Architecture--art Or Profession? Mark Crinson, Jules Lubbock, 1994 Architects are perhaps the most important people involved in shaping the built environment so the ideas they receive in the course of their training are a major influence upon the buildings and cities of the future Crinson and Lubbock present a bold new perspective on the evolution of the British architect from Wren to post modernism and beyond and provide the first general history of architectural education making an important contribution to current debates The Prince of Wales views on modern architecture and the need for a change in the way architects are trained has attracted enormous support from the public resulting in architects and their training being under the spotlight more than ever The drive to define and promote the architectural profession that began in the eighteenth century and reached its apogee in the 1960s has now begun to unravel How has this happened What relation does an architect's education have to the built environment What lessons are there from the past This book will be of interest to students lecturers and all those interested in the debates around contemporary architecture The Education of an Learning by Building William J. Carpenter, 1997-04-03 Learning by Building challenges today s Architect Lee Hillam, 1994 architects and students to experience the energy and creativity of construction Based on the example of famous architects such as Frank Lloyd Wright and Le Corbusier who considered construction an integral part of the design process design build is standard practice in growing numbers of today's architecture firms Architect and professor William I Carpenter explores ways to integrate construction into architectural education bridging the gap between theory and practice between designing and building Mr Carpenter traces the history of construction in architectural education from medieval times to Jefferson's Monticello to the German Bauhaus He cites twentieth century artists such as Richard Serra and Donald Judd whose work is generated by the process of making like the artist the architect should be immersed in the potential of construction Ten in depth case studies of schools that have incorporated design build into their curriculum illustrate how construction studios help future architects learn real life pragmatics and collaboration Through text and photographs Mr Carpenter recounts the diverse experiences of high profile schools such as Cranbrook and Yale University providing models for other schools that wish to include design build in their curriculums Mr Carpenter also gives a helpful outline of the practical details involved in design build such as team issues legal issues and built applications of the process Learning by Building is a wake up call to architects and students alike to immerse themselves in the process of architecture to rediscover or witness for the first time the excitement of building Images of Architectural Practice & Education ,1992

Constructing the Architect Leonard R.

Bachman, 2019-01-22 Unlike books that concentrate on the monuments and other artefacts that architects produce Constructing the Architect focuses on architecture as a disciplinary and professional process an institution of society and a career of learning and mastery In doing so it offers a lens into the architecture of architecture Mapping architecture as a coherent whole Leonard Bachman shows that the field must be understood as four mutually reinforcing modes of inquiry design research strategy and education Within this framework he explains how institutions and actors hold differing perspectives on the critical discourse that advances architecture and identifies the various tensions and leverage points for change within the discipline Featuring over 100 illustrations to support understanding of this highly visual subject this is an essential introduction for any student seeking to understand what it means to be an architect and to enter the professional Narratives of Architectural Education James Thompson, 2019-01-14 Narratives of Architectural Education discourse provides an overview of life as an architecture student detailing how a layperson may develop an architectural identity This book proposes becoming an architect as a personal narrative of professional development structured around various stages and challenges associated with identity transformation Using a case study of aspiring architects along multiple time points of their professional education Thompson investigates the occupational identity of architects how individuals construct a sense of themselves as future architects and position themselves within the architectural community This book provides previously unexamined insights into not just the academic development of an architect but also the holistic and experiential aspects of architectural education It would be ideal for those in the educational field of architecture to include students educators Education and the Architect in Wisconsin Wisconsin Architects Foundation, 197? interns and mentors Radical Pedagogies Beatriz Colomina, Ignacio G. Galán, Evangelos Kotsioris, Anna-Maria Meister, 2022-05-31 Experiments in architectural education in the post World War II era that challenged and transformed architectural discourse and practice In the decades after World War II new forms of learning transformed architectural education These radical experiments sought to upend disciplinary foundations and conventional assumptions about the nature of architecture as much as they challenged modernist and colonial norms decentered building imagined new roles for the architect and envisioned participatory forms of practice Although many of the experimental programs were subsequently abandoned terminated or assimilated they nevertheless helped shape and in some sense define architectural discourse and practice This book explores and documents these radical pedagogies and efforts to defy architecture s status quo The experiments include the adaptation of Bauhaus pedagogy as a means of unlearning under the conditions of decolonization in Africa a movement to design for every body including the disabled by architecture students and faculty at the University of California Berkeley the founding of a support network for women interested in the built environment regardless of their academic backgrounds and a design studio in the USSR that offered an alternative to the widespread functionalist approach in Soviet design Viewed through their dissolution and afterlife as well as through their founding stories these projects from the last century raise provocative questions about architecture s role in the new century Changing Architectural Education David Nicol, Simon Pilling, 2005-08-19 Examines and discusses contemporary architectural education particulary focusing on studio design teaching and its potential to enhance attitudes and skills in communication and teamworking and to prepare students for a future profession

