strugglin' Robert L.W Gant,2010-03-26 Black ideology and black political thoughts were a direct out growth from the civil rights movement and struggle during the early 60 s In 1963 I was invited into the civil rights movement by Dick Gregory At this time I was living on the westside of Chicago I was born in Augusta GA and raised by my grand parents Rawbean Rawbean It s time to get up boy my grandmother yelled Mrs Annie Gant It was 5 00 a m and still dark outside and I was still asleep I could barely hear her yelling At first I just laid there not fully aware of life and then my nose alerted my taste buds that it must be breakfast time As the smell of fresh bacon and hot homemade biscuits perfumed the air in my bedroom again my grandmother called Rawbean if you haven t gotten up and in here in one minute I m gonna come and get you and you ain t gonna like it I got up and immediately began my morning chores because I knew what grandmother meant and I sure wasn t in the mood for that especially so early in the morning When I finally arrived to the kitchen table my grand dad and my cousins James and Francis were already tasting breakfast The thought made my mouth water something awful Our kitchen was like any other country style kitchen of the 30 s for a poor black family We had a wood burning stove that was in fairly good shape An ice box which wasn t electric but rather one which held a solid block of ice with compartments for food We had a solid oak kitchen table with six chairs and the kitchen was beautifully decorated with what was not of my grandmother s choosing My grandmother was a beautiful African lady And my grand dad was Indian They were a very beautiful couple They had eight children and my mother was the baby and very spoiled and very beautiful She was what every one called a Georgia peach My dad was a Williams and the Williams family was an upper middle class family My dad worked for one of Augusta s leading brick companies and operated his own business a fruit and vegetable stand The weekend was upon us and everyone was busy getting things ready for Sunday There appears to be something big going on at our family church I noticed my grandmother taking out my Sunday best Grandmother am I goin to church with you No Rawbean Come here baby I m going to try to explain this to you the best way that I can Rawbean your grand dad isn t your real dad He s not No your real dad name is Albert Williams and he would like to see you Your step dad will be by later to visit with you and I m going to dress you now and please don t get your clothing dirty I had never seen my real dad or my step dad All of this was new and exciting Also very sad because in my mind grand dad was my real father Grandfather and I worked together played together He was my best friend and there was nothin that could come between us However I was thrilled to meet my real father That afternoon my step dad arrived on time and my grandmother invited him in He was tall dark and handsome with alikeable personality My mother had remained at their apartment with two brothers and a sister whom I had never seen before William

Jr Daniel and Flora Bell I was really thrilled To know I had brothers and sisters to play with It was truly a beautiful day Mr Johnson introduced himself to me and said Robert I m a friend to your dad and he asked me if I would bring you out to his home to visit him Would you like to go visit with him Yes My grandmother kissed me and said for me to hurry back Mr Johnson please take care of the baby I had no idea how far my dad really lived However once on the outside there was a beautiful automobile awaiting us My step dad picked me up and sat me inside I was thrilled Mr Johnson started the motor and began to pull off I looked back to see grandmother standing in the doorway with a v e r y serious look on her face It was a very lovely Sunday afternoon On our way to visit wit Gainesville Green Dolphus Cue,2012-06-27 This book began as a ode to the oak trees of Gainesville The city was so surrounded by these monstrous oaks it looked as if it sat in the lap of a forest But as the city grew more and more the developers moved in and began uprooting the trees There was a hue and cry about saving the trees and keeping Gainesville green among the concerned I took photos of the mighty oaks as a multi media project which I entitled Gainesville Green and repeated throughout the project Mother nature made her healthy and clean but only you and I can keep Gaineville green Later I learned that Gaineville Green also referred to home grown Marijuana

Reading Erskine Caldwell Robert L. McDonald, 2006-01-24 Erskine Caldwell has been compared to literary giants like Faulkner and Hemingway yet he has also been reviled as peddler of pop trash Was he a genius or just a shooting star whose brilliance faded long before he stopped writing Caldwell began his career in the late 1920s and gained fame for revealing the gritty backwoods South in novels such as his seminal Tobacco Road He wrote prolifically sometimes as much as a book a year As the editor of this book maintains perhaps anyone who wrote so much would inevitably stumble These 12 essays explore a variety of issues They discuss Caldwell as humorist social commentator modernist and revolutionary novelist They examine his themes and tropes political images social injustice the environment ideological struggles and his use of artistic devices short stories cubist strategies repetition A generous bibliography includes not only books on Caldwell but also chapters and forewords journal articles essays news items and obituaries The reader is encouraged to look at Caldwell with fresh eyes to press beyond his controversial image and to compare his works especially his early ones to those of any of the top names in literature The People's Writer Wayne Mixon, 1995 Most critics have considered Caldwell to be only a minor southern writer often associating him with his worst writing Yet Saul Bellow suggested he deserved the Nobel Prize and William Faulkner once characterized him as one of the five best writers of his time alongside himself Thomas Wolfe Ernest Hemingway and John Dos Passos
