Five Hours from Isfahan William Copeland, 1975 The World's Finest Mystery and Crime Stories: 5 Ed

Gorman, Martin H. Greenberg, 2004-10 An annual collection of more than thirty mystery stories from the United States the United Kingdom Canada and Germany includes pieces by such names as Ruth Rendell Ed McBain Barbara Hambly Ian Rankin and Joyce Carol Oates Views from the Edge Neguin Yavari, Lawrence G. Potter, Jean-Marc Ran

Oppenheim, 2004-11-24 These essays were written by colleagues and former students of Richard Bulliet the preeminent Middle East scholar whose most important contribution remains his extraordinary imagination in the service of history The hallmark of the book then is innovative scholarship in all periods of Islamic history Its authors share a commitment to asking original historiographical questions with an overall orientation toward issues in social history Spies and Holy Wars

Reeva S. Simon, 2010-11-15 Illuminating a powerful intersection between popular culture and global politics Spies and Holy Wars draws on a sampling of more than eight hundred British and American thrillers that are propelled by the theme of jihad an Islamic holy war or crusade against the West Published over the past century the books in this expansive study encompass spy novels and crime fiction illustrating new connections between these genres and Western imperialism Demonstrating the social implications of the popularity of such books Reeva Spector Simon covers how the Middle Eastern villain evolved from being the malleable victim before World War II to the international techno savvy figure in today's crime novels She explores the impact of James Bond pulp fiction and comic books and also analyzes the ways in which world events shaped the genre particularly in recent years Worldwide terrorism and economic domination prevail as the most common sources of narrative tension in these works while military tech novels restored the prestige of the American hero in the wake of post Vietnam skepticism Moving beyond stereotypes Simon examines the relationships between publishing trends political trends and popular culture at large giving voice to the previously unexamined truths that emerge from these provocative page turners

Overlanding Alix Lee, Overlanding recounts a journey I made from south Asia to western Europe in the mid 1980s which left a very deep and lasting impression on me The trip in total took just a little over three weeks Not only did it unceremoniously blow away many of my own preconceived notions of life in Pakistan and Iran it was also a harsh lesson for me as a traveller in the virtues of being prepared for any journey into terra incognita Additionally the first part of the journey from Karachi to the Turkish border with Iran was relatively dangerous not due to involving difficult terrain but rather to man made hazards But overall the journey turned out to be something I originally had never suspected for a moment it would be an intensive course in the follies of racial prejudice and ethnic chauvinism The story includes examples of racial and ethnic prejudice and discrimination involving one way or another Japanese Pakistanis Iranians Arabs Turks Greeks Germans Dutch British and Irish whites blacks Jews Muslims and non Muslims Although this turned out to be the overriding theme of the journey needless to say when I embarked on it such a possibility was far from my mind And when I reached journey's end though I realised the trip had been a lot different than expected and I had learnt a lot from it there wasn't anything obvious I could do with this knowledge When I arrived in Rotterdam I was almost penniless and had to find work and a place to live immediately I was fortunate enough to secure a manual work assignment with an uitzendbureau or temporary employment agency for the very next day and by half past four the following morning was in a minibus with a group of other workers heading for a nuclear power station nearly five hours distant in Germany back precisely the way I had come the previous day It would be several months before I had the luxury of pondering on the events and meetings that constituted my overland journey and by that time I was preparing for my next major piece of travel related in the subsequent True Tales of a Traveller story One Day in Bangkok and disinclined to dwell on it I believe that racial prejudice and ethnic chauvinism are weaknesses inherent in human nature We all suffer from them to some extent at some time or another usually both as perpetrators and as victims however much we may like to think otherwise All we can really do is try to recognise these tendencies for what they are and keep them in check I was both a victim and a perpetrator of racial prejudice and ethnic chauvinism on this trip To learn how exactly please read on

True Tales of a Traveller Volume Two Alix Lee, This book Volume Two of the True Tales of a Traveller series consists of three travel stories two substantial novella length stories separated by a story of short story length These stories can read separately but the best way to read them is to start with the first That principle applies to the whole series and also to this volume It isn t necessary however to read all the stories of Volume One to enjoy those related in Volume Two The book begins in late 1984 with the sixth tale in the series overall Culture Shock This story finds the young traveller myself taken from the relative orderliness of a life in London where he had been attempting with mixed results to pursue a career in travel related in the fifth story of the series A Career in Travel and throws him into the furious assault on the senses that constituted life in the Indian capital Delhi at that time The second story of this volume Just A Businessman is set in Indian administered Kashmir At nearly 17 000 words this account constitutes a lengthy short story which may need more than one sitting to read In addition to being a travel story Just A Businessman is also a story about religious and ethnic conflict and political upheavals and the extents to which these can affect the life of a traveller or an outsider Overlanding Part One is the third story in this volume and at over 46 000 words the longest story of the series so far for one of the shortest periods of actual travel Of all my travels in the 1980s in terms of time spent undoubtedly no journey made such a deep and lasting impression on me as this overland trip from Karachi to Rotterdam Not only did it unceremoniously blow away many of my own preconceived notions of life in Pakistan and Iran it was also a harsh lesson for me as a traveller in the virtues of being prepared for any journey into terra incognita Additionally the first part of the journey from Karachi to the Turkish border with Iran was relatively dangerous not due to involving difficult terrain but rather to man made hazards But overall the journey turned out to be something I originally had never suspected for a moment it would be an intensive course in the follies of racial prejudice and ethnic chauvinism Like all the other stories in the series these three stories provide not only entertaining reads but also information on all the places visited some relevant only to the era in which the story is set but most still relevant at the time of this book s publication
