Legal Frameworks for EHealth World Health Organization, 2012 Given that privacy of the doctor patient relationship is at the heart of good health care and that the electronic health record EHR is at the heart of good eHealth practice the question arises Is privacy legislation at the heart of the EHR The second global survey on eHealth conducted by the Global Observatory for eHealth GOe set out to answer that question by investigating the extent to which the legal frameworks in the Member States of the World Health Organization WHO address the need to protect patient privacy in EHRs as health care systems move towards leveraging the power of EHRs to deliver safer more efficient and more accessible health care The survey began with a question on the existence of generic privacy legislation followed by questions to establish if specific rules had been adopted to address privacy in EHRs A series of questions followed pertaining to the way in which privacy is addressed in transmittable EHRs and patients rights to access correct and control the use of the EHR The investigation ended by broaching the issue of privacy protection in secondary uses of data contained in EHRs such as for international research purposes In the present report the analysis of the survey responses is preceded by an overview of the ethical and legal roots of privacy protection Focusing on the ethical concepts of autonomy beneficence and justice the report reminds the reader of the early recognition of the duty of privacy in the Hippocratic Oath and goes on to consider how that is reflected in international binding legislation such as the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights and the European Union Data Protection Directive as well as non binding international codes of practice The ability to make wide use of EHRs and other eHealth tools will become increasingly important in both developed and developing countries In the former EHRs and related eHealth tools will play a key role of providing health care to ageing populations in which social care and health care need to be much more closely connected and where capacity demands will require that care is delivered outside traditional settings such as hospitals The protection of privacy will also be a significant issue in supporting the changing nature of health care in developing countries in which mobile eHealth solutions are emerging as an integral part of the health care infrastructure as demonstrated in the publication mHealth new horizons for health through mobile technologies

The Internet, Development, Human Rights and the Law in Africa Danwood Chirwa, Caroline Ncube, 2023-03-17. This book tracks and critiques the impact of the internet in Africa. It explores the legal policy implications of and legal responses to the internet in matters straddling human rights, development, trade, criminal law, intellectual property and social justice from the perspective of several African countries and the region. Well known and emerging African scholars consider whether access to the internet is a human right, the implications on the right to privacy, e-commerce, cybercrime, the opportunities and dangers of admitting electronic evidence, the balancing of freedom of expression with the protection of intellectual property and how different African legal systems address this tension. This book will be an invaluable resource for a wide range of stakeholders including researchers, scholars and postgraduate students, policymakers and legislators, lawyers and judicial officers, crime fighting agencies, national human rights institutions, civil society organisations, international and regional organisations and human rights monitoring bodies.

Global Diffusion of EHealth: Making Universal Health Coverage Achievable World Health Organization, 2017-03-27. This third global survey of the WHO Global Observatory for eHealth (GOE) investigated how eHealth can support universal health coverage (UHC) in Member States. A total of 125 countries participated in the survey, a clear reflection of the growing interest in this area. The report considers eHealth foundations built through policy development, funding approaches and capacity building in eHealth through the training of students and professionals. It then observes specific eHealth applications such as mHealth, telehealth, electronic health records systems and eLearning and how these contribute to the goals of UHC. Of interest is the extent to which legal frameworks protect patient privacy in EHRs as health care systems move towards delivering safer, more efficient and more accessible health care. Finally, the rapidly emerging areas of social media for health care as well as big data for research and planning are reported.

Managing eHealth M. Rosenmüller, D. Whitehouse, P. Wilson, 2014-08-05.
