Bonner, Rosa M. Banda, Stella Luciana Smith, Aretha Faye Marbley, 2021 Developing alternative student development frameworks and models this groundbreaking book provides student affairs practitioners as well as faculty with illuminating perspectives and viable approaches for understanding the development of today's diverse student populations and for building the foundation for their academic success and self authorship. With the increasing number of adult working students, minoritized, multiracial, LGBTQ, and first generation students, this book offers readers vital insights into and ways to interrogate existing practice and develop relevant responses to the needs of these populations. Building on and critiquing the past frameworks and integrating the insights of contemporary scholarship on student development, the contributors collectively put forward a robust theoretical and methodological foundation for this work using Critical Race Theory as their central frame. CRT allows chapter authors to situate race-related encounters at the center of their proposed alternative framework or model and deconstruct and challenge commonly held assumptions about diverse college student development. In the tradition of CRT, each author offers an alternative model or framework that can be applied to the diverse population upon which the chapter is framed, prompting readers to address such questions as: Who are our college students? What set of experiences do our students bring to the higher education context? What role have their environments, contexts (i.e., home, p 12, community, family, peer groups, mentors) played in our students' lives? What impact have intervening variables (i.e., race, oppression, power) had on their experiences? What strategies do they use to overcome developmental obstacles? How do they define success and how they know they have achieved it? By laying bare the experiences of these diverse college students that inform this volume's alternative frameworks, this book contests that notion that they constitute square pegs that must fit into the round holes of traditional frameworks.

Teaching and Learning in Higher Education Beatrice L. Bridgall, 2013-08-28. Concerns with how students are taught and whether and how they learn has become particularly salient in higher education. This is evident in growing awareness of increases in time to degree and declines in attainment rates for many students, including those who are underrepresented in our nation's community and public and private colleges and universities. It is also demonstrated vis vis recent findings that more than a third of college students evinced no noticeable improvement in critical thinking, writing, and complex reasoning skills after four years as an undergraduate. These findings suggest that while a focus on access to and participation in the nation's colleges and universities remain a prominent goal, it is no longer sufficient given persistent disparities in post-secondary student learning. There are a few models, however, from which we can distill a set of strategies for promoting not only high achievement but also retention and completion rates. This book examines three such models in higher education: the Meyerhoff Scholars Program at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County, the Opportunity Programs at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, New York, and the Premedical Program at Xavier University in New Orleans, with a proven record of student achievement and completion.
