Egg Womans Daughter A Tanka Memoir:

Egg Woman's Daughter Mary Chan Ma-Lai, 2001 Mary was two years old when her eyes clouded over Her grandmother's traditional cure of incense ash and mud rubbed into Mary's eyes failed She was left blind in one eye and partially sighted in another As a young Tanka child growing up on a fishing boat she learned to cope with her blindness as with poverty hunger and casual cruelty from her family and peers Plagued with a barrage of ailments including a spinal infection that stole the use of her legs as a young adult she persevered and was an indomitable spirit until the end Full of life laughter compassion and determination she had a magnetic charm that overcame an opaque gaze and shrivelled body to enchant all who knew her With brutal honesty and wry humour Mary Chan Ma lai tells the story of herself and her family against the backdrop of a brash and rising Hong Kong A testament to her victory over her disabilities to become a teacher writer world traveller and vital member of society this is an important book about Hong Kong as it seldom reveals itself by an articulate and inspiring author whose blind eyes saw deeply BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

Streets Jason Wordie, 2007-01-01 The book starts with a district familiar to all visitors Tsim Sha Tsui but then moves into the hinterland of Kowloon taking the reader and walker far beyond the well known streets of tourist oriented shops and hotels Streets Exploring Kowloon like its companion Streets Exploring Hong Kong Island guides the reader with maps and travel information to take 45 walks throughout Kowloon each along a specific street pointing out historically and culturally important sites but also the curious and the intriguing

Edward Stokes, Hedda Morrison, 2005 In September 1946 when the photographer Hedda Morrison reached Hong Kong it remained little changed from decades earlier Acclaimed for her images of China taken in the 1930s and 1940s Hedda Morrison delighted in recording the patterns of everyday life Now captivated by Hong Kong and its people she embraced the colony's diversity For six months cameras in hand Morrison roamed its districts streets coasts and valleys This book presents the people and places she encountered Within years much of what Hedda Morrison witnessed in 1946-47 would be swept aside Yet when she was there Hong Kong's life still had its old feel and traditions with colonial precincts tenement streets bustling markets itinerant hawkers fisherfolk and rice farmers In this book Morrison's memorable images are complemented by Edward Stokes' essays that portray the postwar years Hedda Morrison's photographs are the work of a masterful artistic photographer However fewer than thirty of this book's reproductions have ever been seen before It was those images first sighted in a 1946 government report that led Edward Stokes to begin searching for Morrison's original negatives which later were discovered at the Harvard-Yenching Library of Harvard University This is a unique record of a now vanished Hong Kong the most complete pictorial account of how the colony looked during the decades from the early 1930s to the 1950s Hedda Morrison's photographs will appeal to all who value documentary images Asian history and the ethnography of urban trades crafts and rural life BOOK JACKET