Structures in Architecture Education Prabhjot Singh Sugga, 2024-01-02 There has been a historical discord over curriculum and teaching practices for structures courses in architectural education as students are disinterested and not able to integrate learnings from such courses into their design solutions. The research in the book Structures in Architecture Education Teaching and Integrating in Design involves the development of an assessment tool by a comparative analysis of past frameworks to understand integration that assesses three dimensions of integration of structures performance physical and visual against three building systems exterior interior and services Around 27 30 samples are selected for each year from first to fourth from three institutions Data for pedagogy and curriculum are also collected that is used to analyse the results from assessment of samples In the second part of this book structural equation modelling is used to analyse if the studio is the preferred mode of learning structures Designing Better Architecture Education Manjari Chakraborty, 2015-11-11 Designing Better Architecture Education is an outcome of a research conducted systematically with diligence passion wide and in depth exercise on the obvious and latent aspects of undergraduate architecture education Although specific to India this study probes the diverse global scenario in acknowledgement of the global style of architecture where green preferences surface as compulsion The findings are arranged systematically analyzed impartially and inferred upon logically The final bunch of suggestions aimed at a much desirable architecture education revamp in India is in fact relevant for architecture education as a whole anywhere The author suggests compaction of graduation time intensification of exposures interactions and instructions shift of focus introduction of contemporary specializations restructuring intake revamping academic administration and a significant change of stance in teaching itself including methods philosophy attitude and paraphernalia The book provides valuable information insight and suggestions to rejuvenate the academic approach to the education of architecture and forms a reliable basis for further endeavour in this direction Linking Architecture and Education Anne Taylor, 2009-05-16 For the past forty years Anne Taylor has studied how schools classrooms playgrounds homes museums and parks affect children and how they learn As a result she has developed a holistic sustainable philosophy of learning environment design She argues persuasively that architects must integrate their design knowledge with an understanding of the developmental needs of learners while at the same time educators parents and students must broaden their awareness of the built natural and cultural environment to maximize the learning experience In other words schools and other environments can themselves become three dimensional textbooks When architects are cognizant of newer models of education and educators view the environment as more than a box in which to teach prescribed lessons the result is an informed architecture that enables children to discover the power of their own learning The book presents numerous examples of dynamic designs that are the result of interdisciplinary understanding of place Taylor includes designer perspectives forums derived from commentary by outside contributors involved in school planning and a wealth of photographs of thoughtful and effective solutions to create learning environments from comprehensive design criteria Because the concept of school is enlarged to a community campus the book also spawns a new model of teaching and learning This book is essential reading for educators architects and community members who are anxious to transform education in America and elsewhere Anne Taylor is the most outstanding educator leading proponent and practitioner in the three dimensional textbook field Her work is the finest resource available for connecting students young and old to their learning environments and visa versa Edward E Kirkbride NCARB REFP Before Western man divided the universe into discrete subject matter areas the order in the universe was and still is both interdisciplinary and holistic The branching of trees spiraling of shells meandering of streams and the radial designs of flowers for example represent an analogy of mathematics biology and art The current artificial separation of subject matter is in contrast to the way the world is constructed and the way children perceive it Architecture and the study of the built natural and cultural environment synthesize the world of material things and the world of ideas Further more it helps us to realize that we are a part of not apart from the environment This book is a tool and a gift to designers educators and students everywhere to assist them in seeing the meaning behind all that we view and use for living on earth To know our precious relationship to our surroundings is the intent of this book In this way life is a work of art and each of us is an artist Anne Taylor
