Georgian Brighton:

Resorts and Ports Peter Borsay, John K. Walton, 2011 Resorts and Ports draws together a group of case studies which for the first time explore the changing relationships between port and resort activities in a cross section of European maritime settings over three centuries The book will interest academics in tourism studies history geography and cultural studies as well as providing essential information and analysis for policy makers in coastal regeneration Romantik 4 Cian

Duffy, Karina Lykke Grand, Lis Møller, Robert W. Rix, Anna Lena Sandberg, 2016-03-31 Romantik Journal for the Study of Romanticisms includes new research articles on Byron's The Giaour on spatial memory in Wordsworth and Rousseau on how the city of Brighton was represented in the early nineteenth century as a centre of fashion polite sociability and consumerism on the construction of a romantic canon in the Faroe Islands and on Rome as the incubator for romantic artists forming friendships and cultivating artistic communities Moreover the issue features reviews of new books published in Scandinavia on the romantic era Romantik is a multidisciplinary journal dedicated to the study of romantic era cultural productions and concepts Romantik is interested in all European and Nordic romanticisms and not least the connections and disconnections between them hence the use of the plural in the subtitle Historic Streets and Squares Melanie

Backe-Hansen, 2013-11-01 In this picturesque exploration of Britain's constructed landscape an array of medieval lanes Georgian crescents and Victorian squares make an appearance together with the people famous infamous and unfamiliar who designed built and lived in them From Bedford Square and Portobello Road in London through to Grey Street in Newcastle and Charlotte Square in Edinburgh Historic Streets and Squares takes you over the doorstep of some of the country's most familiar addresses Melanie Backe Hansen takes us beyond the facades delving into the evolution of ancient streets the aspirations of builders and architects and the extraordinary lives of past residents She also reveals the fascinating stories of how some of our oldest and most valued crescents lanes and avenues have survived into the twenty first century and the twists and turns of their journey along the way Taken together these fifty examples tell us much about Britain's urban development over the centuries while also highlighting more recent attempts to preserve our architectural heritage The history of our streets avenues lanes and squares reveals more than just changes to architectural style but offers a doorway into the heritage of our nation Lovely Bits of Old England John Betjeman, 2012-11-08 John Betjeman began writing for the Telegraph in 1951 and continued to do so for a quarter of a century During that time Britain underwent profound social and cultural changes In architecture grand Victorian edifices were pulled down to make way for gleaming brutalist monuments to the Future In literature a new generation of angry young men and women challenged convention head on In music pomp and circumstance gave way to the electric guitar And in fashion hemlines crept up Amongst much of the population however such rapid change met with disquiet a nagging sense that the New had displaced much that was wonderful in the Old By turns eccentric wistful and polemical Betjeman's writing for the Telegraph gave voice to this unease

From contemporary reviews often refreshingly caustic of novelists such as Ian Fleming Nancy Mitford and J D Salinger through prescient warnings about the threat posed to the English skyline by office blocks motorways and concrete lamp standards to elegiac paeans to Norman churches and of course the gothic majesty of St Pancras station Lovely Bits of Old England collects the very best of Betjeman's contributions to the Telegraph for the first time Taken together they offer a eulogy for what was lost and an impassioned defence of the past in the face of progress's relentless onward march The Making of Our Urban Landscape Geoffrey Tyack, 2022 The fruit of a lifetime's study Geoffrey Tyack's new book offers an expert survey of Britain's urban history from the Romans to the present day A brilliant example of learning worn lightly it takes the reader on a fascinating tour of towns across the country The Making of Our Urban Landscape is entertaining and enlightening in equal measure It's important too as we confront difficult decisions about our urban future Book jacket

Based upon contemporary documents and illustrations, Johnnie Johnson re-examines some of the crimes that shocked not only the county but Britain as a whole. Among the gruesome cases featured here are the mystery man who shot his wife and three children in a house in Eastbourne, the Chief Constable who was bludgeoned to death in his own police station, the fearsome gang of smugglers who tortured and buried one of their two victims alive and threw the second to his death down a well, and the waiter who danced away the days while his lady friend's body lay mouldering in a trunk in his lodgings. All manner of murder and mystery is featured here, and this book is sure to be a must-read for true crime enthusiasts everywhere. A Village in Sussex Charles Cooper, 2006-02-24

In the heart of Sussex, below the South Downs Way, lies Kingston near Lewes, dominated by downlands and surrounded by vast sweeping fields. How has its medieval past shaped the borders and boundaries of its present? How did the village adapt as its institutions, organisation, and technology developed with time? In this beautifully written history, Charles Cooper explores the development of the village from the time of the Norman Conquest to the end of the nineteenth century. This is a fascinating micro-history of a place that mirrors many of the changes taking place in wider England. Cooper charts the transformation of the village under its Norman overlords, the rise of yeomen and gentlemen in the sixteenth century, and the final ascendancy of the Goring family of Wiston, who by the nineteenth century had become the dominant landowners in the area. He brings the people of the village alive through the ages in a fascinating blend of economic and cultural history, uncovering the lives of ordinary men and women as well as those of priests, gentlemen, and peers. A Village in Sussex is a masterly entry point into the history of rural England and the life of one of its most attractively situated villages. The Cambridge Urban History of Britain Peter Clark, David Michael Palliser, Martin J. Daunton, 2000-07-20. This volume examines when, why, and how Britain became the first modern urban nation. The Autobiography of a Nation Becky
