George Segal Bronze:

George Segal George Segal, Carroll Janis, Joan Pachner, Mitchell-Innes & Nash, 2003 In the late 1960s George Segal began double casting his work taking a second cast from inside the mold of the original cast This process brought finer detail to the surface and was part of his evolution to a more naturalizing image When in the 1980s he began making bronze work for outdoor installation he continued this double casting technique and all his bronzes were made from finished plasters As Carroll Janis writes in the introduction Segal's plaster sculpture presents an existential situation the surrogate figure more fragile and removed from reality when set next to the real object The bronzes appear to reverse this idea by asserting the strength and permanence of the human figure within the surrounding environment Recent Sculpture in Plaster and Bronze by George Segal Sidney Janis gallery (New York, N.Y.), 1980 George Segal George Segal, 1980 George Segal Sidney Janis Gallery, 1980 George Segal, 1982 George Segal [New York, 1991], 1991 Recent Sculpture in Plaster and Bronze by George Segal Sidney Janis.
