Kauffmann,Judith N. Martin,Henry D. Weaver,1992 Colleges and universities face the major problem of how to make a university education meaningful in a global society It is the thesis of this book that study abroad is one of the most powerful tools available for internationalizing the U S higher education curriculum After an Introduction giving a general overview of the book the study begins with four student case histories showing that an individual student's maturity and the extent of his or her immersion in the host country's culture are two key variables that determine to what extent study abroad affects the student. The next two chapters suggest first that as they study abroad students develop intellectually in three ways: 1 through language study, 2 through courses in the student's majors that offer new perspectives, and 3 through knowledge acquisition in broad general areas, and second that as they study abroad students change in their perceptions of the host culture, their own culture, and global understanding. In chapter 5 a theoretical framework is proposed for understanding the effects of study abroad and the growth which results from it. The conclusion is reached that study abroad is not only a potentially powerful educational technique but also that program design and participant selection can have significant effects upon outcome. Finally a number of recommendations are offered whereby it is believed the effectiveness of study abroad programs in U.S. educational institutions can be increased and broadened. LBG

Nation-Building and History Education in a Global Culture Joseph Zajda, 2015-03-24 This book examines the nexus between nation building and history education globally and the implication for cultural diversity and social justice. It studies some of the major education reforms and policy issues in history education in a global culture and regards them in the light of recent shifts in history education and policy research. In doing so the volume provides a comprehensive picture of the intersecting and diverse discourses of globalisation, history education and policy driven reforms. It makes clear that the impact of globalisation on education policy and reforms is a strategically significant issue for us all. The book focuses on the importance of nation building and patriotism in history education and presents up to date research on global trends in history education reforms and policy research. It provides an easily accessible practical yet scholarly source of information about the international concerns in the field of globalisation, history education and policy research. Liberal Arts Education for a Global Society Carol M. Soriano, 2015-04-01 The global networking promoted by technology, globalization and migration that are occurring at a large scale requires school systems that develop in the students new types of skills based on the ability to understand the world and its problems and instill a sense of responsibility and cooperation to enhance the resolution of the great problems of mankind. Rethinking education is essential in a global, transcultural, changing and communicated world. Throughout the book Rethinking Education for a Global Transcultural World is argued and analyzed how to build relationships between the school and society and the possibilities of transcending the barriers in different national contexts: Chile, Israel, Mexico, Morocco, Poland and Spain. The main goal we want to achieve with the contributions made in the book is to know how education systems and schools in different countries respond to the social changes caused by globalization, migration and new communication technologies. The authors are professors of different scientific disciplines and different faiths, cultures and points of view, living the realities described in the chapters and thinking from these realities how to improve and how should
