn Oregon hop farmers reciprocated in exchanges of plants and ideas with growers and scientists around the world and of course sent their cured hops into the global marketplace These global exchanges occurred not only during Oregon s golden era of hop growing in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries but through to the present in the midst of the craft beer revival The title of this book Hoptopia is a nod to Portland s title of Beervana and the Willamette Valley s claim as an agricultural Eden from the mid nineteenth century onward But the story is fundamentally about how seemingly niche agricultural regions do not exist and have never existed independently of the flow of people ideas goods and biology from other parts of the world To define Hoptopia is to define the Willamette Valley s hop and beer industries as the culmination of all of this local and global history With the hop itself as a central character this book aims to connect twenty first century consumers to agricultural lands and histories that have been forgotten in an era of industrial food production Provided by publisher The End of Food Paul Roberts,2009 Roberts investigates the modern food system and presents a startling truth how manufacturers make market and transport food is no longer compatible with the billions of consumers the system was built to serve From Prairie Farmer to Entrepreneur Dennis Nordin,Roy V. Food and the Mid-level Farm Thomas A. Lyson,G. W. Stevenson,Rick Welsh,2008 Agriculture in the United States today increasingly operates in two separate spheres large corporate connected commodity production and distribution systems and small scale farms that market directly to consumers As a result midsize family operated farms find it increasingly difficult to find and reach markets for their products They are too big to use the direct marketing techniques of small farms but too small to take advantage of corporate marketing and distribution systems This crisis of the midsize farm results in a rural America with weakened municipal tax bases job loss and population flight Food and the Mid Level Farm discusses strategies for reviving an agriculture of the middle and creating a food system that works for midsize farms and ranches Activists practitioners and scholars from a variety of disciplines including sociology political science and economics consider ways midsize farms can regain vitality by scaling up aspects of small farms operations to connect with consumers organizing together to develop markets for their products developing food supply chains that preserve farmer identity and are based on fair business agreements and promoting public policies at international federal state and community levels that address agriculture of the middle issues Food and the Mid Level Farm makes it clear that the demise of midsize farms and ranches is not a foregone conclusion and that the renewal of an agriculture of the middle will benefit all participants in the food system from growers to consumers Thomas A Lyson was Liberty Hyde Bailey Professor of Development Sociology at Cornell University until his death in 2006 He was the author of Civic Agriculture Reconnecting Farm Food and Community G W Stevenson is Senior Scientist with the Center for Integrated Agricultural Systems at the University of Wisconsin Madison Rick Welsh is Associate Professor of Sociology at Clarkson University

The Organization and Performance of the U.S. Food System Bruce W. Marion, 1986 Agriculture Economics Reports, 1987

Together at the Table Patricia Allen, 2004 Everywhere you look people are more aware of what they eat and where their food comes from. In a cafeteria in Los Angeles children make their lunchtime food choices at fresh fruit and salad bars stocked with local foods. In a community garden in New York low income residents are producing organically grown fruits and vegetables for their own use and to sell at market. In Madison Wisconsin shoppers select their food from a bounty of choices at a vibrant farmers market. Together at the Table is about people throughout the United States who are building successful alternatives to the contemporary agrifood system and their prospects for the future. At the heart of these efforts are the movements for sustainable agriculture and community food security. Both movements seek to reconstruct the agrifood system, the food production chain from the growing of crops to food production and distribution to become more ecologically sound, economically viable, and socially just. Allen describes the ways in which people working in these movements view the world and how they see their place in challenging and reshaping the agrifood system. She also shows how ideas and practices of sustainable agriculture and community food security have already woven their way into the dominant agrifood institutions. Allen explores the possibilities this process may hold for improving social and environmental justice in the American agrifood system. Together at the Table is an important reminder that much work still remains to be done. Now that the ideas and priorities of alternative food movements have taken hold, it is time for the next, even more challenging step. Alternative agrifood movements must acknowledge and address the deeper structural and cultural patterns that constrain the long term resolution of social and environmental problems in the agrifood system.

The Global Restructuring of Agro-Food Systems Philip D. McMichael, 2019-05-15 Across the world food systems and agricultural systems are changing at a phenomenal rate. Widespread restructuring has not been confined to the production and distribution of food, though many regions and even nations are undergoing social, political, and economic transformation as well. Bringing together twelve essays by scholars from a number of disciplines, this timely book documents the interdependence of food systems, nation states, and the world economy. Stressing the political foundations of global agro food systems, it sheds light on such complex questions as whether today's changes in food and agrarian systems anticipate a new world order or are merely efforts to preserve an old order in crisis.
