distinguished Swedish geographer Gunnar Olsson has made substantial contributions to his own discipline. In addition because of the transgressive nature of his work and writing which often borders to art and philosophy his ideas and approaches have reached a wider audience of those interested in the history and geography of ideas, culture and human reasoning. Olsson's recent masterpiece Abysmal is a minimalist guide to the territory of Western culture. In it he investigates how cartographical reason enables people to think about and navigate the abstract world of invisible human relations in much the same way as they are able to study and traverse the physical Earth by using maps and mapping. This book presents a comprehensive introduction to and overview of the entire range of Olsson's geography from the early days of spatial science to his contemporary engagement with and critique of cartographical reasoning. It includes selected samples of Olsson's own writings including rarities together with a consolidated bibliography of his publications. It also contains critical engagements from leading scholars such as Michael Dear, Michael Watts, Chris Philo and Marcus Doel with Olsson's geography from a variety of perspectives which are particularly valuable to those readers who already know his work. It is structured and written in a way that makes Olsson's geography accessible to a wide readership including those who are not already familiar with Olsson's work.

New Lines Matthew W. Wilson, 2017-11-15 New Lines takes the pulse of a society increasingly drawn to the power of the digital map, examining the conceptual and technical developments of the field of geographic information science as this work is refracted through a pervasive digital culture. Matthew W. Wilson draws together archival research on the birth of the digital map with a reconsideration of the critical turn in mapping and cartographic thought. Seeking to bridge a foundational divide within the discipline of geography between cultural and human geographers and practitioners of Geographic Information Systems (GIS), Wilson suggests that GIS practitioners may operate within a critical vacuum and may not fully contend with their placement within broader networks, the politics of mapping, the rise of the digital humanities, the activist possibilities of appropriating GIS technologies and more. Employing the concept of the drawn and traced line, Wilson treads the theoretical terrain of Deleuze, Guattari and Gunnar Olsson while grounding their thoughts with the hybrid impulse of the more than human thought of Donna Haraway. What results is a series of interventions, fractures in the lines directing everyday life that provide the reader with an opportunity to consider the renewed urgency of forceful geographic representation. These five fractures are criticality, digitality, movement, attention and quantification. New Lines examines their traces to find their potential and their necessity in the face of our frenetic digital life.

Rethinking the Power of Maps Denis Wood, 2010-04-16 A contemporary follow up to the groundbreaking Power of Maps, this book takes a fresh look at what maps do, whose interests they serve and how they can be used in surprising, creative and radical ways. Denis Wood describes how cartography facilitated the rise of the modern state and how maps continue to embody and project the interests of their creators. He demystifies the hidden assumptions of map making and explores the promises and limitations of diverse counter-mapping practices today. Thought-provoking illustrations include U.S. Geological Survey maps.

electoral and transportation maps and numerous examples of critical cartography participatory GIS and map art The book will be important reading for geographers and others interested in maps and their political uses It will also serve as a supplemental text in advanced undergraduate and graduate level courses such as Cartography GIS Geographic Thought and History of Geography

Resilience in the Post-Welfare Inner City Geoffrey DeVerteuil, 2016-08-17 Resilience has become one of the first fully fledged academic and political buzzwords of the 21st century Within this context Geoffrey DeVerteuil proposes a more critically engaged and conceptually robust version applying it to the conspicuous but now residual clusters of inner city voluntary sector organisations deemed service hubs The process of resilience is compared across ten service hubs in three complex but different global inner city regions London Los Angeles and Sydney in response to the threat of gentrification induced displacement DeVerteuil shows that resilience can be about holding on to previous gains but also about holding out for transformation The book is the first to move beyond theoretical works on resilience and offers a combined conceptual and empirical approach that will interest urban geographers social planners and researchers in the voluntary sector
