Student Services for the Changing Graduate Student Population Anne S. Pruitt-Logan, 1995 The central theme of this volume of New Directions for Student Services is the graduate student experience It has been assumed that because graduate students have completed undergraduate degrees they have developed to the point where they can handle the new responsibilities of graduate study on their own Moreover because graduate study is characterized as trial by fire systems of support are seen as unnecessary Although there have always been those who have been alert to the attention these students need it has often been left to chance This book brings together in one place a discussion of issues and needs from the points of view of both graduate education and student affairs Drawing on the research and practical experiences of leading scholars the book leads off with excerpts from a graduate student's diary and then reviews the current landscape of graduate education The challenge to graduate education and student affairs concludes the volume This is the 72nd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Strategies for Staff Development: Personal and Professional Education in the 21st Century William A. Bryan, Robert A. Schwartz, 1998 An educated energetic and motivated student affairs staff is critical to the delivery of quality learning opportunities and services for students This volume offers a range of strategies for recruiting retaining and developing such a staff The authors show how supervisors and mentors can make a positive impact on staff members growth and discuss how to build a solid career foundation for entry level professionals They also describe the influence of behavioral style on professional development and present a performance based approach to human resource development that emphasizes goal setting coaching and performance assessment This is the 84th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services

Student Affairs Research, Evaluation, and Assessment: Structure and Practice in an Era of Change Gary D. Malaney, 1999-04-13 Representing the most major effort to date to examine the student affairs research office this issue of New Directions for Student Services shows how this research can enhance and support the work of the student services staff and the campus at large The contributors describe how student affairs and faculty can collaborate to create an agenda for student related research review technological aids for collecting and analyzing data and discuss how student affairs researchers can make their role more vital to the campus by expanding into policy analysis and information brokering The volume also reports the results of a national study of thirty five centralized student affairs research offices including information on the types of research they have conducted and how institutional reorganization has impacted their research missions This is the 85th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services Meeting the Special Needs of Adult Students Deborah Kilgore, Penny J. Rice, 2003-06-27 In this volume we examine the ways student services professionals in institutions of higher education can best meet the needs of adult learners Most of the discussion here is situated in four year colleges and universities although we recognize that community colleges play a large role in the higher education of adults However we made the decision to focus on four year and post graduate institutions because we believe that these institutions often are focused on traditional aged students despite growing adult enrollments and are most in need of guidance about how to serve this ever growing population Students in higher education often are defined as adult learners or non traditional students if they are 25 twenty five years of age or older and more significantly if they have taken on what we consider adult roles and responsibilities such as caring for children and other family members working full time or participating heavily in community activities Adult students typically are not focused on campus life in the same way that younger traditional aged students are Therefore our theories of the importance of the campus experience outside the classroom to student development usually do not hold for adults Yet adults can and do learn and develop through their engagement in formal higher education Adults bring experiences and wisdom into the classroom and receive a learning experience that informs their own professional and personal practices This is the 102nd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services Keeping Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) Competitive in Global Higher Education Graham, Tymon M., 2025-07-08 Historically Black Colleges and Universities HBCUs have served as vital institutions for academic excellence culture and growth within the Black community With globalization and rapid technological advancements the competitiveness of HBCU in the global higher education landscape is more important than ever By embracing these strategies HBCUs can continue to offer high quality education attract diverse talent and lead in shaping an inclusive global academic future Keeping Historically Black Colleges and Universities HBCUs Competitive in Global Higher Education explores how HBCUs can remain competitive in a global atmosphere This book investigates themes challenges and successes of academic affairs student affairs enrollment management institutional advancement finance and athletics Covering topics such as higher education academic affairs and student affairs this book is an excellent resource for administrators faculty researchers educators academicians and more

Current Index to Journals in Education , 2000-10 New Challenges for Greek Letter Organizations Edward G. Whipple, 1998-04-07 Greek organizations must demonstrate their educational value if they are to survive and thrive This volume examines how contemporary Greeks are coping with the age old problems of alcohol abuse and legal liability as well as the challenges presented by an increasingly diverse campus population The contributors show how student affairs professionals can help Greek organizations achieve their potential as learning communities and play a positive role in their members cognitive and ethical development This is the 81st issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

The Community College and the Good Society Chad Hanson, 2017-09-08 The community college is the largest single sector of the U S higher education network As of 2005 40 percent of newly enrolled undergraduate students attended community colleges The American two year school is a vast rapidly changing and under studied institution The aim of The Community College and the Good Society is to critically analyze the internal changes and external forces that shifted the focus of the two year college from the liberal arts to job training Chad Hanson raises a series of questions about what is lost or forsaken when public institutions become preoccupied with economic goals When educational institutions turn their attention toward training workers to private sector specifications Hanson argues our social and cultural lives suffer He describes the the learning college movement an ideological framework that justifies the current emphasis on vocational training In addition he explores the implications of competency based education a philosophy and method for creating curriculum with strong support among administrators and boards of trustees For more than four decades a steady stream of commentary aimed at understanding the two year school made its way into the literature on higher education In this work Hanson provides an alternative view of the community college He offers suggestions for new teaching strategies curriculum and organizational structure These changes will encourage the potential for the two year college to flourish as an institution that provides a permanent place for the arts and sciences

Enhancing the Multicultural Campus Environment: A Cultural Brokering Approach Frances K. Stage, Kathleen Manning, 1992 The general college student body has evolved from a homogenous predominantly white population to one that is culturally racially and ethnically diverse The findings of current research on achievement and retention of minority students are discouraging Fewer minorities attend college success rates of those in college have not improved and dreams of achieving educational equity remain unfulfilled This volume of New Directions for Student Services moves forward from a descriptive perspective of what is happening on college campuses It describes an approach to working with students that involves cultural brokering which enjoins us to learn to think contextually span boundaries ensure optimum performance and take action The cultural broker model is suggested for use with all students on today's campuses The model presents a vision of practice that can respond to the diversity of the the 1990s and beyond This reflexive approach is defined as deliberate and thoughtful choices of action based on knowledge of cultural differences expansion of personal experience to others communities education from a variety of perspectives and advocacy for broadening opportunities For college administrators and student affairs professionals the perspectives and suggestions within this volume provide valuable insights about the creation and maintenance of multicultural campuses This is the 60th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page
