

EFFICIENT POST-OPERATION HEALTH REPERCUSSION PREVENTION

It is important to understand that the post-operative period is a critical time for the patient. The patient's body is weakened by the surgery and the anesthesia. The patient's immune system is suppressed, making them more susceptible to infection. The patient's blood clotting ability is also affected, making them more prone to bleeding. The patient's respiratory system is also weakened, making them more susceptible to pneumonia. The patient's digestive system is also weakened, making them more susceptible to constipation. The patient's urinary system is also weakened, making them more susceptible to urinary tract infection. The patient's skin is also weakened, making them more susceptible to skin infection. The patient's overall health is weakened, making them more susceptible to all types of infection.
