Education, Social Background and Cognitive Ability Gary N. Marks, 2013-10-23 Are socioeconomic inequalities in education declining Is socioeconomic background becoming less important for people's occupational class or status How important is cognitive ability for education and later occupational outcomes How do countries differ in the importance of socioeconomic background for education and work Gary N Marks argues that in western industrialized countries pervasive views that socioeconomic background or class background has strong and unchanging relationships with education and later socioeconomic outcomes resistant to policy and social change are unfounded Marks provides a large amount of evidence from many countries showing that the influence of socioeconomic background for education is moderate and most often declining and socioeconomic background has only very weak impacts on adults occupation and earnings after taking into account education and cognitive ability Furthermore Marks shows that cognitive ability is a more powerful influence than socioeconomic background for educational outcomes and that in addition to its indirect effects through education has a direct effect on occupation and earnings Its effects cannot be dismissed as simply another aspect of socioeconomic background nor do the usual criticisms of cognitive ability apply The declining effects for socioeconomic background and the importance of cognitive ability support several of the contentions of modernization theory The book contributes to a variety of debates within sociology quantitative and qualitative approaches explanatory and non explanatory theory the relationship between theory and empirical research the role of political ideology in research sociology as a social science and sociology's contribution to knowledge about contemporary societies It will appeal to professionals in the fields of education and sociology as well as postgraduate students and academics involved in the debate

Education in the Best Interests of the Child R. Brian Howe, Katherine Covell, 2013-02-07 A large body of research in disciplines from sociology and policy studies to neuroscience and educational psychology has confirmed that socioeconomic status remains the most powerful influence on children's educational outcomes. Socially disadvantaged children around the world disproportionately suffer from lower levels of educational achievement which in turn leads to unfavourable long term outcomes in employment and health. Education in the Best Interests of the Child addresses this persistent problem which violates not only the principle of equal educational opportunity but also the broader principle of the best interests of the child as called for in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. Building on the children's rights work accomplished in their previous book Empowering Children, Brian Howe and Katherine Covell identify three types of reform that can significantly close the educational achievement gap. Their findings make an important argument for stronger and more comprehensive action to equalize educational opportunities for disadvantaged children

Advances in the Conceptualization of the Stress Process William R. Avison, Carol S. Aneshensel, Scott Schieman, Blair Wheaton, 2009-10-21 In 1981 Leonard Pearlin and his colleagues published an article that would radically shift the sociological study of mental health from an emphasis on psychiatric disorder to a focus on social structure and its consequences for stress and psychological distress. Pearlin et al 1981 proposed a deceptively simple conceptual model that has now influenced sociological inquiry for almost three decades. With his characteristic penchant for reconsidering and elaborating his own ideas, Pearlin has revisited the stress process model periodically over the years (Pearlin 1989, 1999; Pearlin et al 2005; Pearlin and Skaff 1996). One of the consequences of this continued theoretical elaboration of the stress process has been the development of a sociological model of stress that embraces the complexity of social life. Another consequence is that the stress process has continued to stimulate a host of empirical investigations in the sociology of mental health. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to suggest that the stress process paradigm has been primarily responsible for the growth and sustenance of sociological research on stress and mental health. Pearlin et al 1981 described the core elements of the stress process in a brief paragraph. The process of social stress can be seen as combining three major conceptual domains: the sources of stress, the mediators of stress, and the manifestations of stress. Each of these extended domains subsumes a variety of subparts that have been intensively studied in recent years.

researchers and practitioners wanting to keep pace with new developments in the field Social Dominance Jim Sidanius, Felicia Pratto, 2001-02-12 This volume focuses on two questions why do people from one social group oppress and discriminate against people from other groups and why is this oppression so mind numbingly difficult to eliminate The answers to these questions are framed using the conceptual framework of social dominance theory Social dominance theory argues that the major forms of intergroup conflict such as racism classism and patriarchy are all basically derived from the basic human predisposition to form and maintain hierarchical and group based systems of social organization In essence social dominance theory presumes that beneath major and sometimes profound difference between different human societies there is also a basic grammar of social power shared by all societies in common We use social dominance theory in an attempt to identify the elements of this grammar and to understand how these elements interact and reinforce each other to produce and maintain group based social hierarchy Handbook of Social Indicators and Quality of Life Research Kenneth C. Land, Alex C. Michalos, M. Joseph Sirgy, 2011-11-25 The aim of the Handbook of Social Indicators and Quality of Life Research is to create an overview of the field of Quality of Life QOL studies in the early years of the 21st century that can be updated and improved upon as the field evolves and the century unfolds Social indicators are statistical time series used to monitor the social system helping to identify changes and to guide intervention to alter the course of social change Examples include unemployment rates crime rates estimates of life expectancy health status indices school enrollment rates average achievement scores election voting rates and measures of subjective well being such as satisfaction with life as a whole and with specific domains or aspects of life This book provides a review of the historical development of the field including the history of QOL in medicine and mental health as well as the research related to quality of work life QWL programs It discusses several of QOL main concepts happiness positive psychology and subjective wellbeing Relations between spirituality and religiousness and QOL are examined as are the effects of educational attainment on QOL and marketing and the associations with economic growth The book goes on to investigate methodological approaches and issues that should be considered in measuring and analysing quality of life from a quantitative perspective The final chapters are dedicated to research on elements of QOL in a broad range of countries and populations Korean Families Yesterday and Today Hyunjoon Park, Hyeyoung Woo, 2020-02-12 Korean families have changed significantly during the last few decades in their composition structure attitudes and function Delayed and forgone marriage fertility decline and rising divorce rates are just a few examples of changes that Korean families have experienced at a rapid pace more dramatic than in many other contemporary societies Moreover the increase of marriages between Korean men and foreign women has further diversified Korean families Yet traditional norms and attitudes toward gender and family continue to shape Korean men and women s family behaviors Korean Families Yesterday and Today portrays diverse aspects of the contemporary Korean families and by explicitly or implicitly situating contemporary families within a comparative historical perspective reveal how the past of

Korean families evolved into their current shapes While the study of families can be approached in many different angles our lens focuses on families with children or young adults who are about to forge family through marriage and other means This focus reflects that delayed marriage and declined fertility are two sweeping demographic trends in Korea affecting family formation Moreover intensive parenting has characterized Korean young parents and therefore examining change and persistence in parenting provides important clues for family change in Korea This volume should be of interest not only to readers who are interested in Korea but also to those who want to understand broad family changes in East Asia in comparative perspective
