together different theoretical strands while providing a basis for independent regional geographic research at the same time. Beginning with an overview of the physical structures of Germany which provides the material point of departure for the societal development of Germany, key aspects of the German history are discussed. Particular attention is paid to the reciprocal influence between material substrate and notions of landscape. Here specific German trajectories of aesthetic and normative conceptions of landscape become clear. A common theme throughout the book are questions of divergence and of efforts towards convergence which become evident when considering past and present economic, political and demographic developments. Efforts to tackle current challenges such as adapting to climate change and mitigating it or securing raw materials also become apparent. The complexity of spatial processes in Germany is illustrated in case study regions dealing with the challenges of structural change in traditional industrial regions such as the Ruhr area or the efforts of Berlin to position and find itself as the capital of a unified Germany. Overall the book shows how theory driven regional geographic research can make spatiotemporal complexities tangible and comprehensible.
